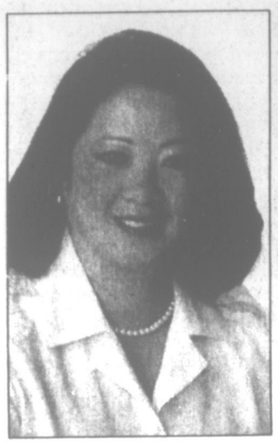
Local Realtors Earn "Top 100" Recognition From Parent Firm



LISA GOODFELLOW

JEAN AND ED KING

BETSY SPIKER

DEBRA SAVAGE

Long & Foster Realty at Deep Creek Lake has announced that four of its agents have been named to the "Top 100 Realtors" list of the nationwide firm. Lisa Goodfellow, Betsy Spiker, Debra Savage, and the realtor "team" of Jean and Ed King were each recognized by the parent company, which affiliates with over 12,000 practicing real estate agents across the country.

"Our agents are among some of the most dedicated in the field", said DCL branch manger John Macy. "I see how hard these individuals work for our clients and customers."

Goodfellow's local realty career began in 1986, and since then she has earned membership in the Master's Club, the company's highest recognition. Last year, she achieved recognition for performing in the top one percent of Reality Alliance Sales Professionals, the country's largest real estate brokers association. An active member of Garrett County Board of Realtors (GCBR), Goodfellow has been described as a "catalyst in local real estate legislation."

Ed and Jean King, both graduates of the Realtor Institute, work in a team setting with Ed King as realtor and associate broker and Jean serving as his licensed assistant. The couple has been recognized as "Top Producers" for 17 consecutive years. The Kings are active participants in the formulation planning, zoning, management, and regulation issues in the lake area. They are both longtime members of the DCL Property Owners Association, and Ed King has served on the POA's board of directors for the past 20 years. He has also served as chairperson of the GCBR, and on multiple committees with that organization. The Kings are members of the DCL Lions Club, and also volunteer with Hospice of Garrett County and the Garrett County Memorial Hospital Foundation.

Spiker, a lifelong resident of Garrett County, is one of the youngest members of the local company's Chairman's Club. She also volunteers for projects with the county's Chamber of Commerce.

Savage, also a native of Garrett County, is a member of the GCBR and Maryland Realtors Institute.

Mtn. Lake Park Resident Joins Coldwell Banker

Coldwell Banker Deep Creek Realty announced this week that Beverly Everett has joined the company as a sales associate. She recently completed 60 hours of prelicensing education and passed the Maryland state licensing examination.

"She brings valuable marketing skills and great enthusiasm to benefit her clients," said Ruth Seib, broker and co-owner of Coldwell Banker Deep Creek Realty.

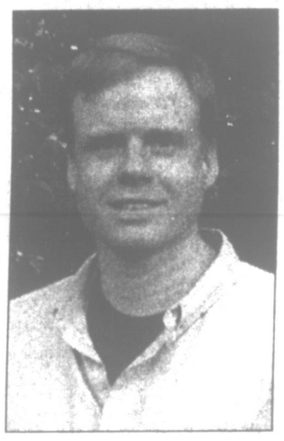
Everett has an extensive background as an insurance agent and earned a bachelor's degree in business administration from the University of Tennessee in 1980.

After moving to Mountain Lake Park in 2001, she worked as substitute teacher in Garrett County schools since that time. She attends Oak Park Church of the Brethren.

Everett said she has always wanted to be in real estate sales because she loves working with people. "There is no better reward than satisfaction of finding the perfect property for my customer," she said.

Her husband Bob is also a sales associate at Coldwell Banker Deep Creek Realty. The Everetts are parents of two children, Elizabeth, who is a sophomore at James Madison University, and Fate Baker, a student at Southern Middle School.

Eiswert Earns CFA Status



Local native and Baltimore area resident David J. Eiswert has earned the designation of Chartered Financial Analyst (CFA). The CFA designation is awarded to those who successfully complete a three-part test given over a period of three years.

A 1994 honors graduate of St. Mary's College of Maryland, Eiswert received a master's degree in Economics from the University of Maryland in 1999. He has accepted a position as Equities Analyst at T. Rowe Price in Baltimore.

Eiswert resides in Hunt Valley with his wife, Dr. Stephanie Eiswert (Merchant), an anesthesiologist at St. Joseph Hospital in Baltimore. He is a 1990 graduate of Southern High School, where he was on the basketball and track teams. He is the son of Leonard and Kathy Eiswert of Pleasant Valley.

SHS Grad Gets ACM Scholarship

A Tracie Jean Werner Memorial Scholarship was awarded to a 1962 Southern High School graduate for study at Allegany College of Maryland, the ACM Foundation announced.

Marion E. Caldwell, Westernport, received the scholarship in the fall semester and completed a medical coding certificate in the office technologies curriculum this past December. The magna cum laude graduate was also an ACM Focus on Women award recipient for 2003.

Caldwell has worked as a geriatric nursing assistant in a long-term care facility. She has two daughters, Brenda Caldwell of Frostburg and Amy Prochazka of Martinsburg, W.Va.

THE MENTAL HEALTH CENTER
... is pleased to announce the offering of Adult LifeSkills–A Psychiatric Rehabilitation Service in Garrett County.
What are Psychiatric Rehabilitation Services? These services are designed to teach or restore skills necessary for recovery from mental illness and are provided by a trained and caring staff. Episodes of mental illness may delay or interrupt a person's capacity to manage one's daily responsibilities or pursue dreams, hindering one's ability to work, to learn or to get along with others. Rehabilitation service assists in expediting and sustaining recovery.
What is the Adult LifeSkills program? Adult Lifeskills offers both group activities and individual one-to-one sessions. Care managers assist participants in developing their rehabilitation plan, which is designed to address the participant's needs and desires. Regular reviews and modifications to the plan occur as progress is made. Services are designed to or wherever the person's needs are best addressed: at home, in the community, on the job or at our center.

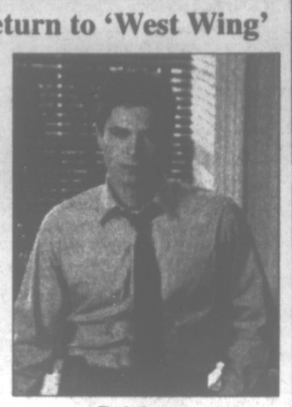
TV PIPELINE

Lowe not likely to return to 'West Wing'

By Taylor Michaels
© Zap2it



Rob Lowe

Q: Is there any chance we will see Rob Lowe back as Sam Seaborn on "The West Wing" now that his series "The Lyon's Den" appears to have gone belly up? –Gary Taylor, Saginaw, Mich.

A: I haven't spoken to Lowe about this, but I'd say the chances of him rejoining "Wing" as a regular are remote at best, even if NBC officially cancels "The Lyon's Den."

Lowe says he left the NBC White House drama simply because there wasn't enough for his character to do, although there reportedly were some major salary issues as well. While "The West Wing" has taken a hit in the ratings recently, most people chalk that up to the unexpectedly strong competition from ABC's "The Bachelor," not Lowe's departure – which means, in turn, that "Wing" producers are not likely to give the actor more money or screen time to return.

It bears remembering, too, that "The West Wing" originally was conceived with Lowe's character at the center of the action. It can't have been easy for the actor to watch colleague Martin Sheen and his less well-known co-stars such as Allison Janney as they quickly grabbed the lyon's – oops, sorry, lion's share of the spotlight.

Q: Did Josh Lucas ("Sweet Home Alabama") ever star in the old Family Channel series "The Man From Snowy River"? And was Susie Coelho of HGTV's "Outer Spaces" ever married to Sonny Bono? –Marla Lawless, San Antonio.

A: Yes, the Arkansas-born "Alabama" hunk was working as Joshua Lucas back in 1993 when he played Luke McGregor in "Snowy River."

And you're right again. Coelho was Bono's third wife, in a union that lasted from 1982 to 1984.

Q: Why have they removed Faith and Fred Yokas (Molly Price, Chris Bauer) from "Third Watch"? I think the actors who portray them are both excellent and I miss seeing them. –Nancy Richmond, Kokomo, Ind.

A: "No one has 'removed' Molly and Chris," an NBC publicist replies. "At the moment, the story lines are focusing on other characters, but both of them are still with the show. That's just the nature of an ensemble show like this one."

Q: What other TV shows or movies has Bradley Cooper ("Alias") appeared in? –J. Young, Columbus, Ohio.

A: Philadelphia native Cooper, 29, who recently starred with Jason Priestley in the ABC Family movie "I Want to Marry Ryan Banks," previously had series roles in Fox's short-lived "The $treet" and Discovery Channel's "Treks in a Wild World," and guest starred on "Sex and the City." Film credits include "Wet Hot American Summer," "My Little Eye," "Carnival Knowledge" and "The Last Cowboy."

In Focus

A standard poodle and a toy poodle took top honors last year, but fune in to Animal Planet and Discovery Channel's "AKC Eukanikuba National Championship" Saturday, Jan. 31, to see which pooches take home the ribbons.

The special chronicles the path dogs must take to earn "Best in Show." It also shows some of these pure breeds from their puppy days, and introduces breeders, handlers and the judges behind the contests. The rewards aren't exactly puppy chow – $250,000 is at stake.

Small Business Development Ctr. Slates Classes

The Small Business Development Center at Garrett College has scheduled three classes, Stock Market Basics, Management Matrix, and Microsoft Excel Crash Course, that will each get under way the first week of next month.

Stock Market Basics is set for three Thursday evenings, Feb. 3-17, from 6 to 9:15 p.m. This entry level course provides basic information for anyone interested in learning more about stocks, bonds, and mutual funds, including the components of a basic retirement plan. Other topics include tax consequences of certain investments, the components of the Dow Jones Industrial Average, and basic asset allocation. Financial consultant Greg Cartrette will be instructing the course.

Management Matrix will be offered over 10 Thursday evenings, Feb. 5 through April 8, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Topics to be covered include time management, finances and money, communication, quality, information, and growth. These topics will be covered in detail for management personnel to enhance administrative skills and solve common business problems that arise in today's workplace. The instructor will be Michael Pellet.

The Microsoft Excel Crash Course will meet for one five-hour session on Friday, Feb. 6, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. A one-hour lunch break is included. This will be a crash course in electronic spreadsheets and the basic elements and functions of the Excel program. Materials are provided. The instructor will be Jim Wood.

For cost and other information concerning these courses or the Small Business Development Center, persons may call Sue Smith at 301-387-3080.

Registrations For Cove Christian Camp Available

Preparations are under way for Cove Christian Camp, a day camp sponsored by St. John's Lutheran Church (LCMS). Registrations are now being accepted for the camp, which is located near Northern High School along Cove Road.

The camp's board of directors has added another grade and another week to this year's schedule. Prekindergarten through first grade students will be offered two different weeks of camp. The first week will be July 6-9. It is only four days long because of the July 4 holiday. The second week for this age group will be July 12-16.

Children in second through fourth grade will have two weeks of camp this year as well: July 19-23 and July 26-30.

The purpose of this children's summer day camp program, according to a spokesperson, is "to share the Gospel of Jesus with them, teach them the importance of Christian values, encourage them to develop Christian attitudes, and engage them in camps, programs, and activities that will help them discover how wonderfully God has created them."

Because of the limited number of spaces available, Cove Christian Camp encourages parents to register their children early. Interested persons may e-mail Rev. Doug and Kathy Kabell at covechristian-camp@hotmail.com, or call them at 301-746-8344 or 301-746-8466 to receive a brochure and registration form.

Leaders Hear Evangelist; To Plan Revival

Pastors and community and business leaders from Pennsylvania, Maryland, and West Virginia gathered recently to hear evangelist Steve Wingfield at Garrett College. The evangelist has been conducting such crusades from Michigan to Florida and along the East Coast for nearly 20 years.

Those gathered at Garrett College represented eight different denominations. Among those present were Grantsville mayor Gerry Beachy, longtime Church of the Brethren pastor Rev. Don Matthews, and United Methodist pastor Rev. Mary Lee Radford.

The group also voted unanimously to hold a revival sometime late this summer. A meeting to begin planning it will be held this evening, Jan. 22, at 7 p.m. at Garret College in the Continuing Education Building.

The public is welcome to attend. For additional information, persons may call Matthews at 301-334-4422 or Rev. Joe Byler at 814-662-2547.

Rockingham, N.C.
Bill Elliott's No. 9 pit crew pocketed $10,000 for its record-setting performance in winning the 36th annual World Championship Pit Crew Competition at North Carolina Speedway.
The Mike Ford-led crew changed four tires and added two cans of gasoline in 16.795 seconds, breaking the old mark of 18.329 seconds set last year by Matt Kenseth's No. 17 crew.
"We knew coming in that if we had a good, solid pit stop and didn't make any mistakes that we would have a shot at it," Ford said. Eight of the 24 teams that participated had time added to their scores for various infractions such as loose lug nuts. Dale Earnhardt Jr.'s crew finished last after posting a time of 61.340 seconds, including penalties.

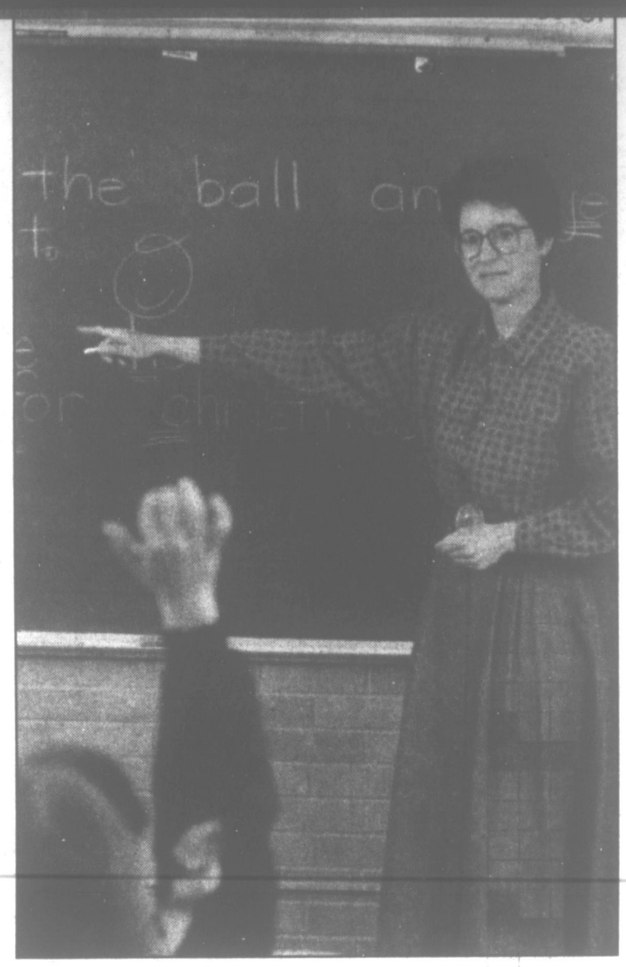
Leaders and Followers

"Attention class...who would like to try out for the lead in our third grade play? Thomas, I believe I see your hand...and Martin...and Vincent. Who would like to play opposite the lead character? Oh yes, Emily and Andrea...anyone else?"



Many of us define our role in life at an early age. Some of us scramble to be leaders...the rest are content to follow or to watch from the sidelines. We do not know all of the reasons why this is so, but a teacher can usually predict who will be the first ones with hands flying toward the ceiling, and who will sit quietly and wait.

Yet, we need followers to complete the scene... supporting players...even in the spiritual sense. Though the minister, priest, or rabbi leads us in worship, there would be no service without a worshiping body of followers. Followers show by example God's goodness in their lives. In this way they, too, become leaders of their peers. We read in Luke 22:26, "Rather let the greatest among you become as the youngest, and the leader as one who serves." Won't you worship this week? You can be a leader of your fellow man as a follower of God's Word.

Start the Day Right

If you want to have a good day – and who doesn't? – it helps to start your day with a positive affirmation, such as: "Today is going to be a great day," or "It's great to be alive." Better yet: "Thank you God for giving me this wonderful day."

Whether we actually feel this way or not, saying it will help put us in a more positive frame of mind. It is well-established that the simple act of smiling activates certain neural pathways that make us feel happier, while the act of frowning activates pathways that can make us feel depressed.

Jumping out of bed in the morning with a happy heart and a big smile on our face will make us feel happy and energetic, whereas moping around and mumbling about how lousy we feel will understandably make us feel lousy, and perhaps depressed. We must act first, and then the appropriate feeling will come, not the other way around. That is, if we want to be energetic, we should start moving and acting energetically.

If we sit around waiting for the energetic feeling to come, we will probably be disappointed. We should start acting happy and energetic, and soon we will discover that we truly are.

A Cheerful heart is a good medicine, but a Downcast spirit dries up the bones.

–R.S.V. Proverbs 17:22

Health Benefits Of Rye Extracts And Rye Bread

Rye is a grain that is sometimes taken orally for mild to moderate enlargement of the prostate. Rye grass extracts can improve the symptoms of urinary urgency, excessive nighttime urination, and painful urination. Many of the studies involving rye employed a specific rye grass pollen extract called cernilton. Some evidence also suggests that regular use of cernilton might slow prostate cancer cell growth. Beta-sterols found in cernilton are also known to relax smooth muscles and increase bladder wall contraction.

Other recent research indicates that rye bread does not produce the spike in insulin levels following a meal that is often seen with white bread. When compared to wheat bread, 3 different types of rye bread produced a lower insulin response, which resulted in a leveling in excess insulin production. It is thought that the higher insulin level spikes can produce below-normal blood sugar levels. Some experts believe a drop in blood sugar can encourage snacking between meals, which could increase the risk of developing type 2 diabetes in susceptible individuals.

Children's Books

Q. I have some Golden and Little Wonder books, mostly from the 1960s. Where can I sell them? — Frances, Pueblo West, Colo.

A. There is always a demand for older children's books. One of the better outlets is the Prince and Pauper bookstore, which has an inventory of more than 75,000 titles of out-of-print and collector children's books. Contact the bookstore at 3201 Adams St., San Diego, CA 92116; books@adnc.com; www.oldkids-books.com; and 1-800-454-3726.

Q. I have a little brown jug marked Royal Doulton and distributed by John Dewar & Sons Distillers. Where can I find out more about it? — Geri, Crossville, Tenn.

A. Judy Owen is a member of the International Society of Appraisers and specializes in breweriana. Her address is Antique Appraisers, Grand Traverse, 10332 Stoneybeach Pointe, Traverse City, MI 49686. For a second opinion, you might want to contact collector Ed Natale Jr., P.O. Box 222, Wyckoff, NJ 07481.

Pets Keep Owners Fit and Healthy

Q. I've read that pets can keep seniors healthy, through reducing stress, etc. How does that work? — Joel P., Fort Myers, Fla.

A. Researchers have noted that seniors who own pets have a reduced rate of stress-related ailments, so they've theorized that having an animal companion helps seniors feel less alone and somewhat empowered as they care for a cat, dog, fish or other pet. The unconditional love and affection that pets provide can help their owners feel needed and important, and can help to enhance their quality of life. So, the simple act of caring for a pet can create a longer, happier life for many people.

But there are more benefits to pet ownership. Owners are more likely to interact with other animal lovers. They tend to exercise more then pet-less people — especially dog owners, who must take their pooches for walks frequently.

Of course, pet ownership is not for everyone. If a senior doesn't want a dog or cat in his or her life, the idea shouldn't be pushed. Owners must be able to care for, walk and feed their pets, and provide training and activities. Not everyone can meet these requirements. There are also financial considerations, as pets must receive regular veterinary care, food and medicine.

An alternative to owning a pet is to visit one (or have one visit) occasionally. There are organizations across the United States that sponsor pet visits for seniors who love animals but cannot care for one full-time. These visits help provide some of the health benefits of pet ownership to those who otherwise would not receive them.

If nothing else, take time out to say hello to the neighbor's dog, or spend time with relatives and their pets.

Earns Perfect 4.0 At WVU

Garrett County resident Ashleigh Nicole James achieved a 4.0 grade point average during her freshman semester this past fall at West Virginia University, Morgantown.

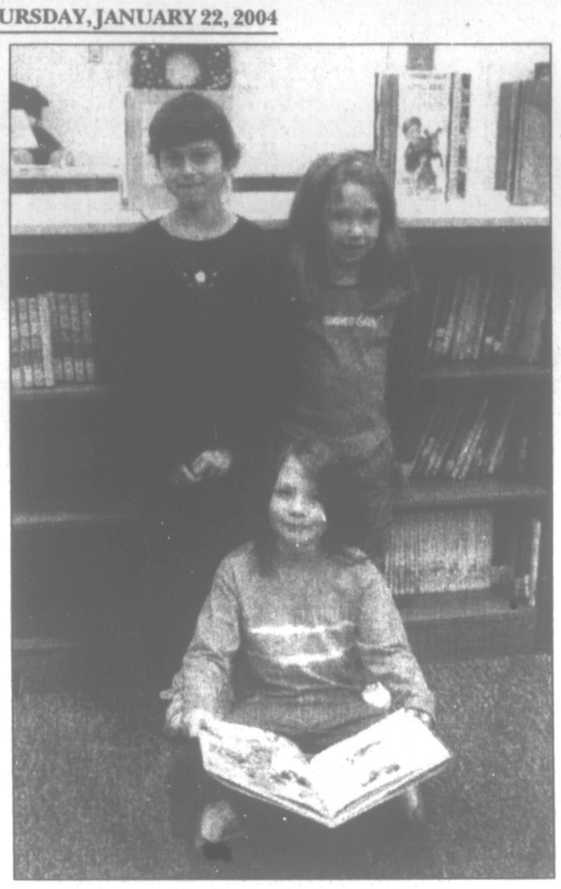
A pre-political science major, James will apply to the Political Science Program at WVU next year and plans to attend the university's law school.

James is 2003 graduate of Southern High School, where she was a member of the National Honor Society. She is the daughter of Linda and Robert James of Swanton.

Local Residents Graduate From AC Of Maryland

Allegany College of Maryland graduated 164 students at fall commencement exercises held recently on the Cumberland campus. The graduates earned a total of 178 associate degrees and certificates.

Local members of ACM's fall 2003 class are Daniel Jay Beiler, nursing, Brianne L. Georg, pharmacy technician certificate, and Lorie Schrock, nursing, all of Accident; Stephanie Lynn Evans, nursing, and Corey Ryan Sisler, forest technology, both of Friendsville; Kista Kay Weimer, nursing, Grantsville; Cynthia Saville, nursing, Oakland; and Stephanie Renee Smith, general studies, Swanton.



GRANTSVILLE FAMILIES OF THE MONTH – Each month, a family at each local school is named the Family of the Month and is given a gift certificate for a meal at a McHenry area restaurant. At Grantsville Elementary School, the Family of the Month winners for the past three months were recently announced. The students in those families are pictured above. Standing are Morgan Allman (left) for January and Kelsey Jo Durst for November. Seated is Kaitlin Engle, December.

Area Residents Named To ACM Fall Dean's List

Twelve Garrett County residents are among the 357 students named to the fall 2003 semester dean's list at Allegany College of Maryland, according to the ACM vice president of instructional affairs, Dr. Gene Hall. To be eligible for the dean's list, a student must earn a minimum 3.8 grade point average while enrolled in at least five hours of course work.

The local students on the ACM dean's list are: Heather R. Nugent of Friendsville; Aimee N. Parrack and Sheena R. Reese, both of Oakland; and Jodi C. Beaver, Alan D. Campbell, Kristi R. Durst, Marybeth Hershberger, Timothy J. Howe, Jamie C. Resh, Lindsay A. Schrock, Amanda J. Yoder, and Crystal G. Yoder, all of Grantsville.

Safe Return Brochures Are Now Available

Safe Return is a national program of the Alzheimer's Association that provides personalized ID bracelets and other identification materials and stores a person's contact information in a national database. The program enables police, community service agencies, and private citizens to identify people with Alzheimer's Disease who have wandered away and help them return home.

Ninety-eight percent of those using the Safe Return program are found within 24 to 48 hours. The return rate drops to 43% among those who are not registered in the program. These people are at risk because of weather, traffic, and people who prey on the helpless. Some have died from exposure only a short distance from their own doorsteps.

Nearly 60% of the more than 8,000 people with Alzheimer's disease in western Maryland will wander at some point during the course of their illness. They may be searching for someone or something familiar, such as a friend or where they used to live or work. They may need something, such as food, water, a bathroom, or companionship, but they cannot communicate about it.

Safe Return brochures are available to pick up at all Garrett County libraries and senior centers. To register a person in the Safe Return program or to learn more about how to prevent or reduce the likelihood of wandering, persons may call 1-800-696-6830 in Garrett County or contact the association's web site at www.alzgmd.org.

The Alzheimer's Association Greater Maryland Chapter provides education and services for individuals and their families and professional training for care providers, while supporting research and advocating for improved public policy.

"Elevate" To Be Broadcast Live At Local Church

The Oak Park Church of the Brethren will host "Elevate," a live, public video broadcast, on Saturday, Jan. 24, from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. The church is located across from Southern High School.

The presentation is designed to help churches "motivate, equip, and mobilize every person in their churches to make a difference wherever God places them in the world."

Designed for the next generation of leaders in local churches, the broadcast will feature "practical" teaching and testimonies from leaders in the media, marketplace, ministry, and politics.

Some of the people slated to participate are Peggy Wehmeyer, ABC News; Josh McDowell, author and evangelist; Victoria Jackson, actress and comedian; Kirk Cameron; actor; and Janet Parshall, nationally syndicated radio host.

"'Elevate' provides the inspiration, tools, and ability to discover God's unique mission for every person," said an Oak Park spokesperson. "This is designed to help empower church leaders to become difference-makers for Christ in the place God has called [them] to serve."

For more information, persons may call the church office at 301-334-2243.

Columbia Gas Donates $20,000 To History Day

Columbia Gas of Maryland has donated $20,000 to the Maryland Humanities Council for Maryland History Day 2004.

"We are very grateful for the continued support we have received from Columbia Gas of Maryland," said Margaret Burke, executive director of the Maryland Humanities Council. "Support from Columbia Gas has enabled the council to develop Maryland History Day into a significant statewide program that makes history come alive for over 8,000 middle and high school students."

Directed by the Maryland Humanities Council since 1999, Maryland History Day is an engaging yearlong educational program that culminates in a statewide history contest among thousands of Maryland students every April.

With assistance from hundreds of educators and historians throughout the state, Maryland History Day actively involves students in grades 6-12 in the process of discovery and in the interpretation of historical topics. Through this investigative teaching model, students produce dramatic performances, imaginative exhibits, multi-media documentaries, and interpretive papers based upon research related to an annual theme. A number of Garrett County youth have placed in the regional and state competitions in recent years.

Maryland History Day projects are evaluated at local and statewide contests, and winners advance to the National History Day competition in June. The program's combination of scholarship and creativity make Maryland History Day a leading model of performance-based learning, noted a spokesperson.

The Maryland Humanities Council is a private, educational nonprofit organization that is affiliated with the National Endowment for the Humanities. The council's mission is to broaden the general public's understanding and appreciation of the humanities and their application to the current conditions of national life, to strengthen the ties between academy and community, and to promote mutually beneficial dialogue between scholars and the public.

For more information about Maryland History Day, persons may call 410-771-0650 or visit the Web site at www.mdhc.org.

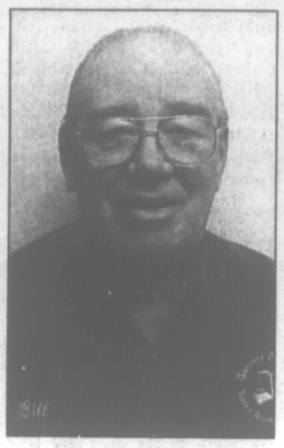
Ferry Retires From GCSO After 32 Years



F. William Ferry, who has been involved in the criminal justice field for 32 years, recently retired from the Garrett County Sheriff's Office Community Services Program.

Ferry began his career in 1972 when he was hired by the Garrett County Sheriff's Office and served as assistant chief deputy under Sheriff Jack Browning.

In January 1975, Ferry transferred to the Garrett County State's Attorney's Office, where he served as a criminal investigator. During more than 27 years with the States Attorney's Office, Ferry applied his investigative skills to a number of serious crimes in Garrett County.

Ferry served as the coordinator of the Community Services Program since 1996. He was responsible for monitoring the progress of individuals ordered to perform community service assignments by the courts.

Sheriff Dick Sanders expressed his congratulations to Ferry, who has been "a long time friend and excellent employee."

Bill and his wife Nancy reside in the Deer Park area.

Cynthia Smith of Grantsville will assume the position of coordinator of the Community Services Program.

Smith recently retired at the rank of lieutenant colonel with the Maryland State Police after 22 years of service. A graduate of the Johns Hopkins University Police Executive Leadership Program, she brings an extensive background and years of experience in the criminal justice field.

"She is a welcome addition to the Garrett County Sheriffs Office," said Sanders.

Farming On The Mountaintop

Pine Shoot Beetle "Needling" Local Christmas Tree Industry

The Maryland Invasive Species Council, the group that last year taught state residents about the importance of controlling and eradicating unwelcome intruders such as giant hogweed, fire ants, and garlic mustard, launches its 2004 "invader of the month" campaign with the pine shoot beetle. The pine shoot beetle, Tomicus piniperda, is a potentially severe pest of pine trees in North America that could hurt production and trade of pine nursery stock, greenery, and pine logs in areas where it is detected.

"During the winter months evergreen trees such as pines become more important and visible to Marylanders, but the pine shoot beetle remains largely unseen," said Robert Trumbule, the entomologist with the Maryland Department of Agriculture (MDA) responsible for coordinating the pine shoot beetle management program. "It is our job to look for the beetle and to work with the nursery, logging, and Christmas tree industries, to make sure that trees produced in Maryland are free of the pest."

The pine shoot beetle is a European species that was inadvertently introduced into the Great Lakes region and discovered in 1992. Since that time, this pest has been found in 12 states. Most of the beetle finds have been at Christmas tree farms and pine tree nurseries. The beetle's detection has resulted in a federal domestic quarantine to regulate the movement of pine nursery stock, cut pine Christmas trees, greenery, and pine logs from areas where it is established.

Before regulated products can be shipped to areas free of the pine shoot beetle, tree growing sites must be surveyed and found free of the insect. MDA surveys first detected the pine shoot beetle in Maryland in 1995. The insect pest has since been found in Garrett, Allegany, Washington, Frederick, and Montgomery counties.

Adult pine shoot beetles spend the winter in the thick bark at the base of living pine frees. In late winter to early spring, beetles fly to pine stumps, logs, or weakened trees, where they bore through the bark and lay eggs. Larvae feed between the inner bark and outer sapwood for several weeks before they mature into adults. By early summer, the new generation of adults emerges and flies to the shoots of healthy pines. Beetles bore into and hollow out the centers of shoots. Infested shoots become discolored, die, and often hang from the branch ends of infested trees for several months. This is the most noticeable and possibly most destructive phase of the beetle's life cycle.

The beetle prefers Scotch pine, but will feed on most species of pine that have needles arranged in clusters of two and three. White pines are not attacked, and the beetles will not infest spruces and firs. Although pine shoot beetles have the potential to be serious forest pests, most damage in North America has been reported from Christmas tree farms.

The MDA staff, in cooperation with the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Plant Protection and Quarantine officers, work with the nursery, Christmas tree, and logging industries in western Maryland to inform them of the quarantine and methods of compliance in order to minimize potential risks and to facilitate commerce and trade. Trapping and/or visual inspections are conducted at all nurseries and tree farms that request certification of Christmas trees and pine products within the quarantine area, and at pine production plantations and log marshalling yards throughout the state. The MDA's Plant Protection and Forest Pest Management staff make it possible for growers to prove compliance with federal law and to continue shipping pine trees and pine products from the quarantine area in western Maryland.

The 1997 Census of Agriculture ranked the Maryland Christmas tree industry 18th in the nation for number of farms (292) and acreage (1,419). The census reported that state growers sold approximately 209,000 trees for about $2.5 million.

FARM LOANS AVAILABLE FOR SOCIALLY DISADVANTAGED PERSONS

The USDA's Farm Service Agency can make and guarantee loans to socially disadvantaged applicants to buy and operate family-size farms. Funds specifically for these types of loans are reserved each year. This special type of financing is for people who have been subjected to racial, ethnic, or gender inequality without regard to their individual qualities. Socially disadvantaged applicants include women, African-Americans, American Indians, Hispanics, Asian and Pacific Islanders, and Alaskan Natives.

This program provides direct and guaranteed assistance in the form of farm operating and farm ownership loans. Guaranteed loans are issued by commercial lending institutions, but typically 90 percent of the loan is guaranteed by Farm Service Agency.

Operating loans may be used to purchase livestock, equipment, feed, seed, and other business-related expenses. Repayment terms run from one to seven years.

Ownership loans provide capital to purchase or enlarge a farm, construct or improve buildings, promote soil and water conservation, and pay closing costs. Direct ownership loan terms are up to 40 years.

Qualified candidates are provided information and assistance to develop sound management practices, analyze problems, and utilize available resources for successful farming operations.

Socially disadvantaged loan applicants do not receive automatic approval. Individuals must be U.S. citizens with a satisfactory history of meeting credit obligations; have sufficient education, training, or experience managing or operating a farm; possess the legal capacity to incur debt; and be unable to obtain credit elsewhere.

To discuss Socially Disadvantaged Farm Loans, Preston County farmers may reach Douglas Cyphers, farm loan manager, and Karen McBee, farm loan officer, at 304-863-8861 in White Hall, W.Va. Appointments may be scheduled on most Wednesdays in the Preston County FSA Office located in the Corner Mall of the Kingwood Plaza.

Ag Leaders To Celebrate With Md. Legislators

Maryland's agricultural industry leaders will dine with state and national legislators on Thursday, Feb. 5, to "celebrate the importance of Maryland's number one industry," agriculture, according to Susan Summers, executive director of the Maryland Agriculture Council. Over 700 are expected to attend the annual gala at Michael's Eighth Avenue in Glen Burnie, sponsored by the council.

"Ag-knowledging Maryland Agriculture: Providing a Safe and Abundant Food Supply" is the theme of the event.

During the dinner, the Governor's Agriculture Hall of Fame award will be presented to farm families who have demonstrated an exceptional commitment to agriculture and the communities in which they live and work.

The council will also award several thousand dollars in grants for various agricultural projects throughout the state.

Summers explained that the role of the Maryland Agriculture Council is one of educating the public on the importance of agriculture. Various avenues enable the Agriculture Council to interact with the public on a year-round basis, such as Ag Week shows at the malls, web sites, fairs, community shows, and newsletters. The council's grant program offers funding to individuals or organizations for the promotion of agriculture.

Tickets for the dinner are still available by contacting Gail Yeiser at 301-405-2434; or for more information on the dinner, persons may contact Susan Summers at 301-865-1045.

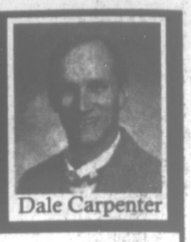
Real Estate Facts by...


Dale Carpenter

Time and Money: Save Both!

Selling a home is hard work. You want the best price in the shortest time with the least hassle. You also want to avoid mistakes that are commonly made by those who try to sell their home on their own.

How can a real estate professional help you achieve those goals? First, by preparing a Comparative Market Analysis that produces a fair and accurate listing price, supported by facts and recent trends.

The listing agent may hold organized Open Houses and will advertise your home through many avenues, including print and Internet. The Internet is one of the very best ways to reach out-of-town buyers.

A professional can also suggest ways to make your home more attractive and marketable, encouraging buyer excitement and full-price offers. Most importantly, the agent screens prospects for serious and qualified buyers, who aren't just curious "tire-kicking" strangers who want to wander through your home.

A real estate agent also has the experience and training to act as a negotiator between buyer and seller, ensuring that all parties are satisfied and treated fairly. Awareness of alternative financing methods can also make all the difference when it comes to helping buyers with financing concerns.

Think of listing with your local real estate agent as an investment that will save you worry, time and money while getting you top dollar for your home in the shortest time.

If you're planning to sell your home soon and would like information on its current value, give me a call at the office, or on my cell phone at 301-501-DALE!

Williamson To Appear At Mountaintop

Officials of Living for Christ Conferences have announced that Alicia Williamson, contemporary Christian vocalist, will perform in concert at their annual get-away weekend conference, Mountaintop 2004, to be held March 5-7 at Oglebay's Wilson Lodge in Wheeling.

Williamson began singing at the age of 5, and today she's a singer, songwriter, author, and host of two television programs anchored in Mobile, Ala. After traveling several years with the Christian musical group TRUTH, with whom she first recorded her signature song "There Is a Hope," she began her solo ministry in 1993. She now makes nearly 200 international solo appearances annually. Some of these appearances include the ministries of the Billy Graham Evangelistic Association, In Touch with Charles Stanley, the Gaither Homecoming team, and Precept Ministries. She has recorded six albums. Her newest is We Win!

"Alicia Williamson is one of the finest singers in inspirational Christian music today. She blends articulate communication with heartfelt emotion and music of different genres to reach her audiences with a clear knowledge of the Gospel," said Anne Robinson, Wheeling resident and co-founder of Living for Christ Conferences. "She has an amazing voice, but she brings so much more to her music. Her love of the Lord is overwhelmingly evident in her music. In turn, her audience is drawn into worship."

The featured speaker for this conference is Rebecca Manley Pippert, internationally acclaimed speaker and best-selling author of Out of the Salt Shaker. She will speak at five sessions during the weekend on the topic "Living the Glory/ Sharing the Story."

Mountaintop is not affiliated with any church and is for both men and women of all ages. "Our goal is to provide an atmosphere away from the rush and strain of life, where folks can be challenged to grow spiritually," said Robinson, who is a native of Oakland. Nearly 3,000 people have participated in this event throughout the past 18 years.

For more information or to register, Living for Christ Conferences may be contacted at 304-455-5322; www.living4Christ.com.

MOUNTAIN LIONS CLUB SUPPORTS AURORA COMMUNITY– The Mountain Lions Club, the Aurora-based chapter of Lions Clubs International, lives up to the organization's "We Serve" motto in many ways. All money collected at club fund-raisers goes back into the southern Preston County community. The club also "adopted" Route 24 in the Eglon area between Aurora and Silver Lake, and members shown above collecting trash, from the left, are David Moran, Jerry Hauser, Jackie Snyder, John Minnig, Mary Stemple, Lori Wall, Betty and Charlie Moore, Jo-Ann Helton, Alma Snyder, Jeff Coberly, Arvin Harsh, and Melvin and Dove Stemple.

Mountain Lions Club Of Aurora Notes Activities

The Mountain Lions Club, based in Aurora, met recently to discuss the club's ongoing support of the local community. The discussion included an examination of the Mountain Lions' charitable efforts, noting that any money collected at club fund-raisers comes back to local citizens.

During the past year, the Mountain Lions Club made contributions to Aurora School for the float at the Buckwheat Festival and Autumn Glory Festival; supported the Fourth of July celebration; collected trash on Route 24, which the club has "adopted" for trash pick-up"; bestowed scholarships to four local high school graduates; co-sponsored a child's trip to compete in a marble tournament; donated to the local Girl Scout troop's project of sending packages to area military members; provided glasses to a community member; and made donations to West Virginia University Children's Hospital and the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

The club also sponsors two annual dinners, an Elimination Dinner with the Union Ambulance Service, and a buckwheat and sausage dinner (already slated for Nov. 22 at the Mt. Grove community building). All monies made from both of those fund-raisers go back to the community.

Each year the Mountain Lions sponsor a local student to attend Leadership School at Camp Horseshoe, and club members also visit the camp to have dinner with the children and make a donation to the facility.

The Mountain Lions members also noted efforts of the organizations that provide meals for the club. Over the past year, dinners have been provided by Melanie's Restaurant, St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Aurora United Methodist Church, TOPS, Amboy Young Adult Sunday School, Stemple Ridge Ladies Aid, Bethel Church, Aurora CEOS, St. John's Lutheran Church, the Maple Spring Church 4-H Club, and the Union Ambulance Service.

Trip To Phipps Conservatory Set By Garden Club

Local persons are invited to join other garden enthusiasts on a day trip to Pittsburgh for the Spring Flower Show at the Phipps Conservatory and Botanical Gardens on Thursday, April 15. The conservatory buildings are full of beds of tulips, hydrangeas, narcissus, azaleas, and other varieties. Persons may enjoy a guided walk with knowledgeable Phipps guides and then wander through the extensive conservatory gardens on their own.

The cost of the trip is $25, which includes coach, admission to the gardens, and driver tip. There will be stops in Oakland, Alpine Lake, and Kingwood between 8 and 8:30 a.m. The bus will return between 5:30 and 6 p.m.

The trip is sponsored by the Cranberry Garden Club of Preston County and is open to the public. For more information, persons may call Peggy Nagel at 304-789-5555 or Mildred Lindley at 304-329-1117. Deadline for registration is February 29.

The Cranberry Garden Club welcomes women and men as members, and meets monthly in the Kingwood and Terra Alta area.

AURORA/EGLON

REMINDER

Persons are reminded to mark their calendars for the April 13 date, when the American Red Cross bloodmobile will be at the Union Ambulance squad hall.

JUNIORS, SENIORS RECEIVE MINDS IN MOTION AWARDS AT SHS – Eleventh and twelfth graders at Southern High School were recently named for Minds in Motion for the first marking term. These students participated in a fall sport and achieved at least an 87.5 % average for the term. In the front, from the left, are Robert Bonser, Andrew Goad, and Jasmine Scheffel. In the middle are Scott Wildeson, Erin Rhodes, Sheena Collins, and Rikkilee Rose. In the back are Erica Pratt, Sarah Bittinger, and Ashley Stuck. Not pictured is junior Jadyn Swerbinsky. The senior recipients are pictured below. In the front are Casey Taylor, Robbin Gregg, and Natalie Domenick. In the middle are Evan Thayer, Tyler Ashby, Melody Friend, and David Cuddington. In the top are Shane Riley, Kara Paugh, and Levi Filsinger. Not pictured are Laura Bonser, Jonathan Filsinger, Sarah Mullenax, Nicholas Perry, Laura Preston, Amanda Sisler, and Mandi Stahl.

RECEIVING MINDS IN MOTION AWARDS AT SHS – Ninth and tenth grade Minds in Motion recipients were recently announced for the first marking term at Southern High School. These students participated in a fall sport and achieved at least an 87.5% average for the term. In the front, from the left, are Natalie Rohrbaugh, Lauren Shue, Adrienne Yoder, Sarah Stephens, James Mullenex, and Natalie Mayle. In the middle are Joseph Albert, Cody Brack, Adam VanBogelen, Sean McCreery, Ryan Domenick, Nick Hillen, and Lacy Liller. JANUARY RAM HONORED – Freshmen Mike Edwards was selected as the Perkins RAM (Random Acts of Maturity) Student of the Month for January. "Mike Edwards is a student in Mr. Bosley's physical education class, which shares a locker room with the special education physical education class. Mike took it upon himself to begin watching over another student in the locker room. Mike has made sure no one picked on the special student and has treated him with great respect and friendship. Through this experience, Mike has joined the Best Buddies program to further help those in need," said teacher Steve Plum. Edwards is pictured above with Tom Woods, principal.

RAM HONORED IN DECEMBER – Senior Melody Friend, pictured above, was selected as the Perkins RAM (Random Acts of Maturity) Student of the Month for December. "With last minute notice, Melody was willing and able to design a poster to be distributed during National Red Ribbon Week. Using her talent and creativity, she was able to outline people and places to turn to if a student is concerned about a friend's drinking and/or drug use. A very professional-looking poster is now hanging in classrooms throughout the building. There should be no question about how to get help for a friend in need thanks to Melody's work," said guidance counselor Kelley Beavers-Davis. Principal Tom Woods is pictured with Friend.

McKee, Myers New Leaders Of Western Md. Delegation

The General Assembly's western Maryland delegation recently elected Del. Robert A. McKee (Dist. 2A) as its new chair and Del. LeRoy Myers Jr. (Dist. 1C) as its new vice chair.

The delegation includes the 21 legislators from Garrett, Allegany, Washington, Frederick, and Carroll counties, and works to promote issues of regional importance.

After his election as house minority leader, Del. George C. Edwards, who represents all of Garrett County and a portion of Allegany County, decided not to run this year, creating the vacancy in leadership. Edwards had served as chair of the delegation since 1995.

"I have every confidence in Delegates McKee and Myers to lead this delegation," said Edwards. "I am fond of saying that we have a great delegation in the legislature. By working together, we have a louder voice for the people of western Maryland."

"I am deeply honored to have been nominated and elected to serve in this position by my fellow legislators," said McKee. "A wide variety of challenges face these five counties. I look forward to working with my fellow delegates and ensuring that the needs of western Maryland are known and understood by our fellow legislators."

His district includes a portion of Washington County. McKee has served in the House since 1995 and serves on the House Ways and Means Committee. He served as chair of the Washington County delegation from 1999 through 2003 and vice chair from 1995 through 1999.

"I am glad to have been given this opportunity to work with Delegate McKee and the western Maryland delegation," said Myers. "It is always important to build relationships that will help us to be more effective. The delegation is a vehicle that enables us, as legislators, to accomplish this."

The district that Myers represents includes portions of Allegany and Washington counties. He has served in the House since 2003 and also serves on the House Ways and Means Committee. He is the current deputy minority whip.

Video Conference To Address EMS Diagnostic Topics

"The Roadside Detective," an interactive emergency medical services educational video conference, is slated for 7 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 28, in the Sacred Heart Hospital auditorium in Cumberland. Offered for EMS and nursing personnel, the event is sponsored by the R. Adams Cowley Shock Trauma Center and the Western Maryland Health System (WMHS) Trauma Center.

The presenter is Maryland's EMS medical director, Dr. Richard Alcorta, who will challenge participants' skills through an interactive process to assess and determine a patient's unusual illness or presentation. The different diagnosis will be compiled, and treatment interventions will be reviewed. Several of the cases will highlight legal and liability issues for the EMS provider.

MIEMSS (Maryland Institute for EMS Systems) and Nursing CEUs are available for participants. To register, persons may call WMHS nurse coordinator Sherry Troutman at 301-723-4324.

Local Student On FSU Dean's List

Megan Bernard of Swanton has been named to the dean's list at Frostburg State University for outstanding academic achievement for the fall 2003 semester.

To be eligible for the dean's list, a student must complete a minimum of 12 credit hours and earn a cumulative semester grade-point average of at least 3.4 on a 4.0 scale.

A business and accounting major, Megan is the daughter of Rich and Brenda Bernard.

Oak Park Church Slates Programs On Parent Issues

The Oak Park Church of the Brethren will host three live video broadcasts that address parenting issues over the next several weeks. The broadcasts are all associated with the Focus on the Family organization.

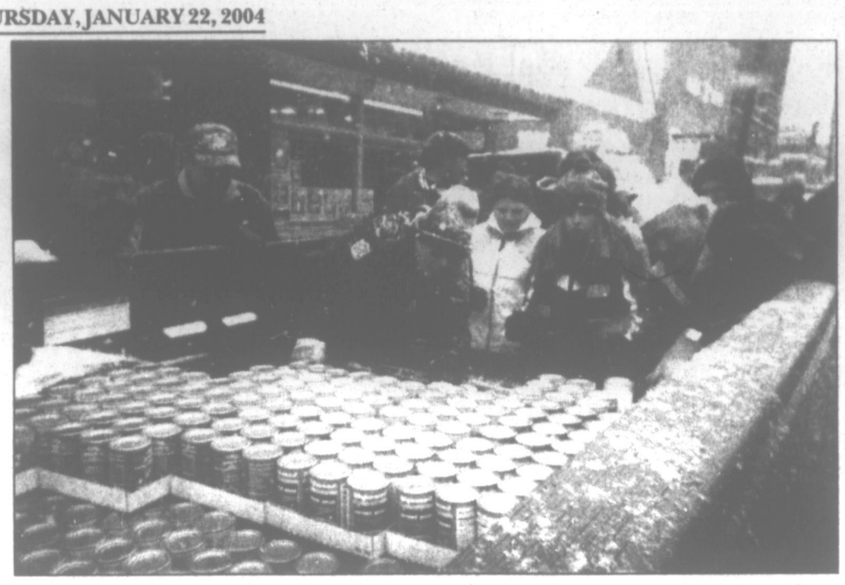
The first telecast, "Ten Essentials of Highly Healthy Children," will be held Thursday, Jan. 29, at 7:30 p.m., presented by Dr. Walter Larimore, an author, speaker, and medical expert.

"Dr. Larimore will show ways to empower parents to better understand their children's health — physically, emotionally, and spiritually," noted a church spokesperson. "He will equip parents and help them create a practical and realistic plan to improve and nurture their children to highly effective living."

The church will also host the live broadcast "Faith Launch: Fueling Your Child's Relationship with Jesus" on Thursday, Feb. 26, at 7:30 p.m., with Jim Weidmann, the "Family Night Guy."

Additionally, "Parenting: Understanding How God Made Your Family Fit Together," with Dr. John Trent, will be broadcast live at the church on Thursday, March 25, at 7:30 p.m.

The church is located across from Southern High School. The presentations are free and open to the public. For more information, persons may call the church office at 301-334-2243.



THE 25TH ANNUAL HOUSE OF HOPE FOOD DRIVE was held in Oakland last month. A pickup truck load of food and more than $2,000 were collected during the event, according to Chuck Nolan, who has spearheaded the drive since its inception 25 years ago. More than 30 residents volunteered for the drive, which included students and VFW members. The event was broadcast live on WKHJ with Pam Tricket and Nolan.

Small Business Courses Slated

Three courses have been added to the slate of offerings at the Garrett College Small Business Development Center. Registration is currently being accepted for Advanced Applications in Access, Realizing the Dream of Self Employment, and Writing Effective E-Mail, each of which will begin in the third week of February.

Advanced Applications in Access is set for 9 a.m. to 12:15 p.m. for four Thursdays, Feb. 19 through March 11, at the McHenry campus. This course is designed for experienced Microsoft Access users. Topics to be covered include creating forms to make data management easier, learning how to bring Excel spreadsheets and Word documents into Access, running queries and labels, using more complex queries, and sorting information.

Realizing the Dream of Self Employment is scheduled for 6 to 8:30 p.m. over 12 consecutive Tuesday evenings, Feb. 17 through May 4. The course will cover every aspect of starting and operating a small business, which includes the world of business, defining and financing the dream, the goal train, pricing products and services, finding a market, managing cash flow, the business of business, managing records, and understanding financial statements.

Writing Effective E-Mail will meet for one session, 9 to 11 a.m. Wednesday, Feb. 18. The course is designed to help participants format and manage e-mail, and write in an appropriate tone with the use of effective cyber grammar.

For more information on Small Business Development Center offerings, or to register for a class, persons may call Sue Smith at 301-387-3080.

4-H Club News

GRANTSVILLE 4-H
by Brittany Wilhelm

The recent January meeting of the Grantsville 4-H Club was called to order by President Bridgette Welch. Before the business meeting, the 38 persons in attendance enjoyed a covered-dish dinner and fellowship.

The pledges were led by Megan Wilhelm and Adam Rounds. Members answered the roll call by naming their favorite farm animals. The regular business included discussion of important upcoming events and dates.

Special guest Ann Sherrard, Garrett County Extension Office, reminded the club of the special events and explained officer training. The meeting was then turned over to her for the installation of officers for 2004.

The 2003 officers were Bridgette Welch, president; Amanda Beitzel, vice president; Ashley Beitzel, secretary; Kelli Wilhelm, treasurer; and Brittany Wilhelm, reporter. Officers for 2004 are Dean Rounds, president; Jessie Wilt, vice president; and Kasondra Broadwater, secretary. The treasurer and reporter will retain their offices.

Following the installation ceremony, each member received special pencils and pens from Sherrard, and the new members received special pencils and T-shirts.

The next meeting will be held Monday, Feb. 2, at the Casselman Valley Sportsmen's Club at 7 p.m.

BLASTING NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that Maryland Minerals Inc. of 19746 Garrett Highway, Arrowhead #82, Oakland, MD 21550 will be conducting blasting operations under Mining Permit No. 80-SP-0839-B at the Savage Quarry located 1.25 miles southwest of Hoyes on Hoyes-Sang Run Road in Garrett County in accordance with all applicable state and federal laws.

Such activities will commence and continue in accordance with the following schedule of dates and approximate times, as approved by the Md. Dept. of the Environment:

Dates: Feb. 1, 2004 to Feb. 1, 2005.

Times: 7:30 a.m. to 12 Noon and 12:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m.

No blasting will be conducted on Sundays.

At least ten minutes prior to each blasting activity, all accesses to the area will be controlled to prevent unauthorized entry, and a warning signal will be audibly indicated by three 5-second blasts with an air horn at 2-second intervals. After the blast, the all-clear signal shall be indicated by one 20-second blast with an air horn. These signals are in accordance with applicable state and federal laws.

Also, unless approved by the regulatory authority, blasting activities will not be conducted at times other than those announced without prior notification, or, in the event of an emergency situation where rain, lightning, or other atmospheric conditions, operator or public safety considerations dictate an unscheduled detonation.

Any questions concerning the mining operations should be directed to the Md. Dept. of the Environment - Minerals, Oil, & Gas Division at 410-631-8055.

The property will be sold subject to a prior mortgage, the amount to be announced at the time of sale, if made available to Substitute Trustees.

Terms of Sale: A deposit of $45,500 in the form of cash, certified check, or in any other form suitable to the Substitute Trustees in their sole discretion, shall be required at the time of sale, except no deposit shall be required of the secured party, its successors or assigns. Balance of the purchase price to be paid in cash within ten days of final ratification of sale by the Circuit Court for Garrett Co. If the purchaser fails to go to settlement, the deposit shall be forfeited and the property may be resold at the purchaser's risk and expense. The defaulting purchaser shall not be entitled to any surplus proceeds or profits resulting from any resale of the property. Interest to be paid on the unpaid purchase money at the rate pursuant to the Deed of Trust Note from the date of sale to the date funds are received in the office of the Sub. Trustees. In the event settlement is delayed for any reason, there shall be no abatement of interest. Taxes, ground rent, water rent, condominium fees and/or homeowner association dues, all public charges/assessments payable on an annual basis, including sanitary and/or metropolitan district charges, if applicable, to be adjusted for the current year to date of sale and assumed thereafter by the purchaser. The purchaser is responsible for any amount in excess of $500 of outstanding water bills, if any, incurred prior to date of sale. Cost of all documentary stamps, transfer taxes and settlement expenses shall be borne by the purchaser. Purchaser shall be responsible for obtaining physical possession of the property. Purchaser assumes the risk of loss or damage to the property from the date of sale forward. If the Sub. Trustees are unable to convey good and marketable title, the purchaser's sole remedy in law and equity shall be limited to a refund of the deposit. In the event the sale is not ratified for any reason, the purchaser's sole remedy, at law or equity, is the return of the deposit. Additional terms, if any, to be announced at sale. Purchaser agrees to pay $245.00 at settlement, to the Seller's attorney, for review of the settlement documents.

PUBLIC NOTICE

Contact Person: R. Lamont Pagenhardt
Date: January 16, 2004

For the 2004-2005 hunting season, hunting will be permitted on select properties owned by the Garrett County Government based on the following policy and selection process: All persons hunting on these select properties must have in their possession and on file with the Department of Public Utilities, a valid permit. Trespassers will be prosecuted.

Garrett County Land Holdings Hunting Permit Policy

1. Permits will be administered utilizing random selection of applicants by an independent third party, if requests are made in excess of one permit per twenty-five acres of property.

2. Permission to hunt will only be granted on properties that county government deems suitable.

3. Permits must be renewed annually to signify continued interest, allowing for new permits to replace those that are not renewed. The permit holders must have on file in the Department of Public Utilities Office and in their possession an indemnification-hold harmless agreement that bears the authorized permit holder's signature, printed name, address, telephone number and Maryland hunting license number.

4. All Maryland laws governing bag limits, designated seasons and hunting methods must be adhered to by the permit holder. In addition, antlered deer harvested during Maryland seasons must possess a minimum of 4 points per side.

5. Each applicant who is provided with a permit will be required to pay a $20 processing fee.

6. The use of motor vehicles of any kind on Garrett County Government property is prohibited.

7. All permit holders are advised to report trespassers to the proper law enforcement officials.

8. While present on the property, authorized agents must possess a current valid Maryland hunting license, photo identification, and wear a cap, vest, or jacket of fluorescent orange color.

9. Shooting deer by firearms (rifle or shotgun) is only permissible from one half hour before sunrise to one half hour after sunset, Monday through Saturday.

10. Violation of any of the new regulations listed above will result in revocation of the permit, with no renewal in subsequent years.

11. All permit applications must be received by the Department of Public Utilities by April 30, 2004.

12. For the 2004-2005 hunting season permits will only be issued for Map 42 Parcel 8, Map 85 Parcel 154, Map 86 Parcel 29, Map 86 Parcel 102 or Map 49 Parcel 118.

PUBLIC NOTICES

CONTRACT: SR-09-04 ST. JOHN'S ROCK
STANDING TIMBER FOR SALE

The Maryland State Forest and Park Service is offering for sale the following timber on 90 acres of Compartment #38 of Savage River State Forest. This sale is estimated to yield 520,180 Bd. Ft. of measured and marked live hardwood sawtimber according to the International ¼" Saw Kerf Rule (FC=78), and 343 cords of hardwood pulpwood, more or less.

This timber is located approximately one mile south of the I-68 Finzel exit, back Beall School Rd. to the St. John's Access Road of Savage River State Forest.

1. Timber will be shown at 9:00 a.m. on TUESDAY, January 27, 2004. Interested persons should arrange to meet at the intersection of Beall School Rd. and I-68 at the Finzel Exit, at the above date and time.

2. Contract/Bid forms will be available at the showing or from Savage River State Forest Headquarters, 349 Headquarters Lane, Grantsville, MD 21536, 301-895-5759.

3. A Security Bond in the amount of 10% of the bid submitted must be posted as bids are submitted to the MD State Forest and Park Service.

4. The operator must be a registered Forest Products Operator in Maryland for the current year and hold a Certificate of Erosion and Sediment Control training to be awarded a State Forest Timber Contract.

5. A Performance Bond in the amount of 10% of the bid amount must be posted upon notification of bid acceptance. The Security Bond may be applied to cover the Performance Bond.

6. All timber volumes noted in this offering are estimates. Parties bidding on this timber should determine such volumes to their own satisfaction. NO adjustments on the basis of volume will be made under any circumstances.

7. The successful bidder may make payment as follows: (1) make full payment upon notification of bid acceptance, or (2) select to make a 50% payment upon notification of bid acceptance, with the remaining 50% payable and due within 90 calendar days of the bid acceptance. If the buyer selects this option, the delayed payment must be covered by a payment surety bond in a form acceptable to the state of MD.

8. Bids will be received up until 1:15 p.m. on MONDAY, FEBRUARY 9, 2004.

by Dr. Thomas P. Sheahen

WIND CHILL FACTORS

Everybody knows that "wind chill" means that when the wind is blowing, it feels a lot colder than the actual temperature. But how do they come up with the numbers?

"Wind chill" is a quantitative, numerical way of expressing the fact that heat is transferred away from your skin at a certain rate. In engineering, the rate of heat transfer from any surface to the surrounding air is the product of two factors: the thermal gradient times the thermal conductivity.

The thermal gradient is easy to figure. Suppose your internal body temperature is 98.6 F = 37 C. The temperature of your skin might be closer to 75 F = 24 C, which is typical of an indoor room temperature. If the outdoor temperature on a cold day is 19 F, the thermal gradient is 56 F.

The thermal conductivity of air is much more complicated, because it depends on how fast the air is moving, and that is the factor that gives rise to a wind-chill effect. There is a thin boundary layer of air alongside your skin, which acts as an insulator. As the heat leaves your body, it travels across that boundary layer to reach the nearby ambient air. If the air is perfectly still and you're not moving either, the molecules of air diffuse back and forth across the boundary layer, gradually carrying heat away. Your body can keep up with that, keeping your skin temperature the same.

But if there is a strong wind blowing, that boundary layer gets a whole lot thinner, and heat moves across it faster. The thermal conductivity becomes a much larger number. It's harder for your internal body to circulate warm blood to your skin fast enough to maintain the normal skin temperature, and you start to get cold. Keep this up long enough and the amount of heat carried away is very great, so your skin temperature drops. With the skin temperature closer to the ambient temperature, the thermal gradient is not as large, and the total heat transfer decreases.

The National Weather Service has published a wind-chill table (www.nws.noaa.gov/om/windchill/index.shtml) that results from numerical calculations about the behavior of moving air and the thermal gradient. If the temperature is 30 F, the gradient to your skin temperature (suppose 75 F) is 45 degrees. At 5 mph wind, it feels like it is about 5 degrees cooler, because the boundary layer is shrinking. At 10 mph, the faster moving air (twice as fast) makes the boundary layer even thinner, and heat is carried away faster, so it feels about 9 degrees cooler. That's a serious wind-chill effect. At 25 mph, the boundary layer has gotten very thin, and in 30 F weather, the effective temperature drops by 14 degrees, so it feels like it's 16 F. Mercifully, it doesn't get a whole lot worse at higher wind speeds, because the boundary layer is so thin that heat can't be transferred away much faster, no matter what. With a wind speed of 35 mph, the effective temperature drops to 14 F; at 50 mph, the effective temperature becomes 12 F.

When it's very cold in the first place, the thermal gradient is larger. If the outdoor temperature is 5 F, and your skin is still trying to hold 75 F, the gradient is 70 degrees. That gradient is considerably greater than when the outdoor temperature was 30 F (70/45 = 1.55). Sure enough, the amount of heat transferred away goes up by the same proportions: at 5 F, a wind speed of 10 mph carries away heat as though it were 15 degrees cooler, making it feel like -10 F; and a 25 mph wind lowers the effective temperature by 22 degrees, making it feel like -17 F. Compare that to the 25 mph case when it's 30 F outside: this time the cooling effect is 22 degrees instead of 14 degrees, over 50% worse, because of the greater thermal gradient.

Still higher wind speeds don't make it a whole lot worse, because there is not much of a boundary layer left to take away. With 5 F as the outdoor temperature, and a 40 mph wind, the effective temperature is -22 F.

The calculations for thermal gradient and thermal conductivity keep going, but the accuracy of the heat-transfer model is not all that great at extremely low temperatures and high wind speeds The table contains some truly scary numbers, like -95 F when it's actually -45 F outside with a 50 mph wind. That's a mighty rare combination, and if anyone has actually experienced that, they probably weren't thinking about numerical values at the time. Most Americans never even experience a single occasion of -60 F wind chill in their entire lives.

The reason for wearing multiple thin layers of clothing in very cold weather is to create a series of air boundary layers, each one of which sees only a small thermal gradient, and all the inner boundary layers are not moving, so they have no wind-chill effect. It is the exposed skin that suffers most, typically on your face.

Inside the body, the brain gets to call all the shots and tells the heart where to pump warm blood to. So if your head is exposed to the outdoor air, the blood will be directed to your head and face, and the blood supply to your fingers and toes will be diminished. An early warning sign is numbness in your toes. Wearing a good insulating hat is your first line of defense.

Frostbite occurs when the body can't deliver heat to the extremities fast enough and the temperature of fingers or toes drops to such a low value that the tissue dies. Amputation is sometimes necessary in severe cases.

County Airport Project May Get More FAA Funds

Director Gary Mullich, General Services, told the Garrett County commissioners recently that the airport runway extension project could cost the county nearly a quarter of a million dollars less than projected.

He explained that President George Bush signed the Vision 100–Century of Aviation Reauthorization Act into law last month. The new legislation is expected to increase funding for the Federal Aviation Administration's Airport Improvement Project and reduce local matching share requirements from 10 to 5 percent.

The county's airport improvement project includes extending the runway to 5,000 feet and widening it to 75 feet. According to Mullich, the project could be bid out by next spring, with construction work beginning in March 2005. Funding for design work is already in place, he noted.

Initially, it was anticipated that the federal government would fund 90 percent of the project, while the county and state would share the remaining cost evenly. It now appears that the county will pay only 2.5 percent of the cost, resulting in a savings of approximately $236,000.

Since the county has already allocated that money for the project in its capital improvements budget, however, Mullich asked the commissioners to consider using the savings to construct new airplane hangars and other infrastructure. The FAA will not pay for those items, he noted. Hangars are key to the development of the airport, Mullich stressed.

Lawrence Dawson, General Services, also updated the commissioners on the airport's Jet A fuel program. The program began in March 2002 at a cost of $55,384. A surcharge of 15 cents per gallon has been added to help defray the cost of the program over a 10-year period.

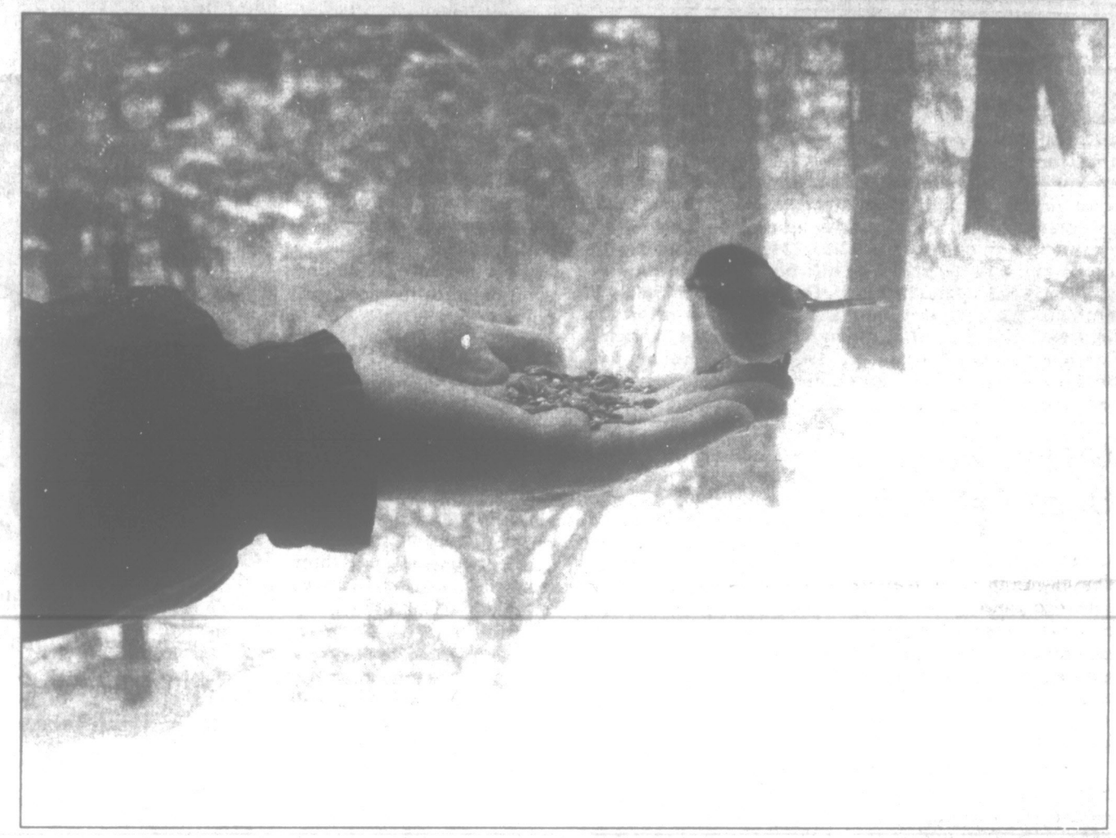
Dawson estimated that 37,000 gallons of fuel would have to be sold each year, or 3,100 gallons per month, to pay for the program in 10 years. Since the program began 19 months ago, however, only 20,022 gallons have been sold. That amount is more than 52,000 gallons less than was projected.

He noted that 9/11 may have caused a decrease in the amount of air traffic and fuel sales at the county's airport. A very snowy winter and rainy summer may also have contributed.

Mullich said that once the runway is extended, he knows of at least three Jet A fuel users who will want to have hangars at the airport. The increase in development at Deep Creek Lake may also bring more clientele who will use the airport and purchase the fuel, he added.

Fuel sales could also increase because of Homeland Security issues. Mullich told the commissioners that transportation of cargo by air is coming under more scrutiny by the federal officials. They may be looking at setting up cargo transit hubs at smaller airports.

Mullich wants to see if the county's could be one of those hubs. Warehouses to store cargo could be built in the White Face Farm area, he noted.



"THE BIRD OF PARADISE ALIGHTS ONLY upon the hand that does not grasp," wrote author John Berry. Okay, so a chickadee is not necessarily representative of paradise, but the quote is cool anyway. And it's true that this hand, which by the way belongs to Russell Lyons of Columbia, had to be still and steady for the pretty little creature to alight upon it. The photograph was taken this week by Peggy Gaegler, also of Columbia, at the home of Richard and Melodee Hill near Oakland. Because of a continuous blizzard this week, birds are crowding each other at feeders, so perhaps this chickadee is just a bit smarter — and certainly braver. Predictions do not call for much of a break in the weather for many days, with snow to continue to fall and temperatures to stay in the teens and 20s. Give a hand to the birds — they get cold, too.

Charges Pending In Oakland Theft, Pursuit Into Pa.

Maryland State Police troopers assigned to the Garrett Bureau of Investigation said this morning that they are pursuing charges against four suspects thought to be involved in a Wednesday, Jan. 21, incident that included a felony theft and a vehicle pursuit during which they rammed two police cruisers north of Accident.

The four residents of Connellsville, Pa., are believed to have stolen three carts of electronics-related merchandise, including video games and DVDs, from the Oakland Wal-Mart at approximately 8 p.m. last Wednesday. A store greeter heard an alarm trip as three of the men left the store with the unpaid merchandise, and witnessed them putting the items in the trunk of a 1990 Eagle Premier sitting in the loading area with a driver waiting behind the wheel before the vehicle fled the parking lot.

A police radio bulletin for a reckless driver passing other vehicles on the right helped a state trooper locate what turned out to be the suspect vehicle near Smiley's Pizzeria, McHenry, fleeing north on Garrett Highway. A chase ensued, and in the vicinity of the Cove Overlook the Eagle rammed two police cruisers, causing minor damage as they spun out. Although the troopers were not injured, they were

House Burns; Fire Units Can't Get To Scene

Severe weather conditions made it almost impossible for local volunteer firefighters to get to a house fire Sunday night.

Fire units were summoned at 11:18 p.m. after the owner of a house located at 63 Deer Crossing off Hoyes Run Road discovered a fire in the second floor of the two-story structure.

Tim Warnick, the owner and resident, arrived home to find smoke in the second floor, with the fire evidently being caused by a faulty flue. He attempted to extinguish the fire with a garden hose, but was unsuccessful.

Called to the scene were fire units and personnel from the Deep Creek, Accident, Friendsville, Bittinger, Oakland, and Deer Park VFDs, but they were unable to get their vehicles up the steep lane to the house. They had to stretch hundreds of feet of hose line, during which time the second floor of the house was destroyed.

Also responding to the scene were the county air cascade vehicle and the Northern Rescue Squad. There were no injuries reported.

MLP Man Gets Two Years For Driving Charges

A Mtn. Lake Park man pleaded guilty last week in Garrett County Circuit Court to two charges of driving while his license was revoked. Judge Jim Sherbin sentenced French Stinson, 48, to one year in the Garrett County Jail for each charge, which will run concurrently.

The sentences were then suspended, and Stinson was placed on supervised probation. Fines totaling $1,500 were also assessed.

According to the state's attorney, Stinson was charged after Garrett County sheriff's deputies saw him driving in the Oakland area on two separate occasions last May. The officers knew that Stinson's license had revoked for prior motor vehicle violations.

Silver Spring Man Sentenced For CDS Possession

A Silver Spring man was sentenced last Thursday in Garrett County Circuit Court for possession of a controlled dangerous substance. Judge Jim Sherbin sentenced Hugh Everett Fazenbaker to six months in the Garrett County Jail.

The sentence was suspended and Fazenbaker, 45, is on probation for six months. A fine of $1,000 was also assessed.

According to the state's attorney, sheriff's deputies arrested Fazenbaker last March after they were called to Bloomington for a man reportedly passed out in a parked vehicle. While investigating, officers smelled the odor of burnt marijuana and observed a smoking pipe in the vehicle. After Fazenbaker's arrest,

Murder Convict's Leniency Request Denied By Panel

A panel of three judges has denied a leniency request by former Bloomington resident and murder convict Donna Lynn White, who is serving a life sentence for her part in the child abuse and beating death of her 4-year-old daughter in May 1986. White, 44, who is an inmate at the Maryland Correctional Institution for Women, located in Jessup, was sentenced in December of that year to life in prison plus 15 years for first-degree murder and child abuse.

The panel, headed by Washington County judge Frederick C. Wright, who was joined by another Washington County judge and a judge from Allegany County, came to their decision in the wake of White's

Anne Arundel Teen Killed In Tuesday Crash

An 18-year-old Pasadena woman was killed when the sedan she was riding in was struck by a truck Tuesday afternoon on Garrett Highway near the Cove Overlook. Maryland State Police troopers, who reported that road and visibility conditions were poor at the time of the 2:47 p.m. crash, are asking any other motorists who witnessed the accident or who saw the vehicles before the mishap to contact them at the McHenry barrack.

Emily Schindler was riding in a 1985 Chevrolet Caprice that was traveling south when it reportedly crossed over the yellow centerline at Rabbit Hollow Road and struck an oncoming Mack truck head-on. The Caprice's driver, Joseph Goldberg, 19, Olney, and other passengers, Amber Thomas, 18, Germantown, and Robert Wolz, 19, Silver Spring, were injured in the crash and transported to area hospitals in Oakland and Cumberland. The truck driver, Gary Tew, 30, Bedford, Pa., escaped injury.

Emergency units responding to the site were the Northern and Southern Garrett County Rescue Squads, the Salisbury (Pa.) Amublance Service, and the Accident and Friendsville volunteer fire departments.

Persons with any information on the accident are asked to contact Tfc. Bond at 301-387-1101.

Oakland, MLP Both Want To Annex Schools

Southern High and Dennett Road Elementary schools could soon be annexed into Oakland, but then again, they could become part of Mountain Lake Park. Both towns are vying for these areas that are located between them.

Oakland officials requested a land classification waiver from the Garrett County commissioners this week. The town would like to change the area at the schools from suburban/residential to residential/ industrial/professional (RIP). Director John Nelson, Planning and Zoning, said the RIP designation allows a variety of uses that typically would not be allowed in a residential zone.

This designation would also be consistent with the county's plan, which the state requires, allowing Oakland to rezone the areas

Commissioners To Decide Fate Of Animal Ordinance Next Tuesday

The Garrett County commissioners held a public hearing Tuesday on updating the county's animal ordinance. Despite the wintry weather, nearly 40 residents attended the standing-room-only event, voicing their approval of or opposition to the changes.

The commissioners will hold the record open until next Tuesday, Feb. 3, before making a final decision to accept the ordinance into law or reject it.

The current "dog" ordinance was adopted in 1985, with only a few amendments added since then. Director Brad Frantz, Emergency Management, said the new plan had been developed by a committee with a wide range of views. Members included a law enforcement officer, Humane Society member, veterinarian, kennel owner, surgeon, and the county health officer.

"Some say it goes too far," said Frantz about the members' opinion of the plan. "Others say it doesn't go far enough." He added, however, that they wanted a common-sense approach to address the many changes that the county has gone through over the years.

The committee's most dramatic change to the ordinance would be the inclusion of cats. The edict would be deemed an "animal" ordinance, with animals meaning dogs and cats. Pet owners would be required to get their cats vaccinated for rabies and purchase licenses.

Additionally, as in the past with a dog, a cat would be considered "at large" if it is not on its owners' property or "under the immediate physical control of a responsible person capable of physically restraining the animal."

Oakland resident Jon Boone commended the committee on its collaborative effort and said it was "wonderful" that cats were included in the ordinance. He noted that two robins' nests have been taken by cats from his porch and that cats kill millions of birds each year. But he does not blame the cats. "People should be responsible for their cats," he said.

He noted that people who feed feral cats should be responsible for them as well. Feral cats "jeopardize the quality of living for the entire neighborhood," Boone said.

Karen Wooddell, Mtn. Lake Park, said six neighborhood cats use her porch as a "hotel," use her flower beds as toilet, and get their "dinner" at her bird feeder. "I ask the commissioners to pass this ordinance," she said.

"I feel its an ordinance that's long over due," said Oakland resident Ray Selders, who also has problems with cats catching birds at his feeder and climbing on his car.

The committee also recommended that dog and cat licenses be issued on a three-year cycle to coincide with the rabies vaccinations. The cost of the three-year licenses would be $15 per animal. If the pet is spayed or neutered, however, the cost would only be $3.

County Leaders Give Reports On PACE Activities

The Garrett County commissioners held their monthly staff meeting this week, hearing reports from 14 departments and agencies. The main topic of discussion this month was Mountain Maryland's annual PACE (Positive Attitudes Change Everything) reception and legislative breakfast in Annapolis. Staffing issues at Social Services and the Extension Office were also discussed.

Public Utilities

Director Mark Tonkovich and other Public Utilities staff attended the PACE event last week. Before the Thursday evening reception, Public Utilities staff members outlined and discussed the need for funding for numerous Garrett County water and wastewater treatment projects. Those included the Friendsville I&I, Crellin/Mtn. Lake Park water, Table Rock water line extension, and the Deep Creek Lake wastewater treatment plant expansion.

Tonkovich did not ask for monies for Deer Park water, as that funding is all in place for that project. The director said earlier this month that all the conveyance lines had been installed, except the lateral lines to homes for which property owners are responsible. The project should be completed by June 30.

Municipal Assistance

Mike Mullan, municipal assistance coordinator, reported that Del. George Edwards has assured him that the final $350,000 in state funding for the Accident sewer project is still available. "George is very confident that we'll be approved," said Mullan. Though the funding had been earmarked earlier for the project, Mullan wanted to make sure that the funding was "still there," given the state's economic woes.

Once that funding is in place, the final $350,000 from the Appalachian Regional Commission will also be released for the Accident project, according to Mullan.

The coordinator also spoke about the PACE event. He and several town officials attended to discuss their projects and to securing funding for them with state officials.

"I think the towns did a great job," he said. "I feel all the towns will get some funding."

Social Services

Secretary Christopher McCabe has indicated that the new permanent director of Garrett County Social Services will be announced next week, reported acting director Rick DeWitt. The position has been empty for several months. DeWitt has applied for the position.

The acting director also clarified the "liberal leave policy," noting that liberal leave was a misnomer. The office is still open even though some non-essential staff members may request the day off. He stressed that

IT'S CERTAINLY PILING UP – The winter of 2004 is shaping up to be another tough one in Garrett County. Lots of snow has fallen, and finding places to put it all is getting more difficult with each day. Parking lots are shrinking and sidewalks are buried. Local roads have been closed and remain so today, including Rts. 495 and 560. Interstate 68 was closed for several hours yesterday as blizzard conditions worsened. The weather has caused the closing of the public school system from Monday through today, and because tomorrow was an already scheduled day off, local students have had an entire week at home. Photo by John McEwen.

Woman Injured After Falling Off 4-Wheeler

A Friendsville woman was injured after her 2003 Kawasaki Prairie ATV struck a tree, causing her to fall off while she was plowing snow from her driveway Sunday, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Judy A. Nugent, 39, was transported by private vehicle to Garrett County Memorial Hospital. According to police, her injuries were not life threatening.

No charges were filed.

Leads Sought In McHenry Trailer Theft

The Maryland State Police is asking for the public's assistance in the investigation of a McHenry area theft earlier this month. Sometime between Jan. 6 and 16, unknown person(s) removed a 1998 White Triton trailer from a construction site along Garrett Highway at Town Center Drive. The trailer, which bore a white cover and had no markings on its body, had a Maryland license plate, #686813G. The tongue of the trailer was locked with a padlock.

Any persons with information on this incident are asked to contact Tfc. K.W. Whitacre of the McHenry barrack at 301-387-1101. Anonymity is guaranteed.

Police Arrest Man Following Foot Pursuit

Garrett County sheriff's deputies, assisted by the K-9 unit and an Oakland City Police officer, pursued on foot and found an Oakland man inside a closed business on Oakland Sang Run Road approximately two miles from where he unlawfully entered a residence after getting a stolen vehicle stuck in the snow, police said.

Brian Joseph Anderson, 24, was arrested and charged with unlawful taking of a motor vehicle, fourth-degree burglary, driving while under the influence of alcohol, driving while impaired by alcohol, and failure to remain at the scene of a property damage accident.

In other police news, Allan Gilbert Strawder, 42, Elkins, W.Va., was arrested after he was involved in a two-vehicle accident at the intersection of Garrett Highway and Roth Reynolds Road Thursday evening, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Strawder was operating a 1985 Dodge Caravan southbound on Garrett Highway and attempted to pass a 2004 Dodge truck driven by Samuel Britt Shaluta, 46, Oakland, and apparently lost sight of it because of the blowing snow, police said. Shaluta was attempting to make a left turn onto Roth Reynolds Road when he was struck by the Strawder vehicle.

Strawder was charged with driving an uninsured vehicle, driving without a license, operating an unregistered vehicle, and driving too fast for weather/road conditions.

In a separate incident, Rashun Copeland, 23, Arlington, Va., lost control of his 1994 Honda SUV on the ice- and snow-covered road and struck an embankment, causing the Honda to flip on its side.

No charges were filed in Thursday morning incident. Assisting at the scene were Maryland State Police, State Highway Administration, Oakland fire department, and Southern Garrett Rescue Squad.

DAFFODILS GROWING IN A SNOW BANK? No, daffodils are not emerging through the snow just yet, but residents may still enjoy an early preview of these spring flowers by ordering them from the American Cancer Society now. The flowers will be available for a donation of $6 a bunch or $8.50 a pot at Jan Florist from Tuesday, March 16, to Saturday, March 20, and at Arrowhead, Deep Creek Lake, and Grantsville Foodland Fresh on March 20. Persons may also place their orders by phone or get additional information by calling 1-800-287-2317. Additionally, the first 10 people who send the name of the person holding this bouquet to the American Cancer Society, c/o Doug Riley, 1303 Lynndale Road, Oakland, MD 21550, will receive a free bouquet on March 16. "Your contribution will support our efforts to decrease cancer incidents, improve chances of surviving this disease, and improve the quality of life of everyone touched by cancer," said an ACS spokesperson. "Remember, hope is contagious. And your support is all it takes to spread hope to those who need it most. Order today."

Meeting On DCL Study Moved To Late Next Month

Weather forced county officials to cancel Monday night's scheduled meeting at Garrett College to discuss the Deep Creek Watershed Economic Growth and Planning Analysis, and at this point Planning and Zoning Office director John Nelson says the session has tentatively been rescheduled for Monday, Feb. 23, at a time yet to be confirmed.

The analysis, which has been contracted out to Environmental Resource Management's Annapolis office, is intended to be a resource for county officials as they make decisions guiding the lake area's growth and development. The Feb. 23 meeting will serve as a venue for all citizens to provide their ideas and opinions on the lake's future.

Final confirmation of the public meeting's date, time, and location will be announced when it is made available.

GC Registration Open To Feb. 9

Registration for spring semester 2004 classes at Garrett College has been extended through Monday, Feb. 9, because of the recent inclement weather. Students may register at the Student Assistance Center weekdays during normal business hours.

Course schedules for the intersession and spring semester are available at the college, at branches of the Ruth Enlow Library, and at other locations. For further information, persons may call Connie Meyers at 301-387-3044. New students are advised make an appointment with an advisor before they register.

Oakland Woman Injured In Single-Vehicle Mishap

A single-vehicle accident in Mtn. Lake Park last Thursday, Jan. 22, slightly injured an Oakland woman, who was cited for not wearing her seat belt by Maryland State Police troopers.

Naomi Yvonne Whitacre, 63, was traveling east on Maryland Highway at 9:40 a.m. when she lost control on the snow-covered road east of Route 560. Her 1989 Ford Ranger ran off the road and into the ditch, and Whitacre sustained minor injuries that required a transport to Garrett County Memorial Hospital by the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad.

State troopers also investigated a Saturday, Jan. 17, single-vehicle crash in Friendsville that injured a Pennsylvania woman. The details were made available just this week.

At 3:19 p.m., a 2000 Ford Explorer operated by Dona Jo Show, 43, Markleysburg, was traveling north on Route 42 when Show lost control of the SUV on the snow-covered roadway. The Explorer traveled off the side of the road south of Second Avenue, struck an embankment, and overturned.

Show was transported to Garrett Memorial by the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad. The Friendsville Volunteer Fire Department assisted at the scene.

Child Care Training Grant Being Sought By Judy Center

Overlook Judy Center is in the process of applying for a Maryland State Department of Education Early Child Care and Education Enhancement Grant. If obtained, the funds can be used to assist child care providers in obtaining or maintaining national or state standards, and to offer professional development that will lead to increased competency and credentialing of staff working with children from birth to age 6.

A spokesperson said any licensed child care provider in Garrett County could become a partner in the grant application and be involved in developing the concept for the grant. Local providers may also be recipients of training, technical assistance, and classroom materials needed for accreditation.

Child care providers who are interested in learning more about how they could participate in or benefit from the grant may call 301-334-4211.

Overlook Judy Center is operated by Garrett County Community Action in cooperation with the Garrett County Board of Education.

Driver Injured After Vehicle Hits Plow Truck

A Pasadena resident tapped his brakes to allow a county snow plow to pass on Sand Flat Road just south of Long View Lane Wednesday, when his vehicle slid on the ice directly into the front of the snow plow blade, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Anthony Mele, 21, was transported by Southern Rescue Squad to Garrett County Memorial Hospital for treatment of injuries. The operator of the plow truck, Charles Roth Jr., 50, Oakland, was not injured.

Deer Park firefighters and a member of the Deep Creek Volunteer Fire Company responded to the 6:40 p.m. incident.

Poor road conditions contributed to the accident, police said.

Oakland Town Elections Slated For March 8

The Oakland municipal election will be held Monday, March 8, with polls open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

The mayor and three council members will be elected. The terms will expire for Asa McCain, mayor; and Kenneth Gotsch, Margaret Jamison, and Mary Lou Stemple, councilpersons.

Others now serving are Frank Custer, Lynn McDaniel, and Harvey "Jay" Moyer.

The last day to file for office is Friday, Feb. 27, at 4 p.m.

Any resident of Oakland over the age of 18 may register to vote in the municipal election at Oakland City Hall during regular office hours until 4:30 p.m. on Friday, Feb. 27. The town of Oakland maintains a separate register of voters; however, if persons have registered at the county Board of Elections after Jan. 1, 1990, and are a resident of Oakland they are automatically qualified to vote in the municipal election.

The deadline for obtaining absentee ballots is Monday, March 1, at 4 p.m.

Governor Proposes More Money For Need-Based Financial Aid

More Maryland low- and moderate-income students will be able to attend college if the state legislature approves a proposal by Governor Robert L. Ehrlich Jr. to add $15.9 million in state funding to a financial aid program that assists Maryland's neediest students.

The funding, included in the State's FY 2005 budget and presented to the legislature, would benefit Guaranteed Access Grant and Educational Assistance Grant, which comprise the Educational Excellence Awards Program, and the Part-Time Grant Program. The increase in need-based aid represents a commitment from Governor Ehrlich to ensure that all Maryland students have access and opportunity to pursue a higher education.

"In the face of rising education costs, we must do all that we can to show our students who can least afford college, that we believe in them and that we want them to succeed," said Governor Robert L. Ehrlich Jr.

"I thank and applaud Governor Ehrlich for his commitment to wanting to make more need-based aid available," said Calvin W. Burnett, acting secretary of higher education. "As the state experiences one of its toughest economic times in history, it would have been easy to cut all financial aid programs, but the governor wanted to make sure that our needy students are not left behind."

The Guaranteed Access Grant is open to high school seniors who enroll at a Maryland two- or four-year college or university as a full-time, degree-seeking student. The total family income for a family of four, for example, may not exceed $23,920. The award amount of the Guaranteed Access Grant equals 100 percent of financial need; the minimum annual award is $400 and the maximum award is $11,600.

The Educational Assistance Grant is open to current high school seniors and full-time, degree-seeking undergraduates. The amount of the Educational Assistance Grant equals 35 percent of financial need. The minimum annual award is $400 and the maximum is $2,700.

The Part-Time Grant is open to part-time, degree-seeking undergraduates and students who are dually enrolled in a high school or home school program and an institution of higher education. Eligibility is based on student need. The minimum award is $200 and the maximum award is $1,000.

In addition to need-based aid, an additional $1 million has been allocated for the Janet L. Hoffman Loan Assistance Repayment Program to benefit teachers and nurses in workforce shortage areas. To be eligible, teachers or nurses must have graduated from a Maryland college and must be employed full time in state or local government or nonprofit organization, providing service to low-income, underserved residents or in underserved areas in the state. The program provides assistance in the repayment of loans used to pay college expenses. To be eligible the nurse's or teacher's salary cannot exceed $50,000 and, if married, the combined salaries cannot exceed $110,000.

Other higher education budget items of significance:

•To make more money available for need-based aid, the Maryland Higher Education Commission will not accept applications for HOPE Scholarship programs for 2004-2005. Students already receiving the award will continue to receive it as long as they remain eligible.

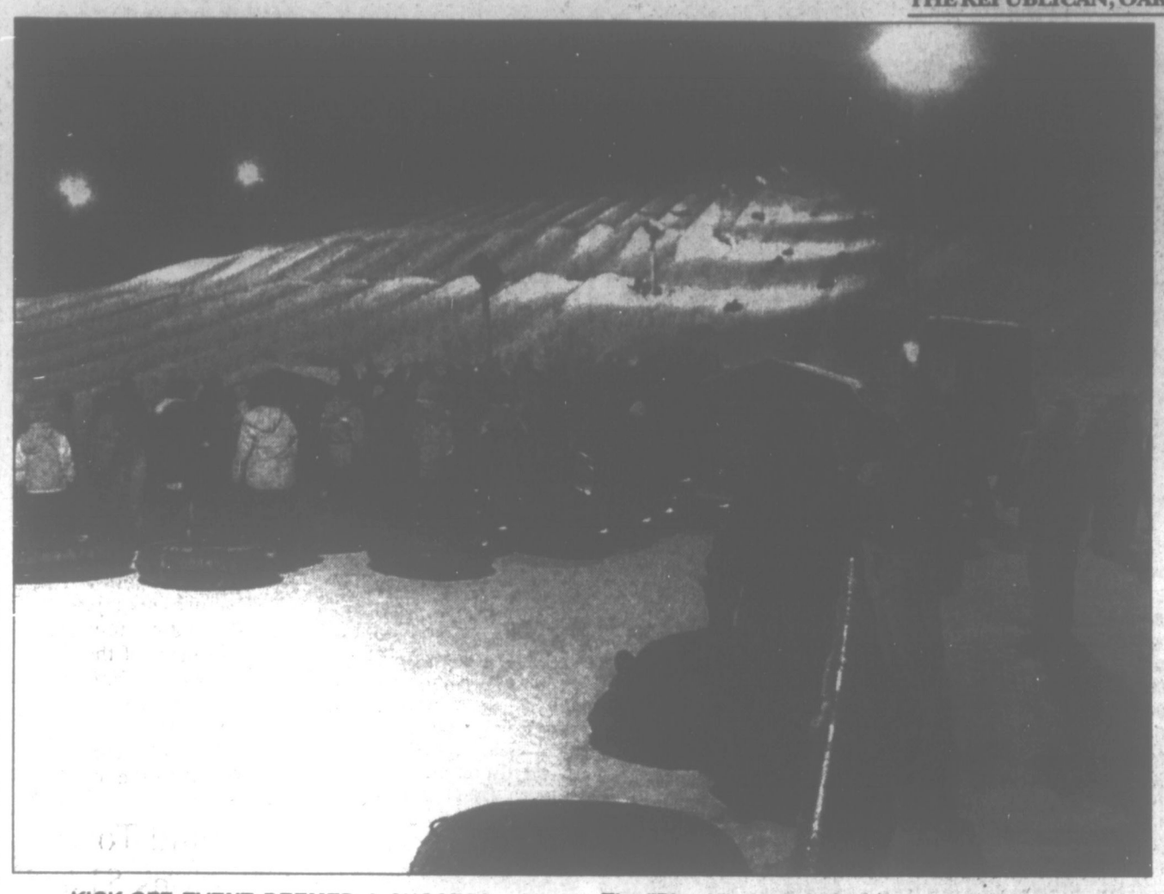
•The Access and Success program and additional program funding for the Historically Black Colleges and Universities' Enhancement fund will total $12 million. These programs are intended to raise graduation rates, provide enhancements and to fund debt service on $75 million in capital projects at Maryland's four HBCUs.

•Direct aid to community colleges, excluding fringe benefits, totals $158.7 million, an increase of 2.7 percent.

•Proposed funding of aid to non-public colleges and universities will remain level for FY 2005.

•The FY 2005 allowance for the Maryland Higher Education Commission totals $342.8 million – an increase of 10.8 percent above the revised fiscal year 2004 appropriation.

The Maryland Higher Education Commission will administer over $75 million in financial aid this year to Maryland residents.



KICK-OFF EVENT DEEMED A SUCCESS – More than 300 Garrett County youth took advantage of the recent "Play Hard. Live Clean." kick-off event at the Bear Claw Snow Tubing Park at the Wisp, according to Kendra Todd of the Garrett County Health Department. "Youth from all four of the county's middle and high schools came for the tubing, as well as college students who were home on winter break," said Brenda Frazee, event spokesperson. "It was very generous of the Wisp Resort to provide this no-cost event to our county youth. Many parents and youth themselves expressed their gratitude for the fun night." The "Play Hard. Live Clean." campaign is designed to promote positive lifestyles among youth all year long. It is an initiative of the Combating Underage Drinking Committee in partnership with the Wisp Resort and the Health Department. Funding for the campaign is provided in part by a grant from the Governor's Office of Crime Control and Prevention and Garrett County Partnership for Children and Families Inc. Future events are in the planning stages. For more information, persons may call the Health Department at 301-334-7730 or 301-895-3111 or visit its web site at garretthealth.org.

Theft Charge Not Prosecuted By State's Attorney

A theft charge against James William Miller, 48, was not prosecuted in Garrett County Circuit Court by order of the state's attorney. Miller was charged with one count of theft over $500 in value following an investigation by a Garrett County sheriff's officer.

According to the officer's reports, a "huge" rock, valued at $1,000, had been taken from a residence along Steyer Mine Road. The rock was later located at Miller's Monte Vista Road residence.

According to the report, Miller admitted to taking the rock while working with the Garrett County Roads Department. The rock has since been returned to the Steyer Mine Road residence.

Three Arrested For Drugs After Investigation

Three people were arrested on drug charges following a month-long investigation by Garrett County Narcotics Task Force investigators, which culminated in a traffic stop on South 11th Street near Oakland on Friday.

A search of the vehicle uncovered a quantity of marijuana with an approximate street value of $1,000. The occupants, Jimmy Lee Barkley, 24, and Rachel Robinette, 25, both of Morgantown, W.Va., were arrested.

In addition, a search and seizure warrant was served on an N Street apartment in Mtn. Lake Park shortly after the traffic stop. At that time, Erica Robinette, 23, Mtn. Lake Park, was arrested.

Barkley and Rachel Robinette were both charged with possession with intent to distribute marijuana, possession of marijuana, and conspiracy to distribute marijuana.

Erica Robinette was charged with three counts of distribution of marijuana, three counts of possession of marijuana, and conspiracy to distribute marijuana.

Task Force investigators were assisted by uniform personnel from the Garrett County Sheriff's Office.

Montgomery Co. Delegate Targets Identity Theft

by Marc Lightdale
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – Two new Maryland bills are targeting computer crimes – the growing problem of identity theft and hacking into government and public utility computers. The bills are the work of Delegate Susan Lee, D-Montgomery, an attorney, but at Wednesday's news conference to introduce the legislation she had plenty of support from others, including Montgomery County state's attorney Douglas Gansler and Prince George's County state's attorney Glenn F. Ivey.

Although interruptions to computer systems have been brief and have not caused extensive damage, Lee said, "computer experts are justifiably worried that the states' computer systems are vulnerable to cyber-terrorism."

Maryland ranks 11th nationally in identity theft victims per 100,000 people, while the District of Columbia is ranked 12th, according to information from Ivey's office.

Identity theft occurs when someone steals a name, Social Security number, bank account number, credit card number, or other personal identifying information and uses the information for illegal purchases or other frauds.

A sense of urgency exists in trying to curb identity theft, Lee said, quoting FTC statistics showing the problem is increasing nationally.

The first of Lee's bills calls for a task force, made up of three Maryland senators, three delegates, the state attorney general, and the State Police superintendent, to study the issue. The panel would have a deadline of Dec. 31, 2005.

Gansler said the Internet has made identity theft easier and much more common.

The particular problem of identity theft among the elderly captured Lee's attention, she said. People who live on fixed incomes and suffer identity thefts, she said, can see their lives ruined, and they have little wherewithal to combat the fraud.

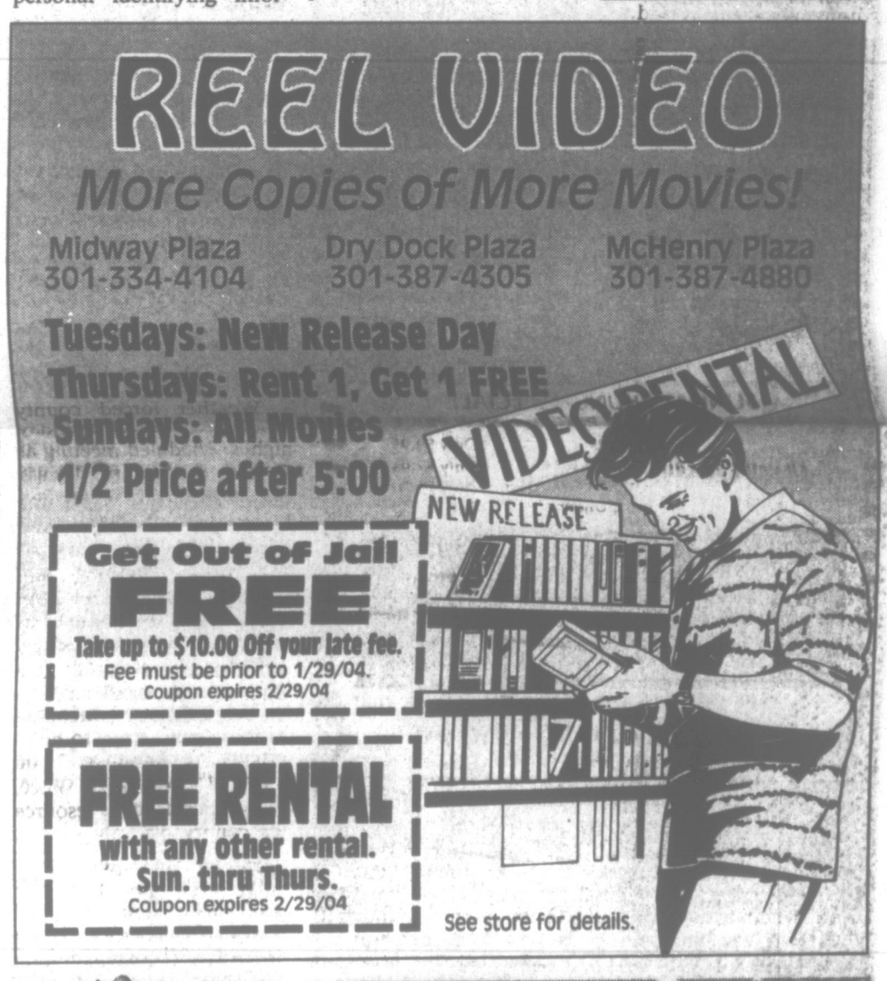
"The criminals are running up huge charges on people's credit card bills," said Lee. "At the same time, law enforcement will assume that you are the criminal."

Hackers of computers owned by the Maryland state government or used by public utilities would face a $1,000 fine and up to three years in prison under Lee's second bill. If the computer break-in nets more than $10,000, the perpetrator can be found guilty of a felony, with a penalty of up to a $10,000 fine and 10 years in prison.

The bill is designed to deter hackers who could crash thousands of computers, shut down courts, or perform other mayhem, Lee said.

"This bill would preserve the security and sanctity of government," said Gansler. "Homeland security and the protection of our national security interests are a top priority for Marylanders."

Read. Then Recycle.



Let's Stay Safe...

We are living dangerously in Garrett County right now, simply because of the severe weather conditions that have been upon us for about three straight weeks. It is not a time for taking needless risk of any kind.

Driving an automobile in these conditions is downright dangerous, and should be limited as much as possible. The single-digit temperatures make it difficult for crews to get rid of the layers of ice that are on many of our roads. The wind and snow not only block the roadways, but cause whiteouts that can be deadly, an example of which, sadly, is reported on the front page of this newspaper today. We therefore also beseech drivers to please, please travel with headlights on, to pay particular attention to their speed, and (though it should not even have to be stated) to wear one's seatbelt. Vehicle emergency kits, complete with a blanket or two, are strongly recommended.

Looking after each other is also more crucial during such difficult weather conditions. Checking on the health and welfare of neighbors, especially the elderly, is highly encouraged. Making sure they have food, water, electricity, needed medications, and warmth; shoveling snow out of their walkways; and offering to transport them to necessary appointments are all ways to help keep people safe.

Being careful with home-heating sources, particularly wood-burning stoves and kerosene heaters, is vital. Making sure one's furnace is operating properly, checking flues for cleanliness and cracks, and making sure one's smoke alarm batteries are good are all recommended. Having at least one working carbon monoxide detector in the house is also an excellent idea.

Oh, yes, and bring the pets inside.

We Garrett Countians are pretty tough when it comes to enduring about anything Mother Nature throws at us during the winter. But it can't hurt to be reminded of how best to take care of ourselves and each other.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

Kudos to Jeremy Carr on his most interesting article on the 40th anniversary of B-52 bomber crash! It must have been difficult to get first-hand info after so long a period of time, but he was very attentive to detail. I feel he has done a great service in preserving this bit of Garrett County history.

Vickie Evans
Ft. Sumner, NM

To the Editor:

This is to inform you that in the first quarter but that the Garrett County Sanitary District has updated its invoicing system and is making available to customers the opportunity to pay online. However, the Sanitary District seems to suggests in its mailing that a user fee – which in actuality amounts to an almost 10% fee – is "nominal."

This is patently ridiculous. While e-government services being implemented in Garrett County are to be lauded, prohibitive fee structures are counterproductive and are a disincentive for automating the payment process. I would think that increasing the efficiency and yield of collections is an objective that the government is attempting to accomplish in order to streamline its responsibilities and save taxpayers further expenditures, but this will be undermined by the additional service charge. It appears that the Sanitary District has attempted to contract out collections to a private entity, but I would suggest it needs to reassess its strategy.

Sincerely,
Paul Fekete

To the Editor:

I have witnessed a great injustice; an injustice, that in time, will affect the community.

How long will our last name determine whether or not we are discriminated against? What happens to our children when they learn to discriminate? If everyone instills discrimination, we will have close-minded children. How is Garrett County expected to grow when everyone is close-minded?

I ask because I personally would like to see Oakland, the lake area, and McHenry become the next Pittsburgh. Then our names will have nothing to do with our jail sentence, when hearsay merely gets overlooked. Hearsay is, and should be, insufficient. But in Oakland hearsay gets someone in trouble. Why? Good question. Maybe the lack of real crime.

How is it that when three people have the same story, and one is from a secretary of a lawyer, it gets overturned by one story? Who knows? I have a feeling it has something to do with our last name. Whatever the reasons for this injustice, I feel we as people can change and evolve. But maybe not.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,
Donald A. DeWitt

To the Editor:

I couldn't agree more with the writer of the recent letter on property taxes. In my opinion, we have been paying way too much for years, considering the huge increase in the assessable base. Instead of giving us lower tax rates the trend seems to be to find more ways to spend our money!

However, is it any wonder that our local officials behave this way? At last year's meeting on the tax rate, which they are required by state law to hold, exactly two citizens, myself and one other person, showed up. Now, come on! This is bound to give the impression that there is absolutely no political price to be paid no matter whose pet project is funded.

Almost everyone I talk to says property taxes are too high, but the only chance of convincing those in power to see it that way is to fill up the entire meeting room with everyone you know feels the same. Get several hundred citizens in there waving their tax bills and you just might get some attention.

By the way, if you expect to get any tax relief at all in the foreseeable future, it sounds to me like you'd better make your point soon. In a Jan. 5 Baltimore Sun article our county administrator was quoted as saying they plan to spend "more money than we ever have" as our part of a "public-private" project at the lake. The figure mentioned was 10 million bucks or more, over the next five years. That's our local share!

With this kind of money flying ouT the door, how much of a tax cut do you think they plan to give back to the "little guy"?

All these tax dollars to help fund a business venture that if successful, is going to make more millions for a few already wealthy developers while ultimately providing mostly low-wage service jobs for area residents?

It's your money, folks. Hope to see a few more of you at this year's tax meeting.

Jerry Plauger
Mtn. Lake Park

To the Editor:

I am writing as a voting citizen of Garrett County and I would like to know where the justice is in this county. My son was given a 13-year sentence at D.O.C. for something he didn't do, basically because I am disabled and have a limited income and couldn't afford to retain a private attorney for him. He had to get a public defender, who tries to plea bargain every case he/she gets.

His case is one of two cases that were within a month of each other in which their girlfriends of two years or more didn't want them anymore, so they both cried kidnapping, rape, and other charges. My son was the second person to be charged, but the girls' stories were exactly alike, except my son had carjacking charges because they were in her car. I don't understand how the officials from the sheriff's office didn't look into how much alike these two cases are, and that these two girls knew each other and attended the same church – the same church that some high ranking officials from the sheriff's office attend. Also, the evidence had a lot of contradictions. The reports from the police and the accuser were different from those of the E.R. doctor.

There wasn't enough evidence to find my son guilty, but the public defender had us both so afraid that he would get 30 to 50 years if we went to trial. So he took an alford plea for 8 to 13 years and the judge gave him 13 years for carjacking. I believe if he had gone to trial the honest people of Garrett County that would have been on the jury would have found him innocent, but because his public defender was not willing to work for him, he will lose 13 years of his life and 13 years of his child's life that his girlfriend is carrying.

Even though he is incarcerated he still has his parental rights, and I'm begging for a lawyer to take his case pro bono to get visitation with his child. He has lost a lot for something he didn't do. I hope and pray that there is a lawyer out there who can find it in his or her heart to help this young man to see his child.

I would also like the Miller family to know that James and I are both praying for them.

Respectfully,
Pat Stanton

To the Editor:

This is a belated response to your New Year's prediction that George W. Bush will win the election with a comfortable and unprecedented (for him) majority in November.

I assume the president's electorate will include the millionaires and billionaires who benefit most from his tax policies. Shareholders of international corporations profiting from "free" trade policies can also be expected to support his candidacy.

Will his comfortable majority also include the millions of Americans who have lost jobs or work at minimum wage under his tenure?

Will it include the millions of Americans who have lost health insurance and cannot afford the premiums to participate in the "best health care system in the world"?

Will it include the millions of Americans who cannot afford to buy prescription drugs from the world's most profitable and best subsidized drug companies?

Will it include the millions of Americans who understand that this country has committed billions of dollars and 500+ American lives to prosecute a war premised on political lies, distortion of "intelligence," and manipulation of propaganda and mass hysteria?

Will it include the millions of Americans who face retirement with no pensions, no savings, and an under-funded Social Security system?

Will it include the millions of Americans dissatisfied with our schools and unable to meet rising tuition costs at colleges and universities?

Will it include the millions of Americans who live in poverty or who have become rotating-door tenants of our thriving holding-tank prison industry?

Will it include the millions of Americans concerned about the trashing of federal environmental regulations and the impact of the president's environmental policies on our earth, water, and air?

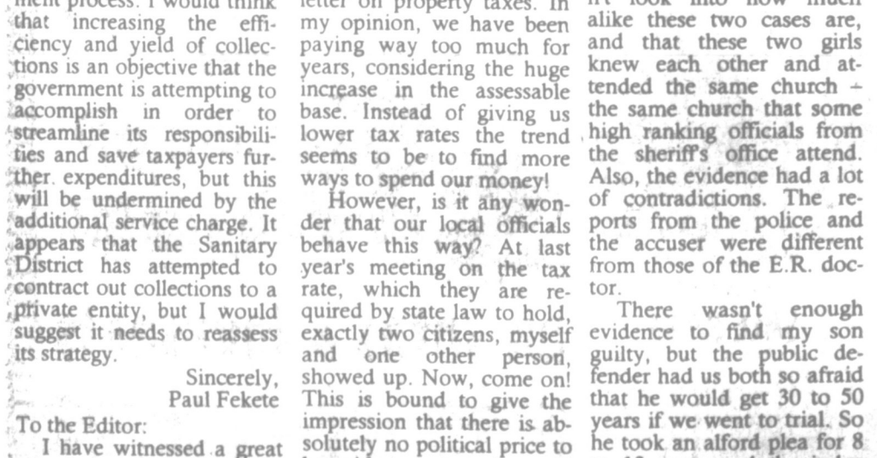
Will it include the millions of Americans suffering from the unprecedented economic polarization of our society?

Will it include the millions of Americans alarmed about the crumbling international image of the United States and the disdain of traditional friends for our arrogant disregard of world opinion?

Will it include the millions of Americans who refrain from mindless displays of zip-a-dee-do-da patriotism and flag waving primarily to assure one another that we're still "Numba One!" by George and by God?

Will George W. Bush win in November by a comfortable majority as you predict? I doubt it. If he does, though, it will clearly demonstrate that the average American voter is even dumber than I am–and that too will be cause for concern.

Sincerely,
Steve Schlosnagle



Want Schools

more quickly if it proceeds with the annexation.

"Mtn. Lake Park opposes this, from the standpoint that we're going to do the same," Mtn. Lake Park mayor Leo Martin told the commissioners about Oakland's plan.

The Garrett County Board of Education approved Oakland's annexation of the schools on Jan. 13. Currently, the board is paying out-of-town water and wastewater rates to Oakland for Southern High and out-of-town water rates for Dennett Road.

Oakland mayor Asa McCain pointed out in a letter to the school board that the BOE would benefit if Oakland annexed the two schools.

"Your water rate would decrease by $2.75 per 1,000 gallons used," McCain wrote. "This would be a savings for the Board of Education of over $5,000 based on the water usage for last year alone. The quarterly service fee would also decrease by $7 for each metered bill."

McCain also estimated that for Southern High School, the board's sewer rate would be reduced by $.25 per 1,000 gallons of water used.

Oakland councilman Jay Moyer told the commissioners that the town would continue to supply water for the football field.

"It's advantageous for us to be in a municipality," said Dr. Wendell Teets, superintendent of schools. The Board of Education is on the record as supporting Oakland's annexation, he said, but it did not want to cause any problems with property owners or the two municipalities.

He was also concerned that Southern High School would have adequate water pressure. He noted that some Mtn. Lake Park residents have water pressure problems.

Mtn. Lake Park had also received approval from the school board earlier to annex the properties. In November, however, the commissioners denied that town's land classification waiver. The denial did not mean that the town could not proceed with its plans to annex the schools. It just could not enforce any zoning regulations for at least five years after the annexation because of zoning inconsistencies between the Mtn. Lake Park's charter and the county's master plan.

Since the denial, Mtn. Lake Park officials have explored various legal and zoning options, while continuing with their plans to annex Southern High and Dennett Road Elementary as well as Yough Glade Elementary School and other properties.

Commissioner Fred Holliday asked to see a map of the proposed annexation area. "I would like to see which one this fits into better," he said.

"Because of concerns in delineating the area involved," said Commissioner Ernie Gregg, "we'll address these concerns in-house." He said the commissioners would try to render a decision on granting Oakland the waiver by next Tuesday.

To Decide Fate

The higher fees for unneutered and unspayed animals encourages responsible pet ownership, said Rodney Glotfelty, county health officer.

The fee increases also reflect the cost of enforcing the changes in the ordinance, noted Frantz. Currently, licenses are $3 per year or $1 per year for dogs that are spayed or neutered.

Fingerboard Road resident Pat Newhall wondered, however, how licensing cats would prevent people from feeding feral cats. Her husband Charles said he opposed the ordinance because it "only penalized responsible pet owners."

"This will be complaint driven by and large," said Frantz. When someone makes a complaint against a cat, if it has an owner, a license will tell control officers who he or she is. Cats will not be required to wear their licenses, however, said Frantz.

Several residents noted in various ways that society, including responsible pet owners, should pay for the actions of irresponsible pet owners. For example, noted Kitty Gonder, some people do not have children in school, yet they still need to help pay for the education system.

Would not a rabies tag provide that information? other residents asked. Glotfelty said requiring licenses would provide the database with the names of pet owners. With rabies tags, authorities would have to search various veterinarians' records to find the pet owners.

Some residents also felt that the problem of roaming cats and dogs was a town problem and not a country or countywide problem.

"There's a problem countywide with cats and dogs," said Bonnie Zimmerman, animal control officer. She said there was no area in the county that did not have a problem with roaming dogs and cats.

"Currently, the county had no authority to deal with cats," said Gary Mullich, director of General Services. Cat owners have had a free ride, and it is only fair that they assist with the cost of the program, he said

Kennel and pet shop licenses may also increase. Kennels authorized to house less than 25 dogs or cats and pet shops currently pay $25. Kennels housing more than 25 animals now pay $50. The ordinance committee recommends doubling those fees.

The update will also "cleanup" some of the language and clarify violations and enforcement issues in the ordinance, said Frantz. Currently, the ordinance limits fines to a minimum of $5 and a maximum of $25.

"You can call yourself a kennel [owner] if you want," he noted, "but you still have to maintain standards." Existing kennels will have a certain amount of time to comply with the regulations listed in the ordinance, said Mullich.

Gladys Maust, Casselman Veterinarian Services, asked if residents would be responsible for abandoned pets that were dropped off at their barns.

Frantz said they would have the option of having the shelter pick the animals up, or taking responsibility for them if the farmers decide to allow them to stay.

"It is necessary for the sake of animals to have this ordinance passed," said Bernadine Friend, executive director of the Garrett County Humane Society. The ordinance would allow the shelter to pick up feral cats that would otherwise freeze or starve to death.

"This gives us recourse in county government to do something about people who don't take care of their animals," said Dr. Paul Deal.

Copies of the ordinance may be obtained at the commissioners' office at the courthouse in Oakland. Residents may submit letters expressing their opinions of the document to the commissioners at 203 South 4th Street, Courthouse, Room 207, Oakland, MD 21550.

Massive Spending Bill Includes Almost $500 Million for Projects in Maryland

by Melissa McGrath
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON – The omnibus spending bill that cleared the Senate last Thursday includes almost $500 million for projects throughout Maryland – the fourth-largest amount of "earmarked" appropriations in the country.

The $477.9 million in Maryland projects are spread across the state, and range from a $40 million light rail project in Baltimore to $50,000 for autism research in Bethesda.

Critics said the amount of "pork" spending in the fiscal 2004 federal budget is out of control, particularly at a time when the nation is facing record deficits.

"We're going to, by far, blow other years out of the water as far as totals," said Keith Ashdown, vice president of policy for Taxpayers for Common Sense, which tallied the earmarks in the $328 billion budget bill that was approved last week.

"We're on the cusp of a record deficit and . . . we've asked over and over for lawmakers to tighten their belts," Ashdown said.

But lawmakers defended Maryland's slice of the pie, noting the large concentration of federal facilities in the state that will be beneficiaries of the earmarked funds. Even Ashdown conceded that not all earmarks are bad, especially in Maryland where so many federal agencies are located.

Maryland's $477.9 million in earmarks is divided among 129 projects. Pennsylvania, by comparison, will receive about $60 million less than Maryland, but that earmarked money will be spread among almost five times as many projects.

The $328 billion omnibus spending bill, which passed the Senate 65-28, combines seven appropriations bills for fiscal 2004 and includes nearly 8,000 earmarks, totaling nearly $11 billion. California had the most pork in the omnibus, with $965.5 million, followed by New York with $507.9 million, Alaska with $495.8 million and Maryland.

While some critics say the "pork" spending is wasteful, Rep. Steny Hoyer, D-Mechanicsville, said through a spokeswoman that the funds will help keep jobs in Maryland.

"The federal facilities in our area receive millions in federal funds each year to conduct extraordinary research and perform outstanding work," said Hoyer, a member of the House Appropriations Committee. "I am fully committed to ensuring that our nation continues to invest in this research, which makes our food safer, supports our law enforcement, and provides hundreds of thousands of jobs to our region."

More than half the money earmarked for Maryland will go toward construction of federal buildings or research projects at the many federal agencies located in the state.

For example, more than $146 million was earmarked for the U.S. Census Bureau building in Suitland, and $42 million was allocated to build a Food and Drug Administration laboratory in White Oak. Chesapeake Bay research and cleanup efforts, and organizations such as the Chesapeake Bay Foundation, garnered about $12 million of the state's earmarks.

The Federal Transit Administration's New Start transportation projects are also a major part of the earmarked funds, including $65 million for the Metrorail extension to Largo and $40 million for the light rail project in Baltimore.

But there are scores of other, smaller projects, like $32,000 for Safe Haven projects in Hyattsville and $100,000 for the Baltimore Child Abuse Center.

A spokeswoman for Sen. Barbara Mikulski, D-Md., and a member of the Senate Appropriations Committee, said the earmarks are a fair way to ensure states get what they need.

"[Mikulski and Hoyer] work hard to take care of Maryland," said Amy Hagovsky, Mikulski's press secretary.

Ashdown conceded that some of the Maryland earmarks are merited, but he doubted that 129 projects were necessary. "You can't judge a good and bad earmark," he said. "Part of it is federal buildings, part of it is these big transit projects – and then there is another slew of 120 earmarks."

Transportation Task Force Scorns Gasoline Tax, Backs ICC Bonds

by Fulvio Cativo
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – The Ehrlich administration's Transportation Task Force Tuesday unveiled its funding recommendations for construction of the $1.7 billion Inter-county Connector, favoring a combination of bonds backed by future federal funding and projected revenue sources and rejecting a gas-tax increase.

The panel's recommendations were presented during a joint session of the House's Appropriations and Ways and Means committees. Among the panel's findings was a vote of support for the Department of Transportation's recommendation to increase the six-year capital program by $4.7 billion. The group's summary said that funding would address two-thirds of the needs during the program period.

But the plan to fund the ICC took center stage among legislators, many representing districts close to the highway's proposed route through Montgomery and Prince George's counties to join Interstates 270 and 95. Delegate Peter Franchot, D-Montgomery, chairman of the Subcommittee for Transportation and the Environment, called himself "the tip of the iceberg," of a group of lawmakers who won't support the administration's favored bonding method unless a gas tax increase is approved for the state's transportation program.

The Ehrlich administration has proposed using Grant Anticipation Revenue Vehicle, or GARVEE, bonds to fund from 53 to 59 percent of ICC construction. GARVEE bonds are issued by states and secured by future federal highway and transit funds, according to the Maryland Department of Legislative Services.

The task force recommended using $600 million in Maryland Transportation Authority GARVEE bonds; $450 million from MdTA bonds, derived from seven existing toll facilities; $500 million from MdTA bonds supported by future ICC toll revenue; and $150 million from the Transportation Trust Fund for the ICC.

"The governor has said that he is disinclined to support a gas tax, but he is looking at other potential user fees that will be guaranteed for transportation programs [and] projects in every corner of the state," said Transportation Secretary Robert L. Flanagan, at the joint committee hearing.

Ehrlich Proposes $847 Million Capital Budget, Delays Tax Relief

by Rolando Garcia
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – Gov. Robert Ehrlich's $847 million capital budget includes money for new college campus construction and funds to help clean up the Chesapeake Bay, but puts off the property tax relief Ehrlich had pledged to seek this year.

Although it is well under last year's $984 million capital budget, Ehrlich's new budget still contains $100 million for public school construction and more than $250 million for universities and community colleges.

The capital budget released Tuesday is separate from the state's regular operating budget and supports the building and maintenance of state facilities through bonds, user fees, and federal funds.

To close an operating budget shortfall last year, Ehrlich took $187 million earmarked for debt service from the capital budget. To make up the difference, the state portion of property taxes was raised from 8.4 cents to 13.2 cents per $100 of assessed value, meaning the owner of a $200,000 home paid an additional $96.

At the time, Ehrlich said he would repay the money and restore property taxes to their original level, but the need to close an $800 million budget shortfall this year means tax relief will have to wait, said Neil Bergsman, budget analysis director for the Department of Budget and Management.

"The governor still intends to reduce property taxes, but we can't do it until the state can afford it," Bergsman said.

Among the projects included in the spending plan is $98 million to upgrade wastewater treatment plants to lower nitrogen levels in the Chesapeake.

Ehrlich also proposed $56 million for a Biological Sciences Research Building at the University of Maryland College Park.

"[The research building] has been one of our top priorities for some time," said George Cathcart, a university spokesman at College Park. However, Cathcart added, the university was still feeling the effects of last year's budget cuts, and, while the governor's proposed operating budget makes no further cuts, the university will need additional state funds to remain competitive with other top public universities.

Other university projects include $19 million toward a new dental school at the University of Maryland Baltimore, $26 million for new academic and student services buildings at St. Mary's College of Maryland and $20 million for five projects at Coppin State College, a historically black school in Baltimore.

School Systems Solicit Board For More Construction Monies

by Mary C. Schneidau
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – Around the State House, it's dubbed the "beg-a-thon," and there's a good reason.

Lawmakers, school board members, and parents from every corner of Maryland huddled around a podium on the second floor of the State House for four hours Wednesday for their annual plea before the three-member Board of Public Works to grant them millions of additional dollars for school construction.

The board – Gov. Robert L. Ehrlich Jr., Comptroller William Donald Schaefer, and Treasurer Nancy K. Kopp – has given $75 million of the original county requests of more than $378.2 million for capital improvements to public schools. Counties were competing Wednesday for a piece of the additional $25 million earmarked for school construction.

The same appeal was heard throughout the day: A boom in student enrollment has led to overcrowding in public schools, and new construction is needed as soon as possible.

"My God, where are we going to put them all?" was St. Mary's Democrat Sen. Roy Dyson's reaction, he said, when he learned of the growth in his county schools.

Montgomery County has 3,000 new students each year, County Executive Douglas Duncan said. There are 146 portable classrooms in Frederick County, School Board president Linda Naylor said. Charles County public schools are more than 1,000 students over capacity, said Margaret Young, vice chairman of the county board of education. The population of Calvert County is 21 percent school-aged children, and some schools are at 140 percent of capacity, said Superintendent of Schools J. Kenneth Horsmon.

"We're cramming a lot of kids into the schools down there," said David F. Hale, president of the Calvert County Board of Commissioners. Dyson, who also appeared on behalf of Calvert and Charles counties, pointed out that several counties claimed they were the fastest-growing in the state, which drew laughter from board members.

Most counties asked the board for more money to build new schools or reno-

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

I was never a big cinema buff, but I can remember the good times going to a movie with Mother and Dad. We got on our pajamas and were off to the drive-in. I think the first movie I ever saw was The Bridge On The River Kwai. The whistling theme from the movie still is firm in my brain. I recently saw it again on a classical movie channel.

The first time I was ever in a big indoor movie theatre was to see The Sound of Music. I still love that movie.

Now that I have seen so many old classic movies, I can see what films contributed to our collective conscience. They established many primary stereotypes as well as history, as was in the best interest of America. I saw more westerns in the last year than in the rest of my life. Only a few presented Indians as even real human beings. They usually are portrayed as savages. But you see Sitting Bull, Geronimo, and Crazy Horse as the first defenders of the American life. After all, the Indians were the first Americans.

One very common theme of the early West is the battle between the cattlemen and the small farmer settler with crops and sheep. The Sea of Grass shows how complex the issue is portrayed. It included as well how women and family fit into the West and American culture. First of all they had to know their place and leave real life in their men's hands. They mostly are portrayed as limiting men's freedom, but sometimes a female role played a more important and difficult role.

The complex and confusing question of what law and order play in America is freedom and the pursuit of happiness. It seems to me a poor way to solve conflicts, as was firmly entrenched in the American brain. You didn't have many thinker-type heroes, but what we had was a tough guy with a big gun.

We have come a long way since the day of the Knights of the Round Table who tried to establish the idea of right over might. In the westerns the only right thing is to follow orders. The movie portrayal of the U.S. Army is to never question authority, but blindly follow orders, right or wrong.

They certainly made lots of movies during the 1940s and 1950s about World War II – musicals, sad and sentimental. The most tear-jerking or scary are the ones that feature the Nazis.

Of all the Bittinger young men who marched off to the war, a few left behind the women whom they later married and had children. I do know that Ken Buckel was already going with Harriett. But the parents of the second wave of "baby boomers," like my parents and some others, probably did not find their mates until they came home post war, and then they got busy and started their families as soon as possible when they found the right girl.

I know that Joe Buckel married an English girl, Rose, the only war bride I know around this neck of the woods. I did a little research about their story. My informer was their second son, Gary. They met and were already an item before "D-Day." Gary told me that Rose's family lost three homes in the London Blitz, and she told her sons about a memory of a kiss by her Yankee boyfriend on a London Street before he was shipped out to D-Day. She believed that she would never see him again, but luckily she did, and when they were reunited post D-Day the first thing they did was get hitched. Their first baby, David, was actually born in England. I never knew that until today. Rose finally arrived in Bittinger with a big baby boy in her arms, but baby Dave lost several pounds on the voyage over from England. I imagine Bittinger would be a pretty big shock to a London girl. This is a story good enough for a book or a movie.

I talked to Gary on the phone, because it was just too bad for even a trip to Bittinger. The amount of snow dumped on this mountaintop is really almost unbelievable. It is a beautiful snow. Each twig on my little maple tree is frosted, and ice burdens the big pine boughs. It wouldn't stay very long if our winds were really blowing. Thank goodness they haven't started yet. With this much snow and the blower turned on, nobody will be going anywhere.

Gary remembers the first bad snow when he was 10 years old. In 1957 he and his dad walked on top of a hard crust over great mounds of snow to Jennings, where the roads were open enough for Ken to drive the rest of the way to Grantsville to get a critical, needed part for their pump.

Last week my brother Barry had to drive from Frederick to Waynesburg, Pa., to get a part for his furnace. Even down in Frederick the temperature was near zero degree. This storm is also hitting the eastern part of Maryland. Landon Southerly reported to his dad that even in St. Mary's City they got some snow.

I want to wrap up this column so I can paint the view from my window. I already did a quick crayon sketch of our cat "Tiger" watching the birds on our bird feeder outside the window. I do want to do a real painting of that scene.

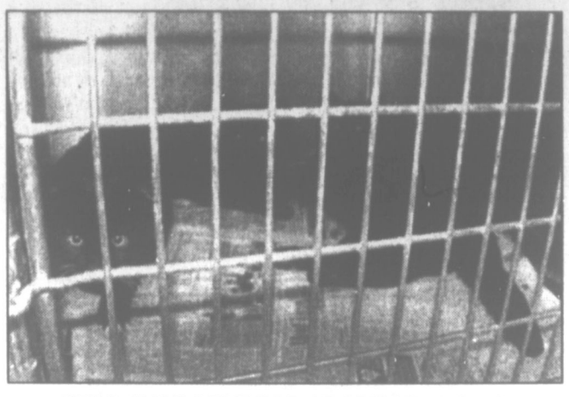
I was inspired for another painting of the scene I saw on a drive on Rock Lodge Road all the way to Rt. 219. Although I did not see any skater, I do have an old photo of Sonja Henie when she was only 12 years old and when she won the gold medal in the mid twentieth century. So I combined the two images into one painting. That painting, along with another one of an imagined scene of a western pack hawk, will be displayed at the Gallery in Oakland the rest of the winter and the first part of spring.

I wish I could take a drive around to take pictures of this winter wonderland, but I doubt if I could even get out of my lane, although it was cleared only yesterday by the "Peat Moss Boys" with their big machine.

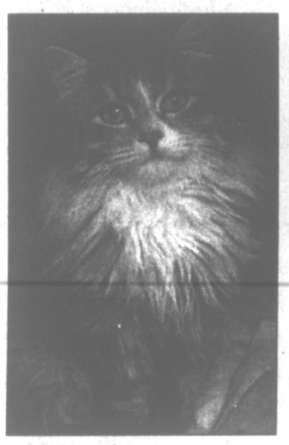
On the local scene, last week Chuck and Rita Keir and their son Richard from Texas, and Jean Cope of Cumberland were in the area and visited numerous relatives, some of whom were Ferne Beachy, Beulah Moon, Ethel Buckel, and Harriett Buckel.

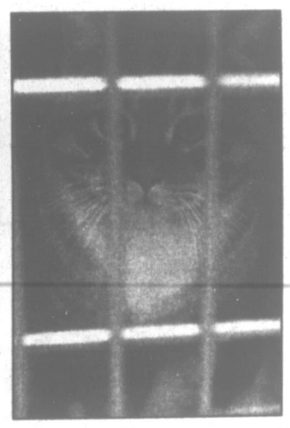
Brent Beachy and children Teagen and Wyatt, Bethlehem, Pa., visited Dave and Nancy Beachy over the weekend.

Adorable Adoptables



STILL AVAILABLE FOR ADOPTION at the Garrett County Animal Shelter are these three young black cats and a young long-haired male. "He has been there so long waiting for a home," said a Humane Society spokesperson. "He is such a nice cat and deserves a chance." A large male orange tabby was also brought in as a stray from the streets of Oakland. "He was just neutered, needs shots, and a good loving home, not a lonely barn cat life!" she said.





Town Hall

OAKLAND

The mayor and town council will hold its monthly meeting on Feb. 2, starting at 7 p.m. A special discussion of a memo from Jon Boone and a letter from Support Oakland Neighborhoods Group (north) will be held at 7:30 p.m. Also on the agenda are the approval of minutes, approval of bills, the December and January monthly financial reports, utility bill adjustments, discussion of applications for employment, and committee reports. The AL/GAR MML dinner is rescheduled for Feb. 18.

Oakland Update

by Asa McCain

I had the opportunity to attend the PACE (Positive Attitudes Change Everything) Reception in Annapolis, which is a joint venture between Garrett and Allegany counties to meet elected officials and business leaders from across the state. One of the highlights for us from Oakland was having the opportunity to meet with CSX officials about the Third Street bridge over the railroad. As a result of this meeting, I was able to keep the bridge project on schedule, with construction to begin this coming building season.

Another benefit of attending the PACE Reception was the opportunity to make a presentation at a meeting with all of the major funding sources for state projects, such as the Maryland Department of the Environment (MDE), Appalachian Regional Commission (ARC), and the Department of Housing and Community Development (DHCD). Not only did I get to deliver the pre-application for the Memorial Drive area extension of water and sewer services, but I was also able to track the status of current and upcoming grant applications that will allow us to complete the second phase of the Glades Community Building.

I learned at the reception that another grant with ARC has been approved. It will allow the town of Oakland to purchase a wood-chipper to improve the efficiency of clean-up efforts during emergencies (such as last year's ice storm) and of Friday's bulk pick-up. The recycling of limbs into wood chips will add to the recycling effort beginning in March without any additional cost to the citizens.

At the PACE Reception, I also made contact with some business leaders about making donations to the train station. This will give us the opportunity to add additional family activities.

One of the things I was not able to do at the PACE Reception was to change the weather. I would like to encourage all property owners to make an effort to keep the sidewalks in front of their properties cleared of snow and ice as soon as possible following any accumulations or storm. Please keep in mind that this is a courtesy for persons walking in the downtown area, as well as a public safety issue.

Social

Sliger-Gilbert Couple To Wed

Charles and Shirley Sliger, Oakland, announce the engagement of their daughter, Kim Sliger, to David Gilbert, son of Paul Gilbert and Joretta Gilbert Kuhn, Gorman.

The couple both attended Southern Garrett High School. Mr. Gilbert also attended Garrett Community College and earned an associate's degree in business management. The bride-to-be is employed by TDEC in Oakland and the groom elect owns and operates Gilbert's Handy Helper.

An April wedding is being planned at St. Paul's United Methodist Church in Oakland. All invitations will be sent.

Marriage Permits Recently Issued

Seven couples recently applied for their marriage licenses, according to David Martin, clerk of the Garrett County Circuit Court. Three couples requested that their names not be published.

Mark Eldon Hagedorn, 37, and Robin Ranee Rodeheaver, 35, both of Bruceton Mills, W.Va.

Seth William Gray, 29, and Cory Ann Lepley, 28, both of Westernport.

Randy Lee DeWitt, 39, and Karen Ann Mayle-DeWitt, 25, both of Oakland (no relation).

Steven Michael Frantz, 32, Beaver Falls, Pa., and Valerie Scott, 25, Nanty-Glo, Pa.

THERE ARE JOBS FOR EVERYONE when so much snow comes down for so many days. These two youngsters were busy cleaning off their own walk, but took a short break to watch their neighbor, Buck Shaffer, operate a far more efficient piece of equipment to clean out parking spaces along Pennington Street in Oakland. Surely there are many sore arms across Garrett County as hardly anyone can go anywhere without first shoveling out a path. Photo by John McEwen.

Delegates, Governor Take Different Approaches To Slot Machines

by Stephanie Tracy and Adrienne Saunders
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – Legislators set the stage for a new round in the fight over expanded gambling Tuesday as Gov. Robert Ehrlich Jr. and the House of Delegates presented separate proposals for slot machine approval.

Ehrlich sent his revised slots bill to the General Assembly late Monday night, to the surprise and irritation of some lawmakers. Tuesday afternoon, the House Ways and Means Committee answered the governor's salvo with the release of its months-long study of gambling in Maryland and its effect on the state's economic and social well being.

Although he had not seen the details of the governor's bill, House Speaker Michael E. Busch, D-Anne Arundel, said the proposal sounded a familiar tune.

"From my understanding it's a very similar proposal to last year's except with a few expansions," he said. "We'll put the House study and the governor's proposal side-by-side and take a realistic approach from there."

The governor is proposing off-track slot machine venues in Prince George's, Howard, Harford, Cecil, Baltimore, and/or Baltimore City. A commission would decide where to locate gambling sites within each eligible jurisdiction. The plan limits the number of off-track video lottery terminals to 4,000.

Ehrlich said in a press release that his proposal recognized a "growing consensus" among lawmakers to allow slots at non-racetrack locations. "I look forward to working with elected officials across Maryland toward a consensus that helps fund our K-12 classrooms and stops the flow of Maryland dollars across state lines," he said.

Like the slots legislation that passed the Senate last session, the administration's proposal would also authorize licenses for slot machines at Pimlico, Laurel Park, and Rosecroft Raceway, as well as an anticipated track in Allegany County. Gambling machines at all the included racetracks could total more than 11,000 terminals.

Racetrack slots revenue would be distributed as defined in the slots bill from the 2003 General Assembly session. Education funding would receive 46 percent of the slots proceeds, and each racetrack would receive 39 percent. The rest would be divided among affected local and state governments. The new proposal sends $250,000 to health benefits for Maryland jockeys.

House Majority Leader Kumar Barve, D-Montgomery, called the proposal vague.

"It's a vehicle for negotiation," Barve said. "We're always willing to work with the governor, and we really need to see what the Senate does with it. The House will be heavily guided by the findings of the Ways and Means Committee report –

Fazenbaker had pleaded guilty in November and sentencing was postponed to last week. Prior to his plea, the state dismissed driving under the influence charges after a review of the facts showed there was insufficient evidence to convict Fazenbaker.

Extension Office

Acting director Ann Sherrard, Garrett County Extension Office, told the commissioners that she had good news to report. She learned Wednesday that a full-time position in agriculture had been restored to the office.

Because of budget constraints, the University Maryland recently cut staffing at county offices throughout the state. Commissioner Dave Beard noted that three positions had been cut at Sherrard's office. She said, however, that two of those positions have been approved.

"We lost half of a position in the food and nutrition program," she said. Garrett and Allegany counties will a program staff member.

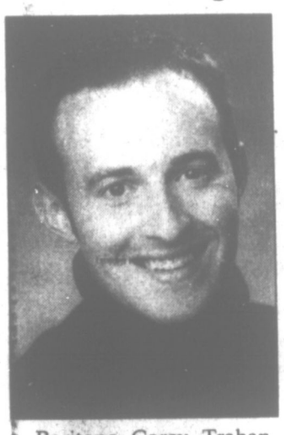
"Super Bowl Serenade" Set At Frostburg



Baritone Corey Trahan, a voice and opera instructor at Frostburg State University, will present "Super Bowl Serenade," a faculty recital with accompanists mezzo-soprano Kristina Driskill, cellist Dr. Ellen Grolman, and pianist Ann Baltz, at 3 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 1, in the Pealer Recital Hall of FSU's Performing Arts Center. The free performance is open to the public.

"Some people would probably not attend an afternoon of classical music on Super Bowl Sunday," says Trahan. "With that in mind, we have named our concert 'Super Bowl Serenade.' We promise to get everyone home in time to watch the pre-game show."

The concert will feature selections from several genres, including opera, classical, theatrical, pop, and country music, along with appropriate costumes and moments of comedy.

Trahan is a native of Baton Rouge, La., and an active performer who has soloed with the Akron, Lake Charles, Shreveport, Brazos, Monroe, and Houston Masterworks symphonies. He received his master of music degree from the University of Houston, and a bachelor's degree in music from Louisiana State University. He is in his first year of teaching at FSU.

Driskill has performed with the Dallas Opera, Utah Festival Opera, Amarillo Opera, Opera Longview, New Orleans Opera, Opera in the Heights, OperaWorks, Barzosport Symphony, and Orchestra X. Grolman is associate chair of FSU's Division of Performing Arts, and Baltz is the founder and artistic director of the nationally acclaimed performance-training program OperaWorks

For more information, persons may contact the FSU Department of Music at 301-687-4109.

Scholarship To Be Awarded By Community Band

Applications for the 2004 Garrett Community Concert Band scholarship(s) are now available at the guidance offices of Southern and Northern high schools, as well as from band members.

The band awards one or more scholarships each year totaling $500 to high school seniors and/or current students who are enrolled in an accredited college, and who plan to continue participation/studies in instrumental music. Applicants need not be music majors, but must be those who intend to remain involved in some form of instrumental music participation at their college or in their community.

The deadline to submit the applications is April 30.

Persons with questions about the scholarship may telephone GCC Band member Don Sincell at 301-334-3963 (w) or 301-334-3650 (h).

OTT Issues Reminders Of Several Events

A number of events are taking place at Our Town Theatre, located along Center Street in Oakland.

Kidstuff/Coolstuff: Reservations for Our Town Theatre's creative dramatics workshops, scheduled for Jan. 31, can be made by calling the theatre at 301-334-5640.

Kidstuff, designed for children in grades K-5, will be held from 10:30 a.m. to noon, and Coolstuff for kids in grades 6-8 will take place from 1 to 2:30 p.m. The cost is a modest donation to the theatre.

Auditions: Auditions for OTT's March musical The Spitfire Grill are scheduled for Saturday, Jan. 31, 1-6 p.m., and on Sunday, Feb. 1, 5-8 p.m. Anyone interested in auditioning is encouraged to bring sheet music for a song that he or she enjoys singing.

Reservations: Reservations are available for the comedy Romance in D, which will run Feb. 12, 13, 14, 19, 20, and 21, with all shows at 8 p.m., and on the 15th at 2 p.m.

As an option, OTT is offering the play as a "romantic evening out" including a buffet dinner theatre for $25 pre-paid, or as a typical OTT production for the usual $5. The dinner theatre will be available for 20 people for each evening performance of Feb. 12, 13, 14, 19, 20, and 21. (Dinner for Feb. 14 is sold out; however there are still plenty of reservations for the play on Valentine's Day, a spokesperson said.)

The doors will open at 6 p.m. for dinner guests. When the meal is finished, these guests will be allowed their choice of seats before the rest of that evening's patrons are admitted at 7:30. Reservations for the dinner theatre guests must be paid for in advance and will not be refunded, the spokesperson said.

For more information about any of these events, persons may call 301-334-5640, option #3.

SOLOMON'S PORCH TO PERFORM AT SHS – Solomon's Porch will perform "a night of praise and worship" in Southern High School's cafeteria on Saturday, Feb. 7, starting at 7 p.m. The public is invited to attend this free concert.

CALENDAR GIRLS

Rated PG-13 - Running Time: 1:48 - Released 12/19/03

When I heard that Nigel Cole's Calendar Girls was about the true story of some British women who posed nude for a calendar to support a charitable cause, I was intrigued. But when I heard that it starred Helen Mirren, I was really interested. It's not that I wanted so much to see Helen's naughty bits (I'd seen them long before in Caligula, when they were surely much younger and more firm), but she is one of my favorite actors—I've loved her in everything I've seen her in, with or without her clothes, from Excalibur to 2010 to The Madness Of King George to Gosford Park (the last two of which earned her Oscar nominations). Mirren absolutely shines in Calendar Girls, as does her co-star Julie Walters, another two-time Oscar nominee (Educating Rita, Billy Elliot), and although the film, written by Tim Firth and Juliette Towhidi, is not on the whole an unqualified success, it tells a charming true story and features genuine performances by Mirren and Walters, and their supporting cast.

Mirren plays Chris Harper, a middle-aged woman from Yorkshire, England, who runs a florist shop with her husband (Ciarán Hinds) and their teenage son (John-Paul Macleod), and goes to weekly meetings of the Women's Institute, a national service club, with her friend Annie Clarke (Walters). Although the club's local leader Marie (Geraldine James) is very serious about the W.I. and its high-minded ideals, Chris and Annie usually just laugh and make fun of the boring and often pointless weekly presentations, like flower arranging, cake baking, or the many interesting properties of broccoli. The hilarity ends, however, when Annie's husband John (John Alderton) dies of leukemia, but Chris gets a fundraising idea for the club based on a speech he was going to make to them regarding sunflowers. Since he asserted that sunflowers were like Yorkshire women in that they became more radiant during the latter period of their lives, she decides the women of the W.I. should pose nude for a calendar, the proceeds from which would be used to improve the local hospital's family area.

Although Chris's idea is at first met with predictable resistance from the club's mostly 40-or-older members, some of them (particularly Annie) see the wit and wisdom of it, and agree to pose for one of the calendar's twelve portraits. Soon a photographer (Philip Glenister) is found, and after a short period of modesty, the women loosen up, posing nude while doing such W.I.–type activities as flower arranging, apple pressing, and oil painting, with the accoutrements of each activity being strategically placed just so as to cover up the more illicit body parts. "It's not naked," they insist. "It's nude." The resulting calendar is such an unexpected success that the women receive national and international fame (including having a movie made about them), and raise enough money for an entire new leukemia wing at the hospital. But there are negative aspects too.

The fact that this is based on a true story does not change the fact that it seems a bit derivative of other British films like The Full Monty (men do a live strip show to raise money) and director Cole's previous effort Saving Grace (bereaved woman grows pot to pay off her late husband's debts). I can't fault the writers for the story, since it really happened, but perhaps they could have done something about the presentation to make it seem a little less like formula. The scenes of them discussing the idea, defending it to their loved ones, overcoming their personal self-esteem and body issues and mustering the courage—it's all so much like Monty in style and tone, it seems like the one script is patterned after the other. I suppose this is inevitable given the similarity of the plot—heck, maybe these women got the idea from Monty—but it is unfortunate that such a great story smacks of imitation.

This is director Cole's second feature film (after Saving Grace) and the first full-length big screen effort for both writers, although Firth has done extensive TV writing. The creative team's combined inexperience is perhaps the reason for their inability to craft a film better suited to stand on its own merits, but it is no less enjoyable for this minor point. Mirren again shows us why she is still able to obtain leading vehicles at age 58; she's got the craft not only to reach emotions and deliver lines, but to show us the simple everyday reality that exists in the minds, hearts, souls, of her characters. Ditto for Walters, whose struggle with the real reason for all this hoopla and silliness never leaves her character's face. The several women who make up the other calendar models (Linda Bassett, Celia Imrie, Annette Crosbie, Penelope Wilton, and others), while not what one would call physically stunning, are each attractive in their own ways, and earn our admiration not for their luscious booty, but for what they achieve through invention, courage and a slightly sexy sense of humor. Exactly the point of the movie.

In closing I would just like remind my readers that in addition to being a movie critic I am also a professional photographer, and if any women's group in my local area or surrounding vicinity is interested in undertaking such a project, I would be willing to lend my services for a reasonable fee. Any age group welcome. No men. ★★★★ vate old ones, as most received only small portions of their original capital requests.

Howard County had asked for $52.6 million for projects, but got $4.3 million.

Montgomery County, the largest school system in the state, requested $59 million and was allotted about $6 million.

One representative called the meeting an "equal distribution of dissatisfaction." Counties did what they could to glean funds.

Ehrlich, Schaefer, and Kopp were thanked repeatedly for their contributions to education. Several presenters pointedly reminded the governor of their histories with him – whether it was competing against him in high school football, serving with him in the House of Delegates, or working for him while he was a congressman.

"You know our needs; we know your straits," Anne Arundel county executive Janet S. Owens told the board.

The board has until about the end of the legislative session, April 12, to decide how to allocate the additional $25 million for school construction.

that will be our gold standard."

The House report called for public financing for the construction of gambling facilities and recommended that such facilities be located closer to major thoroughfares, not residential areas, including the Interstate 95 corridor between Baltimore and Delaware, the Frederick region between West Virginia and Maryland's metro areas, and the Eastern Shore.

The delegates' proposal also called for a reduction in the amount of revenue given to the tracks, 24.8 percent of the gross revenue, instead of the governor's 39 percent.

Of the administration's proposal, Sen. Nathaniel McFadden, D-Baltimore, said he would only consider it based on two conditions – education and the share of ownership given to minority business owners.

"I've been pressured very strongly by the faith community – which is largely against slots – so if I'm going to support this proposal," McFadden said, "it's going to be for our children and for the sake of economic parity."

NOTICE

The Garrett County Department of Public Utilities has implemented a new billing program in cooperation with the Garrett County Tax Collection Office. Water and sewer bills for Sanitary District customers should arrive in mailboxes this week and will be similar to tax bills. All water bills, with the exception of Crellin, were estimated. In order to merge all customers into the same billing cycle, everyone will receive a bill this quarter, but some will only be charged for one or two months of usage. Please note that payments will no longer be taken in the Sanitary District administrative office, but will be collected in the Tax Collection Office, Room 107A, in the Courthouse. Checks must still be made payable to the Sanitary District. We regret any inconvenience to our customers, but these changes were necessary to streamline the Sanitary District into county government. Please direct any questions to 301-334-1887.

Transportation

29-member task force in July to review the state's transportation priorities. It includes senators, delegates, and public and private representatives, as well as Flanagan.

Taking money from the Transportation Trust Fund has become a contentious issue. Last year, Gov. Robert Ehrlich tapped the fund for $300 million to balance the state's budget. This year, he pledged $25 million from the fiscal 2005 budget as a down payment on that borrowing.

The task force agreed with the governor's incremental approach to reimbursing the trust fund, saying immediate repayment is unfeasible. And the panel rejected trust fund protection legislation introduced this session that would prevent it from being tapped again except in emergencies.

The task force supported a proposal to impose a $20 surcharge on the roughly 1 million moving violations in the state each year. That $20 million in annual revenue, the group said, would complete reimbursement of the trust fund in 10 years.

Some legislators said they were concerned about the amount of funding going into one project in Maryland.

Flanagan said the ICC is only part of the governor's strategy on solving Maryland's transportation needs, but he said Ehrlich will address legislators' worries.

Lawmakers, the secretary said, haven't yet grasped the full transportation "vision," and added: "I think time will solve that problem. To the extent of the legislators simply producing political noise, that problem is not going to go away."

LAKERS WIN 14TH, 15TH — Although trailing by a point at halftime Saturday evening against visiting Howard Community College, the Garrett College Lakers rallied to record a 74-59 victory over the visitors. They also defeated host Anne Arundel last night, 75-67. The pair of Maryland JUCO Conference wins upped the Lakers' overall record to 15-1 and their JUCO mark to 6-1. Among three Lakers who finished in double figures against Howard on Saturday was Akeem Scott, pictured well off the floor and under the hoop in the photo at left. Scott scored 11 points, pulled four rebounds, and was credited with five assists. Making a move toward the lane in the photo above is Laker Jon Mann, and gently laying the ball up in the photo at right is Garrett's James Jones. After several postponements this week because of weather conditions, the Lakers are expected to return to action this Friday in Cumberland against nationally ranked Allegany College of Maryland. Lakers Top Howard And Anne Arundel; Record 15-1

After a sluggish first half, the Garrett College men's basketball team found itself trailing visiting Howard Community College, 34-33, at halftime on Saturday in McHenry.

The second half of the Maryland JUCO Conference game was a different story, however, as the Lakers slowly took control of the contest and went on to record a 74-59 victory.

The Lakers also traveled to Anne Arundel CC last night, where they recorded a 75-67 JUCO victory.

The pair of wins gave the Lakers and Coach Dennis Gibson an overall record of 15-1 and a JUCO mark of 6-1. They are scheduled to face their toughest test of the season this Friday at Allegany College of Maryland in Cumberland.

Against Howard on Saturday, 10 members of the GC squad put points on the board, with Darren Stackhouse leading a balanced effort with 14. Adam Morgan and Akeem Scott also reached double figures with 12 and 11, respectively, while Jermond Harper and Darvus Gray, who both led the Lakers' second-half surge, finished with nine and eight points, respectively.

Pulling down four rebounds each for the Lakers were Scott, Stackhouse, and Gray, and Scott also dished out five assists.

Leading Howard's offensive effort with a game-high 21 points was Roderic Berry. Jamal Jacobs scored 15 points, and Warren Gilchrist finished with 11.

Stackhouse was the scoring leader for the Lakers last night in their win over host Anne Arundel, as he finished with 19 points.

HOWARD (59)
Roderic Berry 8 2-2 21, Warren Gilchrist 3 2-2 11, Cheyenne Patty 1 1-4 3, Freddie Brown 1 1-2 3, Delray Elridge 3 0-0 6, Jamal Jacobs 7 1-4 15. Totals 23 7-14 59.

GARRETT (74)
Jermond Harper 3 1-2 9, Antonio Alston 2 0-1 4, Pat Carwile 2 0-0 5, Jon Mann 0 4-4 4, Akeem Scott 3 4-6 11, Darren Stackhouse 6 2-2 14, James Jones 0 2-4 2, Darvus Gray 4 0-0 8, Lavonte Jeter 2 1-2 5, Adam Morgan 5 2-2 12. Totals 26 16-25 74.

Halftime - Howard 34-33.
Three-point goals - Howard 6 (Gilchrist 3, Berry 3), Garrett 6 (Morgan 3, Harper 2, Carwile 1, Scott 1). Total fouls - Howard 20, Garrett 16. Fouled out - none.

Once again, the Lakers played better in the second half of action, as they led by just two points, 36-34, at halftime.

Scott and James Jones also reached double figures for Garrett, with 15 and 11 points, respectively.

Chris Cooper paced Anne Arundel with a game-high 28 points, while Danny Victor and Kyle Warner each added nine points.

The Lakers trailed in field goals, 27-23, but converted 24 of 35 free throws, while the home team made good on 11 of 16 attempts at the line. Three of Anne Arundel's players fouled out of the contest.

GARRETT (75)
Antonio Alston 2 1-2 6, Pat Carwile 1 2-4 4, Jon Mann 1 4-6 7, Akeem Scott 4 5-9 15, Darren Stackhouse 7 5-7 19, James Jones 4 3-3 11, Darvus Gray 3 0-0 6, Lavonte Jeter 1 4-4 7. Totals 23 24-35 75.

ANNE ARUNDEL (67)
Chris Cooper 10 7-10 28, Danny Victor 4 1-2 9, Delante Byrd 1 0-0 2, Brandon Cook 3 0-0 6, Kyle Warner 4 0-0 9, Joey Hutchins 2 3-4 7, Ian Alexander 3 0-0 6. Totals 27 11-16 67.

Halftime Score - Garrett 36-34.
Three-point goals - Garrett 5 (Alston 1, Mann 1, Scott 2, Jeter 1), AA 2 (Cooper 1, Warner 1). Total fouls - Garrett 17, AA 27. Fouled out - Alexander, Hutchins, Cook (AA).

Friday's game against nationally ranked Allegany, originally slated for December, had been postponed several times.

They are scheduled to travel to Montgomery-Germantown this Saturday, host Montgomery-Takoma on Monday, and travel to Dundalk CC next Wednesday.

No. 2 Lakers Crush CCAC-South; Host No. 3 Baltimore City Saturday

The Garrett College women's basketball team swamped CCAC-South on the road Friday by a lopsided 91-25 margin. A Monday night visit to CCAC-Allegheny was canceled, so the Lakers, second in the JUCO, have had a long layoff heading into a huge homecourt battle Saturday against third-ranked Baltimore City Community College.

Garrett sophomore guard Jenna Bradford continues to make a big impact after joining the playing roster just recently, as she netted 18 points to lead the Lakers to their 66-point route over CCAC-South, GC dominated the game from the opening tipoff, and was up 39-12 by the halftime intermission.

Freshman guard Ashley Liller and sophomore forward LaSha Anderson turned in superb performances on both ends of the floor, as Liller recorded 16 points, six assists, two steals, and seven rebounds, while Anderson contributed 12 points, eight rebounds, four assists, and three steals. Freshman guard Denae Kennedy scored 15 points while dishing out 10 assists.

Garrett has three players holding down top spots in JUCO individual rankings: Liller leads the circuit in scoring at 18.3 points per game; Anderson is tops in free-throw percentage with an 82.1 percent average; and Kennedy's 7.33 per-game assist average leads the pack in that important category.

Saturday's Baltimore City showdown is set for 5 p.m. In addition to being a battle between two of the JUCO's top three teams (Howard is currently number one with a 9-0 JUCO mark and a 13-3 overall record), the contest features the top two offenses and defenses in the conference. Garrett has the top offense with a mind-boggling 94.5 points per game average, and is also the top defensive squad as it has held opposing offenses to a 55.9 average. Baltimore is second in both categories with an 84.9 ppg average on offense, and 57.7 ppg on defense.

The Lakers visit Cecil Sunday afternoon.

RAMS RAM HUSKIES — In the first of two regular-season match-ups between county rivals Northern and Southern high schools, held last Friday evening at the Cove, the Southern Rams defeated the Huskies in what turned out to be a defensive battle, 42-31. Each team came into the contest with a 6-7 overall record. The leading scorer for Southern was Andrew VanBogelen, pictured at left splitting Husky defenders Blake Walker (#31) and Jason Rice (#50). VanBogelen scored 12 points for the evening, while Rice was the top scorer for the Huskies, finishing with a game-high 14 points. Also reaching double figures for the Rams with 11 points was Evan Lantz, pictured above center with the ball. Husky defenders, from left, are Eric Johnson, Walker, and Brent Beachy. Other Rams in the background of the photo are Brad Reese (#10) and Corey Tressler (#40). Going high under the rim for two Northern points in the photo at right is Husky Greg Speicher, with Lantz attempting to interrupt the attempt. At right is Northern's Beachy. The two teams are scheduled to meet again this Friday at Southern. Photos by John McEwen.

Rams Win First Meeting With County-Rival Huskies

In the first meeting of the season between Garrett County's two boys' high school varsity basketball teams, the Southern High Rams recorded a 42-31 victory over the Northern Huskies at the Cove last Friday evening.

Both squads entered the Western Maryland Interscholastic League contest with overall records of 6-7.

Southern took the lead in the opening moments of the game and never looked back, building a 13-4 advantage by the end of the first quarter and holding a 23-8 lead at intermission. They were on top by a comfortable 32-16 margin by the end of the third stanza.

Andrew VanBogelen and Corey Tressler led the Rams in scoring with 12 and 11 points, respectively, while Cory Bosley and Dewaine Jones each netted nine points.

Recording a game-high 14 points was Northern's Jason Rice, who was the only Husky to finish in double figures.

Most of Southern's margin of victory was gained at the foul line, from which the Rams made good on 13 of 22 opportunities. The Huskies converted four of nine shots from the line. The Rams finished with a 13-12 edge in field goals, with each team hitting three three-pointers.

The win improved the Rams' WMIL record to 2-3, while the Huskies remained winless in league games (0-5).

The Southern junior varsity team coasted to a 45-22 win in the preliminary game. No other details of that contest were reported.

All other games that were scheduled this week for the Rams and Huskies were postponed because of weather conditions. However, according to the regular schedule, the two teams will meet each other again this Friday in Oakland, with tip-off for the jayvee game set for 6 p.m. and the varsity slated to begin at 7:30.

Southern is also scheduled to make up a game with Williamsport Saturday evening, also at home. The Rams will entertain Beall next Tuesday, and host Keyser on Wednesday. Starts for all of those games will also be at 6 and 7:30 p.m.

Meanwhile, after the Huskies play at Southern Friday, they are slated to host Salisbury next Thursday.

Full Game Slates Canceled; Make-Ups Not Yet Set

This week's weather wreaked havoc on the schedules of several high school basketball squads, and at this point no make-up dates for the canceled games have been announced. The snow wiped out the entire week for the Northern High School boys' and girls' varsity basketball teams, and the Southern High School girls' varsity basketball squad.

The slate of previously scheduled games for this coming week are as follows.

The Northern boys visit Southern tomorrow for the second meeting of the season between the cross county rivals, with the 6 p.m. junior varsity battle preceding a 7:30 p.m. varsity showdown. The Huskies are then idle until Thursday, Feb. 5, when they host Salisbury's Elks.

The Husky girls were slated to host Meyersdale tonight, but that contest has been canceled because of today's school closure. NHS hosts Beall Monday in a 7:30 p.m. contest, which follows a 6 p.m. jayvee match-up.

The SHS girls' will be on a road swing that takes them to Joppatown tomorrow night, Hedgesville Saturday, and Allegany Monday. The "game of the week" in a slate full of big games for the Rams promises to be Wednesday night's 7:30 p.m. varsity rematch with Beall in Frostburg, as Southern aims to avenge its recent loss to the Mounties, who snapped SHS's four-year WMIL winning streak.

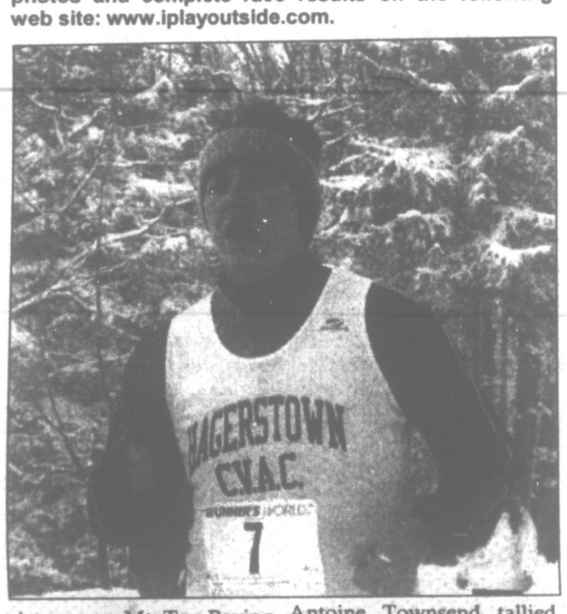
ABOUT 200 BRAVE SOULS didn't let ice, blowing snow, and sub-freezing temperatures keep them from participating in the fourth annual Uno's Snowflake Chase, held Saturday at Deep Creek Lake State Park to benefit the local Big Brothers Big Sisters organization. The event included a 5-mile run and a 2-mile run/walk. Pictured below left is Jaron Hawkins of Frostburg, who ran away from the rest of the field to finish first overall among the 119 5-mile runners. His time was 30:12, more than a minute faster than the next finisher, Tony Yurko. Below right is Maria Spinnler of Hagerstown, who was the fastest female finisher in the 5-mile event, recording a time of 35:24. Her time broke by two seconds the previous women's master's (over 40) record for the Snowflake Chase. Above right, race director Dave Ritchie welcomes to the stage Kevin O'Connor and Lori Yant, both officials with Big Brothers Big Sisters, to inform them that the Chase realized proceeds of approximately $1,800 for their organization. See story for more details. Photos courtesy of iPlayOutside, which has posted numerous photos and complete race results on the following web site: www.iplayoutside.com.



Snowflake Chase Draws 200; Hawkins, Spinnler Top Winners

The fourth annual Uno's Snowflake Chase, held Saturday at Deep Creek Lake State Park, was truly a "snow-flake chase," as approximately 200 runners and walkers participated in the 5-mile run, 2-mile run/walk event during a downpour of snow and a temperature of 20 degrees at the 10 a.m. start.

The benefit raised approximately $1,800 for the local Big Brothers Big Sisters organization, according to Dave Ritchie, race director.

Jaron Hawkins, 21, Frostburg, was the fastest overall finisher in the 5-mile run, as he completed the snowy, rolling course in 30 minutes and 12 seconds, over a minute faster than runner-up Tony Yurko, 41, Cumberland, who recorded a time of 31:20. There were 119 participants in the 5-mile event.

It was also an older runner who finished third overall, as Morgantown's 48-year-old Ed Frohnaphel crossed the finish line with an impressive time of 31:37.

The next three places were captured by Dennis Mickey, 38, 31:40; Brad Rippey, 37, 31:51; and Southern High School cross country standout David Cuddington, 17, in sixth place with a time of 33:39.

The fastest female finisher in the 5-mile race was 41-year-old Maria Spinnler, Hagerstown, who placed 12th overall with a time of 35:24. She was also the fastest master's (over 40) runner, and broke the master's female event record by two seconds.

Maureen Hall, 39, LaVale, was second overall with a time of 36:09, and 15-year-old Maria Dalzot was the third fastest female finisher, recording a time of 39:06.

In the oldest age group, 63-year-old Jim Delaney of Frostburg placed first with an impressive time of 43:29, which was good enough for 65th place overall.

Oakland's Colleen Nordeck, 56, won the women's 55-59 division with a time of 43:15, placing her 63 overall.

Another local division winner was Mike Kozier, 51, who finished in 38:59 to take first in the men's 50-54 division. He was 37th overall.

The aforementioned David Cuddington, Oakland, won the male 1-19 division.

Other top three local division winners were: Nikki Brown, Mtn. Lake Park, second place, female 25-29; Steve Sherrard, Accident, second place, male 45-49; Mark Valiton, Oakland, third place, male 20-24; Scott Glendon, Oakland, third place, male 25-29; David Tuel, Oakland, third place, male 50-54; and Renny Azzi, Oakland, third place, male 55-59.

In the Iceberg Division (over 200 pounds), Derick Winfield, Cumberland, won first place with a time of 38:24, followed by Eric Delaney, Frostburg, 40:13, and Sam Jodon, 40:48.

Seventy-nine participated in the 2-mile run/walk, with the overall winner of that event being Art Sieman of Frostburg, who finished with a time of 19 minutes flat. Just one second behind him was Craig Baer, Fort Hill, Pa., for second place, while race director Dave Ritchie, Swanton, was third with a time of 20:11.

Suzanne Wilburn of Oakland was the fastest female, recording a time of 20:06, which was also good for third place overall. Glenda Morton, Midland, was second in 22:06, and Desiree Fritsch, Romney, W.Va., finished third in 23:00.

Jim Preston, Mtn. Lake Park, was the fastest over-60 male, finishing in 28:13, while Suzy Lewis, Ravenna, Ohio, was the top female in that division, recording a time of 40:47.

Uno Restaurant, primary sponsor of the event, provided a complimentary lunch to all participants following the races.

Other sponsors were: Railey Realty, Wal-Mart, Aquatic Center, GO Pt, Markwood Family Dealership, High Mountain Sports, Dr. David Tuel, Communications Workers of America, Britt-Getty Law Offices, Highland Engineering, Yellowstone Log Homes, Dr. William Yant, Dr. Charles Walch, The Paintworks Store, Deep Creek Pharmacy, Wisp Resort, Coca-Cola, Farmers' Market, and the Popcorn Factory.

victory over Mt. Top Paving in the second game behind a day-high 26 points by Doug Copeland. Jason Shank added 19 points, Ricky Reams had 14, Jason Shreve, 13, and Johnny Friend,10.

First United Bank silenced Midas by a narrow 55-51 margin behind a 21-point performance by Travis Bohrer, while teammate Jerry Merrick scored 11 and Antoine Townsend tallied 10. Jason Skipper nailed 19 points for the losers, while Joe DiSimone added 15.

The Mt. Top League's slate (note changes) for this Sunday, Feb. 1, is: Plaza Hobby vs. Smiley's, 1 p.m.; Scott Ford vs. Copeland's, 2 p.m.; First United vs. ConDoerr, 3 p.m.; and Midas vs. Mt. Top Paving, 4 p.m. Respective scorekeepers are Copeland's, Smiley's, Mt. Top Paving, and ConDoerr.

Sauder, Lipscomb Running Well For Frostburg State

Two former Garrett County high school track and field standouts helped the Frostburg State University teams finish well at the Slippery Rock University Open on Saturday.

Beth Sauder, a Southern High School grad and a senior at FSU, placed fourth in the 3,000-meter run with a time of 12:04.69, and was also a member of the 1,600 relay team, which placed third with a time of 4:31.68.

Ron Lipscomb, a graduate of Northern High and a junior at FSU, was a member of the men's 1,600 relay team, which also placed third.

The Bobcats will compete again this Saturday in the Penn State University Invitational at State College, Pa.

GC Ice Fishing Contest Winners Are Announced

The winners of the Garrett County Ice Fishing Contest, sponsored by Deep Creek Outfitters and the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce, for the week ending January 25 are:

Bluegill, 12 ozs., 10 in., caught by Brandon Olson, Myersville.

Smallmouth bass, 2 lbs. 8 ozs., 18 in., caught by Brandon Olson, Myersville.

Yellow perch, 7 ozs., 9-1/4 in., caught by Gavin Olson, Myersville.

Weekly winners are awarded a certificate, and plaques are awarded for the season's largest catches of bluegill, brown trout, chain pickerel, crappies, largemouth and smallmouth bass, northern pike, rainbow trout, walleye, and yellow perch. Fish must be caught in Garrett County waters and be registered at Deep Creek Outfitters, 1899 Deep Creek Drive, McHenry. The ice fishing contest will continue until the lakes of Garrett County are no longer frozen.

Mt. Top B-Ball Results Noted

The Mt. Top Basketball League played a full schedule of four games Sunday.

In the opening game ConDoerr downed Plaza Hobby 74-60, as Dennis Gibson netted 20 points for the victors and teammates Pete Brosnihan and Ronald Rhodes tallied 15 and 12 points, respectively. Plaza Hobby's Mike Fazenbaker scored 18 points, Ryan White had 14 points, and Jason Finch had 11 points.

Copeland's took a 92-79

Oakland Little League Tryouts Slated At SHS

Baseball tryouts of the Oakland Little League are slated at the Southern High School gymnasium on Saturday, Feb. 21, from 4 to 6 p.m. and Sunday, Feb. 22, from 4 to 5 p.m., with a make-up date of Sunday, Feb. 29, from 3 to 4 p.m.

Candidates reaching age 9 by Aug. 1, 2004, and who do not reach the age of 13 by July 31 are eligible to play Little League (Major) Division and must attend and participate in one of the three tryouts to be eligible to be drafted by a league team.

Tryouts for the Junior Division (ages 13 and 14) and Senior Division (ages 15 and 16) will also be held on these dates and at the same times.

Sign-ups for Tee Ball (ages 5 and 6) and for Minor League (ages 7 and 8) are set for Saturday, Feb. 21, from 2 to 4 p.m. and Sunday, Feb. 22, from 2 to 4 p.m. Players from the age of 5 to 8 will sign up only, and are not required to try out.

Players participating in the tryout must have tennis shoes and a baseball glove. Participants are encouraged to have a change of shoes so that dry and clean tennis shoes are worn during tryouts. Proof of age in the form of a birth certificate should be presented at the time of sign-up and before trying out.

Questions regarding signing up or tryouts can be directed to Dave Sweitzer at 301-334-9336.

"Freedom To Fish" Bill Introduced In Assembly

by Zenitha Prince
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS — Two Calvert County legislators said they are seeking to defend an American pastime by introducing legislation to secure Maryland's 700,000 anglers' right to fish. Democratic Sen. Roy Dyson and Del. George Owings introduced similar bills amending the Maryland Freedom to Fish Act, with an eye to lessening government oversight over finfishing.

"There are few things more American than fishing for sport," Dyson said in a letter to the media. "And yet, there is a movement under way to undermine this very thing."

Though Maryland's Department of Natural Resources has not restricted recreational fishing in the state's waterways, as has happened in other states, Owings said they wanted to be ahead of the game. "This is getting ahead of the curve before it happens," he said. "We don't want the state to arbitrarily close fishing grounds."

This legislation follows a national trend of "right-to-fish" legislation and was driven by recent closures of waterways to recreational and commercial fishing in California and Hawaii. It requires DNR to provide scientific reasoning for designating a marine protected area, list protocols for monitoring and evaluating the area's closure, and set a timetable for reopening those waters. These measures are necessary to protect anglers from the "antis," said Richard Novotny, executive director of the Maryland Saltwater Sportfishermen's Association. "Some of the environmental groups have seen it fit to close waters to recreational fishing," he said.

It was the conflicting interests of conservationists, sportfishermen, and government that caused similar bills to fail last year, according to the Department of Legislative Services. "We felt the [Senate] bill was poorly written and needed to be precise in terms of defining a [marine protected area] and who it affected," said Robert Glenn, executive director of the Coastal Conservation Association.

Bill Goldsborough, senior scientist at the Chesapeake Bay Foundation, said the summer session was a "balancing act" to protect farmers and ensure the DNR could properly guard the state's waterways. "You want to protect the interests of fishermen, who want to avoid arbitrary closures of state waters, but you also want to be sure not to tie the hands of the resource agency," he said.

All sides worked with DNR and legislators to smooth the kinks in the bills last summer, and, according to Goldsborough, "Everybody is good with it now." Though Dyson said DNR supports the Senate bill, the agency did not return calls seeking comment.

One of Maryland's most popular hobbies, recreational fishing supports more than 11,000 jobs in the state and generates more than $1 billion in economic output, according to the bill. For this and other reasons, Dyson said, "I believe this worthwhile piece of legislation has an excellent chance to pass because I can't think of anyone who would want to deprive our sportfishermen of the right to fish as long as they are following all of the laws governing the sport.

"All I want to do," he added, "is to simply protect a great American tradition."

Casselman Soccer Sets Date For Make-Up Regis.

The AYSO Region 861 Casselman Valley Soccer League will hold a make-up registration for the spring season on Tuesday, Feb. 3, from 6 to 8 p.m., at the Grantsville Elementary School.

The spring season takes place from April through June and is for players ages 5 through 19 (with a birth date between Aug. 1, 1984, and Jan. 31, 1999).

The registration fee is $30 per player, and players not participating in a scheduled fund-raiser must add $25 to the registration fee for the first player, $20 for the second player, and $15 for the third player. There is a $60 maximum per family. Late registration, after Feb. 1, is $60 per player, providing that space is available.

Included in participation is a full uniform (socks, shorts, and a team shirt), a medical reimbursement plan, subscription to Soccer Now, and a soccer picnic/mini-tournament on June 19.

For more information, persons may contact Wendell Yoder at 814-634-5219 or Chuck Trautwein at 301-895-3231.

Markwood, Fox's, Westvaco Win In Oakland League

Markwood Citgo, Fox's Pizza, and Westvaco were all winners in Oakland Recreation Basketball League games played Sunday.

Markwood topped Quality Machine, 60-41, with Rick Selders leading the winners in scoring with 13 points. Mike Harvey hit a game-high 17 points for Quality.

Doug Copeland paced Fox's to a 51-50 squeaker over M Acres Boys with a 14-point effort, while Bill Franklin led M Acres with 12 points.

Westvaco edged Mettiki Coal, 54-52, as Walt Ward and Mike Burdock netted 12 and 11 points, respectively, for the winners. Joey DiSimone hit a week-high 20 points in a losing effort.

Game times have been changed for this Sunday, Feb. 1, because of the Super Bowl. The schedule is as follows: Westvaco vs. Quality Machine, 2 p.m.; Mettiki vs. M Acres Boys, 3 p.m.; and Markwood Citgo vs. Fox's Pizza, 4 p.m.

Fresh Air Fund Volunteers Are Being Recruited

Garrett County volunteer leaders for the Fresh Air Fund, a program that provides rural vacations for New York City children, are currently recruiting local persons who are willing to serve as committee members and/or host families for the summer of 2004.

Each summer nearly 6,000 children, ages 6 to 18, spend two-week vacations with volunteer host families in suburban and small-town communities across 13 northeastern states and in Ontario, Canada. Local Fresh Air Fund volunteers recruit and interview host families, check references, and coordinate Friendly Town Program activities in their communities.

For more information on how to join the local Fresh Air volunteer team, persons may telephone Alice Orendorf at 301-245-4326 or the Fresh Air Fund at 1-800-367-0003. Persons can also learn more about the Friendly Town Program by visiting the Fund's web site at www.freshair.org.

forced to break off their pursuit. The suspect vehicle continued north to Keysers Ridge, then turned west on Route 40 and fled into Pennsylvania.

The suspect vehicle was located Thursday morning in Uniontown with some of the merchandise still in its trunk. Leads developed from the car helped police officers from the MSP, Pennsylvania State Police, and Connellsville Police Department identify the suspects, and investigators visited their residences to conduct interviews.

Charges including felony theft and assorted traffic violations are expected to be filed this week, according to GBI detective and lead investigator Tfc. J.B. Schlossnagle.

request at a Dec. 5 sentence review. At that hearing White and her attorney presented evidence from psychological testing that they claimed showed she was acting as a victim herself of Bruce Allen Sarver, her live-in boyfriend at the time who is also serving a life sentence for the child's death.

The 1986 trials of White and Sarver concluded with decisions that although Sarver had delivered the fatal blows, White had also, by her own admission, struck the child at least once before she lapsed into a coma at the couple's trailer home located between Bloomington and Swanton. The child died after being beaten and kicked for several days because she had hidden a wallet containing money and food stamps from White and Sarver.

In her request for leniency, White claimed that her own past of child abuse had led to an addiction to alcohol that made her not fully responsible for her actions. She cited psychologists' diagnoses of severe, chronic post-traumatic stress disorder, chronic depression, and anxiety and personality disorders at the time of the murder.

A petition of nearly 6,500 signatures from those opposed to the sentence reduction request was delivered to the judges' panel prior to their decision.

White has also filed a request for a new trial because of alleged mistakes made by her former defense attorney, Michael Morrissette, who supports White's claim that her defense was inadequate.

Ask The Everyday Scientist

by Dr. Thomas P. Sheahen

SENDING COMMANDS TO MARS

Q. Mars is about 100 million miles away! How can they possibly control the "rover" on Mars from back here on Earth?

It's not as hard as it sounds, because big distances don't cause any serious difficulties. The command signals take a finite amount of time to reach Mars, and you have to allow for that when you're transmitting commands. When NASA sends a radio beam from Earth to Mars, it takes around 10 minutes to get there; and another 10 minutes for a signal to come back.

Any electromagnetic wave travels at the speed of light (186,000 miles per second = 300,000,000 meters/second). The travel time of light coming from the sun (93 million miles) is about 8 minutes; it's a little over a second to the moon; and about a quarter-second out to a satellite in geosynchronous orbit. The travel time of signals to Mars is similar to the sun, depending on the relative positions of Earth and Mars in their orbits.

Anyway, knowing ahead of time that this is what you're going to be up against, you design the equipment in the first place to send a signal from Earth, receive it on Mars, and then take some kind of action under the control of that signal. What the rover can do is quite limited, so the commands are pretty much about aiming the camera or performing a chemical analysis. Once a picture is taken, the signal is sent back to earth (which again takes some time, typically several hours to transmit all the data). It's like waiting for a long, slow download over the Internet.

The scientists look at the data and then decide what they want to do next. Only after that can they send another command signal, usually the next day.

If you're going to steer a rover around the surface of the planet, you better have a pretty good idea of what's up ahead before you send the "go forward" signal – because if your rover falls into a crevasse, you're out of business. Again, knowing this risk in advance, the device itself has some monitors and feedback mechanisms built in to prevent it from doing obviously stupid things like smashing into a big rock.

Basically, long-distance transmitted space commands are not very sophisticated. The rover can't make decisions very fast – nothing comparable to what a man could do walking around the surface of the moon. But still, it's very impressive that they can control the craft at all from a distance of so many millions of miles.

Clearly, if your electromagnetic transmission shuts off, you've lost the ability to control the rover. That can happen if the power supply runs down, if the antenna fails, if something unexpected happens in the software and a component gets changed in a way from which you cannot recover. There are a great variety of things that can go wrong. What is truly amazing is that things go right so much of the time.

We know that Earth's orbit (365 days) and Mars's orbit (687 days) are such that sometime in the next year Mars is going to be on the opposite side of the sun from Earth. Kind of like an eclipse, in reverse. Therefore there will come a day when the signals can't get to Mars because the sun is in the way. But by then, the power supply will have run down and the mission will be over.

Swanton Center To Serve Dinner

The Swanton Community Center will serve a buckwheat cake and sausage dinner on Saturday, Feb. 7. Serving will begin at 4 p.m. and continue until the food is gone.

The cost for the meal is $5 for adults and $2.50 for children. Pancakes will also be available.

All proceeds from the dinner will support the various community service projects of the center.

GC Map Books Available From Planning Office

The Garrett County Planning and Zoning Office has a shipment of the updated 9-1-1 map books available for the public to purchase.

The books, though similar to the old edition, have some improvements designed for easier use. They show all roads recognized in the county's 9-1-1 system as of July 2003 and sell for $10 each.

The books may be purchased at the Planning and Zoning office Monday through Friday between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. The office is located in Room 210 in the new section of the courthouse in Oakland.

Why did you take him that August day?
We were having a great time and he went away.
He went so quick we couldn't say anything,
No goodbyes not even a farewell.
Oh how much we just wanted to say
We will always love
But there wasn't enough time,
So all we could do was cry
Now today is his birthday.
And all we want to say is,
We love you. Happy 61 Birthday.

Garrett County SKIES

By Dr. Bob Doyle
Frostburg State Planetarium

THE SUN–The sun spends most of the month in Capricornus, moving into Aquarius on February 16. The amount of daily sunlight increases by about 2 minutes each day in February. In early February the sun rises about 7:25 a.m., and sets around 5:35 p.m. In late February sunrises are about 6:50 a.m. while sunsets are about 6:05 p.m. The sun's mid-day height during February grows from 33 to 42 degrees (45 degrees is halfway from the horizon to the top of the sky). In February the length of twilight is an hour. This means that the fainter stars fade from view an hour before sunrise and the fainter stars reappear an hour after sunset. In mid-February, we have 11.3 hours of night for star gazing. February 6 is the mid-day of winter, with 44.5 days of winter having elapsed.

THE MOON–February opens with the evening moon two thirds full and shining high in the south at dusk. On February 2 the moon appears near the bright planet Saturn. The moon grows to full on the evening of February 5; this full moon is known as the "Snow Moon," the "Wolf Moon," or the "Hunger Moon." On February 7 and 8 the nearly full moon appears near the very bright planet Jupiter. A dozen days into February the moon has shifted into the morning sky, most easily viewed at dawn. Around February 20 the moon is hidden in the sun's glare. On February 23 the moon appears near the brilliant planet Venus in the western dusk. On February 25 the moon appears just below the planet Mars. On the evening of February 27 the moon is half full and at its best for viewing the moon's craters and mountains with binoculars or telescopes. Along the moon's straight edge (left side of moon), the most surface features can be seen.

THE BRIGHT PLANETS–Our five nearest planetary neighbors appear as points of light that shine steadily, unlike the bright night stars that twinkle. Venus dominates the early evening sky, blazing in the west. Venus is three times as bright as the next brightest planet (Jupiter); our neighbor world is also a half dozen times as bright as the brightest night star (Sirius). Above and to the left of Venus is the planet Mars, about as bright as the brighter stars in Orion. Near the top of the early evening sky is the bright planet Saturn, shining in the star group Gemini. The very bright planet Jupiter dominates the mid evening eastern sky. In late February the two brightest planets can be seen on opposite sides of the sky at dusk: Venus sparkles low in the west while Jupiter gleams in the east. The innermost planet Mercury is hidden in the sun's glare during February.

THE STARS–The evening sky's best sight is the star group Orion in the south. Orion's trademark is his belt of three stars in a row. Orion's belt points down and left to Sirius, the night's brightest star. Another highlight of February evenings is the Big Dipper, now more than halfway up in the North Northeast.

FEBRUARY ASTRONOMY ACTIVITIES–The Frostburg State Planetarium will feature "Saturn, the Maya, and Black Holes" on Sundays at 4 p.m. and 7 p.m. These free public programs last about 50 minutes and begin with a brief live tour of the current evening sky. Persons may call 301-687-4270 for further information and directions on how to get to the planetarium.

The Cumberland Astronomy Club will meet at 7:30 p.m. on Friday, Feb. 20, at the LaVale Public Library. All interested sky gazers are welcome.

Dr. Doyle writes this column for beginners who would like to identify the brightest stars, planets and sights in their backyards. To ask questions or get a free brochure or sky charts, persons may call the FSU Planetarium at 301-687-4270 and press 4. Doyle hosts "SkyWatch," a brief program on days of the week and sky sights, that airs weekday evenings just before 9 p.m. on WFWM at 91.9 FM in western Garrett County and 96.3 FM in the Oakland area. Doyle's e-mail address is rdoyle@frostburg.edu.

RETURN FROM MOSCOW MISSION TRIP – Don and Carol Moss, pictured on New Year's night in Red Square with the Cathedral of St. Basil the Blessed in the background, recently returned from a Volunteers in Mission (VIM) trip to Russia. The 12-day trip was sponsored by the United Methodist Volunteers in Mission of the West Virginia Annual Conference. There were 41 people on the team from six states. The main purpose of the trip was to spend time in Russian orphanages and to celebrate New Year's and the Russian Orthodox Christmas with the children. Many gifts were donated for the children and enough funds were given to send 600 youngsters to the circus. The team was divided into four groups, and the first three days were spent living in four orphanages outside Moscow. The rest of the time was spent in the city, where six more orphanages were visited. The volunteers also spent an afternoon in a retirement/nursing home. VIM has sent work teams to 13 different countries and into eight states in the U.S. To learn more about the program or to get information to join a team, persons may contact Rev. Tom Clark at wvumvim@yahoo.com or at P.O. Box 969, Summersville, WV 26651, telephone: 304-872-9400. The web page may be found at www.kvinet.com/~tomclark/. The Mosses are available as speakers on the VIM program.

New Officers Installed By Gorman VFD

The Gorman Volunteer Fire Department recently installed officers for 2004. Installed were Isadore Skeweris, president; Raymond O'Haver, vice president; and Helen Neel, secretary and treasurer.

The other new officers are Mike Steyer, chief; Gregg Savage, deputy chief; Johnny Mayne, assistant chief and training officer; Robbie Kitzmiller, captain; Gary Pritts, lieutenant; Denny Riley, safety officer; Danny Moon EMS captain; Marshall Neel, EMS lieutenant; Stuart Harvey, chaplain; and Raymond O'Haver, historian.

"The department would like to thank everyone, including organizations, who have given us donations throughout the year," said a spokesperson. "They are deeply appreciated."

Local Students On Dean's List At WV Wesleyan College

Three Garrett County residents have been named to the fall 2003 semester dean's list at West Virginia Wesleyan College.

They are Nathan Gregg and Jeremy Kisner, both of Kitzmiller, and Kyle Snyder of Oakland.

Students on the dean's list have achieved a 3.5 or higher grade-point average for the semester while carrying a load of at least 12 semester hours.

On Dean's List At McDaniel

Two local students were named recently to the fall 2003 semester dean's list at McDaniel College. Both Craig Russell Wishnick, Accident, and Suzanne Rees Gilbert, Mtn. Lake Park, received highest honors.

A minimum 3.4 grade-point average is required for inclusion on the list. Highest honors are earned for a 3.80 to 4.30, high honors for a 3.60 to 3.79, and honors for a 3.40 to 3.59.

Nominations For Social Worker Of The Year Sought

The Allegany/Garrett Social Work Caucus of the Western Maryland Area Health Education Center (WMAHEC) is seeking nominations for its Social Worker of the Year Award, JoAnn Fletcher, community program coordinator, recently announced.

She noted that nominees must be licensed social workers in the state of Maryland, have made specific outstanding contributions to the profession, display leadership in the profession, have earned the respect of fellow social workers, represent the professional ethics of social work, practice in Allegany or Garrett County, and, preferably, be a current caucus member.

The award will be presented at the caucus's annual social work luncheon in March.

"March is Social Work Month, a time when social workers formally observe the profession's unique role in society," said Fletcher.

To request a nomination form or obtain more details about the luncheon, persons may call Jackie Booth, WMAHEC, at 301-777-9150, ext. 117, or e-mail her at jbooth@allconet.org. One may also call Anita Rozas at 301-729-7246, or e-mail her at ahartmanrozas@dpscs.state.md.us. All nominations should be received by WMAHEC no later than Feb. 18.

Showtime dishes up more 'Soul Food'

By Taylor Michaels
© Zap2it

Cast of "Soul Food"

Q: Will we be seeing any new episodes of Showtime's "Soul Food" or was it not renewed? –Maggie S., Tallahassee, Fla.

A: I'm very glad you asked, because contrary to information that appeared here several months ago, Showtime has indeed announced a fifth and final season of the popular family drama. Nicole Ari Parker, Malinda Williams, Vanessa Williams and their male co-stars return in new episodes starting Feb. 25.

Q: I was very sad to learn of Janice Rule's death. Was she married to Ben Gazzara at one point? What did she die of? –Paul Julian, Sanborn, N.Y.

A: Rule, a beautiful and hugely talented actress who starred in the original Broadway production of "Picnic," died Oct. 17, 2003, of a cerebral hemorrhage. She was 72.

The Ohio native, who was married to Ben Gazzara from 1961 to 1979, was a smart free spirit who ran her life and career on her own terms. She often turned down lucrative movie jobs in favor of theater work, which she found more rewarding. She once lost a studio contract because she chafed under rules that studio wardrobe and makeup artists had to "outfit" her any time she was to appear in public, regardless of whether she was working.

Rule earned a doctorate from the Southern California Psychoanalytic Institute in 1983 and had a private practice in Manhattan. She made her final TV acting appearance in a 1992 episode of "The Ray Bradbury Theater" entitled "Some Live Like Lazarus."

Q: Where else might I have seen actor Shawn Christian, who played Jake Cunningham in the holiday movie "Undercover Christmas"? –R.F. via e-mail.

A: If you watch daytime television, you may remember Christian, 38, from his work as Mike Kasnoff in "As the World Turns" or Ross Rayburn in "One Life to Live." If you "collect" TV flops, perhaps you know Christian from the short-lived Bo Derek NBC bomb "Wind on Water" back in 1998.

The handsome actor also has had recurring roles on "Birds of Prey," "Beverly Hills, 90210" and "Crossing Jordan," as well as guest appearances on "Becker," "Haunted," "Friends," "The Chronicle," "CSI: Crime Scene Investigation," "V.I.P.," "Charmed" and "Ellen," among several others.

Coming up, Christian stars with Lori Loughlin in The WB Network midseason family drama "Summerland" and co-stars with Steve Martin and Claire Danes in a feature adaptation of Martin's comic novel "Shopgirl."

Q: I haven't seen Jimmy Smits since he left "NYPD Blue." What is he doing? –Michelle J., San Antonio.

A: Smits, who started his acting career in the theater, has returned to his stage roots in a big way. He recently opened on Broadway in the Pulitzer Prize-winning drama "Anna in the Tropics."

TRIVIA

Cate Blanchett ("The Gift") took a job as a movie extra in a boxing film after she found herself stranded in Egypt with no money.

TRIVIA

IN FOCUS

Michael Wood, a writer, historian and documentarian, hosts the four-part series "In Search of Shakespeare," premiering Wednesday, Feb. 4, and airing consecutive Wednesdays on PBS (check local listings).

The first episode, "A Time of Revolution," traces his youth as a teenage father, including his shotgun marriage. In "The Lost Years," he becomes a star. "The Duty of Poets" depicts fame and midlife crisis, and "For All Time" takes on "Macbeth" and the riddle of Shakespeare's will.

Baseball Pennants

Q. I found 46 baseball pennants in my mother's attic that I think might be collectible. They feature such players as Ty Cobb, Sam Crawford, Ray Morgan, Grover Alexander and others. Who can I contact to see how much they are worth? — B.E.F., Willmar, Minn.

A. Almost anything that is illustrated with the picture of a ballplayer or sports figure has value, especially earlier items. Les Wolffe is an appraiser who specializes in sports memorabilia. His address is P.O. Box 650037, Flushing, NY 11365. Two dealers who might also be helpful are Paul Longo, Paul Longo Americana, P.O. Box 5510, Gloucester, MA 01930; and Ken Adelson, Adelson Sports, 13690 N. Scottsdale Road, No. 10, Scottsdale, AZ 85234.

Q. In 1975, I purchased an MGM commemorative bar mirror celebrating the 50th anniversary of the studio. I need a value on it so I can add it to my homeowner's policy. Can you recommend a good appraiser? — Frank, Quincy, Ill.

A. Vaughn K. Mann is the owner of Cinema Recall, and he buys and sells nearly any and all movie memorabilia. His address is P.O. Box 1021, New London, CT 06320.

Q. I have a small pile of Playgirl magazines and would like to find a good home for them. — Debbie, St. Clair, Mich.

A. I suggest you contact The Centerfold Shop, 1220 23rd St., Suite 2-M, San Diego, CA 92102. For Playboy, two sources include Ken Ritchie, P.O. Box 22604, Memphis, TN 38122; and Denis C. Jackson, P.O. Box 1958, Sequim, WA 98382.

Raw Food Diets

Q. I recently read your article on vegetarian diets for dogs or cats. I agree that dogs and cats should be like their omnivore ancestors and eat mostly a meat diet. I am a registered dietitian, and I believe the more natural a diet is, for both humans and animals, the better.

I recently switched my toy poodle to an all-natural diet of raw bones, meat and vegetables. The diet is often referred to as the "B.A.R.F" diet (biologically active raw food). The raw diet has done wonders for her allergies and general health, and there is much less waste to pick up. There are plenty of good Web sites available containing information on this type of diet. Thank you. — Laura Donnelly, R.D., via e-mail

A. Thanks, Laura. The raw food diet is one example of a move by pet owners toward feeding their pets freshly prepared food rather than simple table scraps.

While I recommend owners feed their dog or cat fresh, lightly steamed meat and vegetables at least once a week, I have some reservations about a diet featuring raw meat. My cat's veterinarian warns that raw meats can transmit bacteria, such as E. coli, or even parasites to a pet. So, before switching your dog or cat to a raw diet, do your research carefully and follow specific guidelines.

Here's a fresh recipe for cats from the "Cat Owner's Manual" by Dr. Bruce Fogle (Dorling Kindersley, $25). It features chicken, liver, rice and bone meal:

5 oz. chicken
1 oz. liver
2.5 oz. uncooked rice
1/3 oz. sterilized bone meal
Pinch of iodized salt
1 tsp. sunflower or corn oil

Cook the rice, bone meal, salt and oil in twice the volume of water for 20 minutes. Add the chicken and liver, simmering for another 10 minutes. Blend thoroughly.

Strange BUT TRUE

By Samantha Weaver

• It was once widely believed that steam-powered passenger trains could never go much faster than a horse could gallop because the high speed would cause those on board to die from lack of oxygen, the air sucked from their lungs.

• It's still not known who defined a vacation as "a period of travels and relaxation when you take twice the clothes and half the money you need."

• Christopher Columbus was no stranger to rejection. He proposed the idea of his famous voyage to King John II of Portugal, but he was turned down. King Ferdinand and Queen Isabella of Spain eventually did fund the journey, but only after they rejected his idea twice.

• When Ian Fleming's first James Bond book was to be made into a movie, he wanted to meet the man who was to be cast as the suave spy. After meeting Sean Connery, he declared, "I'm looking for Commander James Bond, not an overgrown stunt man."

• The world's first traffic signal was in England, and it was put up surprisingly early — in 1868.

• How do you stack up against the general population when it comes to credit cards? Only 9 percent of Americans don't have any credit cards — almost as many people have a charge card as have a driver's license. The average person who has this type of credit carries eight to 10 cards, and the average balance on a credit card is more than $2,000. The debt situation may not be as bad as it seems, however; in order to avoid temptation, more than a third of Americans have cut up one or more of their charge cards.

Moments in time

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Feb. 8, 1692, Abigail Williams and Betty Parris are declared by a doctor to be "under an evil hand," precipitating a series of sensational accusations of witchcraft in the town of Salem, Mass. Williams and Parris were the teenage niece and daughter of local pastor Samuel Parris, who was immediately suspicious of the influence of his slaves, Tituba and John Indian.

• On Feb. 4, 1926, the Western Association of Motion Picture Advertisers forecasts the success of a group of young actresses. The group's published list of "Baby Stars" included Joan Crawford, Mary Astor and Fay Wray, all of whom became Hollywood hits.

• On Feb. 6, 1937, John Steinbeck's novella "Of Mice and Men," the story of the bond between two migrant workers, is published. The story brought national attention to Steinbeck's work, which had started to catch on in 1935 with the publication of his first successful novel, "Tortilla Flat."

• On Feb. 2, 1943, the last German troops in the Soviet city of Stalingrad surrender to the Red Army, ending one of the pivotal battles of World War II.

• On Feb. 3, 1953, French oceanographer Jacques-Yves Cousteau publishes his most famous and lasting work, "The Silent World."

• On Feb. 5, 1994, Byron de la Beckwith is convicted of the assassination of civil-rights leader Medger Evers 31 years earlier, ending the lengthiest murder case in American history.

• On Feb. 7, 1999, King Hussein of Jordan, the 20th century's longest-serving executive head of state, dies, and his son Prince Abdallah bin Hussein ascends to the throne. King Hussein was a member of the Hashemite dynasty, said to be in direct line of descent from the Prophet Mohammed.

Listening & Learning

In our fast-paced, twenty-first century society it has been said that we listen less than ever before. Perhaps that is true or perhaps we listen in different ways: tele-conferences instead of visits, cell phones instead of meals, and MP3 players instead of concerts. In any case, we can always listen more, especially to age-old wisdom, to worthwhile social mores, and to solid spiritual principles.

Proverbs 4:13 instructs, "Take fast hold of instruction, let her not go; keep her; for she is thy life." This is a strong verse, one worth reading again. If "she (instruction) is thy life", we must choose carefully those to whom we listen. Many of us assume that we already have the answers. However, Benjamin Franklin had this to say: "Learn of the skillful; he that teaches himself, hath a fool for his master."

You can find instruction in numerous ways. One sure place to find it is in your local church or synagogue. Won't you listen and learn about your Heavenly Father as you worship this Sabbath? Let God be your Master.

God Is Our Refuge and Strength

Being a religious, God-fearing person does not mean that our lives will be trouble-free. Recently, I was talking to a woman who was somewhat upset because, despite her support and attendance at church each week, she still had so many problems. It is important to understand that just praying, going to church or reading the Bible will not help us unless we are transformed into a better person. Also, becoming more spiritual does not mean that our problems or life's issues will be lessened, nor even any easier to deal with. We should realize that there is really little security here on earth. Material things usually provide only short-term happiness or stability. God's security is forever, and knowing that He cares about us should help us to better accept our various ordeals. Our Lord had to bear His cross, and we too will have crosses to bear in our daily lives. We can find consolation in the Bible, where God tells us that He is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble (Psalm 46:1). We never have to face our problems alone, because God is always with us, and He will never abandon us. Improving our relationshipwith our Heavenly Father and focusing on His many blessings will help us to more readily accept our trials and realize how much God loves us.

Call upon Me in the day of trouble; I will deliver you, and you shall glorify me.
– R.S.V. Psalm 50:15

Green Tea May Provide Protection Against HIV

When taken by mouth green tea has been shown to improve mental functioning. It may also lower levels of total cholesterol and triglycerides in the bloodstream. In addition, there is also evidence to suggest that drinking green tea regularly may prevent breast, bladder, esophageal, stomach, ovarian, and pancreatic cancers. Drinking green tea has also been shown to help minimize diarrhea in some instances.

According to the results of new research published recently in the Journal of Allergy and Clinical Immunology, green tea may have a role in preventing the spread of HIV, which is the virus responsible for AIDS (acquired immune deficiency syndrome). One of the major components of this tea seems to prevent the binding of the HIV virus to human white blood cells called CD4 cells, which represents the first step in HIV infection. It is this same component in this type of tea that is thought to be responsible for green tea's beneficial effects in cardiovascular disease and in the prevention of certain cancer types.

DeVore to Intern for Senator Hafer

Local resident Adam DeVore, a senior at Frostburg State University, will be interning with state Senator John J. Hafer (R) during the 2004 legislative session. "Adam will be a tremendous asset to our team in Annapolis. We expect great things from him," commented Hafer, who represents Garrett, Allegany, and Washington counties in the Maryland General Assembly.

DeVore is participating in an FSU internship program directed by political science professor John Bambacus. DeVore will have the opportunity to attend committee meetings and hearings, track legislation, write press releases, respond to constituents' concerns and questions, and testify before a Senate committee. The intern will also be able to sit on the Senate floor with Hafer during legislative deliberations. "Being able to see actual Senate proceedings will be quite interesting for me," stated DeVore.

DeVore is on schedule to receive his bachelor of science degree in political science and justice studies in May, and intends to begin graduate studies in the fall. He is the son of Linda Chapman, Frostburg, and Fred DeVore, Westernport, and is a 2000 graduate of Beall High School.

GC Community Action To Accept Applications

Garrett County Community Action Committee Inc. office of the Home Energy Program, formerly known as Maryland Energy Assistance Program, will be at the Grantsville Senior Center taking applications on Feb. 6 from 8:30 a.m. to noon and 1 to 4:30 p.m. for those who haven't applied since July 1, 2003.

Persons with questions should call Denise at 301-334-9341, ext. 121, or 1-888-877-8403, ext. 121.

Mathias To Be March Of Dimes Walk Chairman

The Maryland March of Dimes has announced that James N. Mathias Jr., mayor of Ocean City, will serve as the first statewide chairman for WalkAmerica, the March of Dimes' biggest fund-raising event. Funds raised from WalkAmerica support March of Dimes' efforts to prevent premature birth, the leading cause of death in the first month of life.

"What we're doing here in WalkAmerica will help the 181 Maryland babies that are born prematurely each week and their families. Prematurity takes a devastating physical toll on babies. It robs families of the full potential of their beloved children, society of future leaders, and our state of strong and healthy citizens. We have the ability to change that if we work together, and I know we can get the job done for our babies," Mathias said.

Money raised for WalkAmerica supports research and programs to help find answers to premature birth and other infant health threats. The results benefit babies in every Maryland community and across the nation, according to a March of Dimes spokesperson.

"Known throughout the state for his community leadership, Mathias will bring added visibility and his passion for the people of Maryland to his new role as state chair of WalkAmerica," the spokesperson said.

"I'm urging all my friends across Maryland to support WalkAmerica 2004 – It will give us all a good feeling to be part of something so big that helps babies who are so very small and vulnerable," Mathias said.

A Maryland native, Mathias was born in Baltimore, attended Calvert Hall College in Towson, and graduated from the University of Maryland, Baltimore County. He moved to Ocean City in 1974 to run the family business started by his father. He currently owns a retail store on the Boardwalk.

WalkAmerica will take place in 16 communities across the state during April and May. To register for WalkAmerica on Saturday, April 24, in Cumberland, or on Saturday, Sept. 11, in Swanton, persons should visit walkamerica.org or call 301-722-5818. State sponsor of Maryland WalkAmerica 2004 is CareFirst BlueCross BlueShield.

The March of Dimes is a national voluntary health agency whose mission is to improve the health of babies by preventing birth defects and infant mortality. Founded in 1938, the March of Dimes funds programs of research, community services, education, and advocacy to save babies. In 2003, the March of Dimes launched a five-year campaign to address the increasing rate of premature birth.

Brandy Wagner, Accident, is seeking an associate degree in dental hygiene toward a career as a registered dental hygienist.

She is a 2003 graduate of Northern High School, where she was senior class secretary and participated in volleyball and track. Wagner began her college studies while in high school using distance-learning technology.

She is the daughter of Ron and Connie Wagner.

NHS After-Prom Committee Slates Planning Meetings

The Northern High School After-Prom Committee will hold several planning meetings during the next several weeks. The dates are as follows: Feb. 3, March 2, April 1, and May 4. All will be held at 6 p.m. at Annie's Kitchen in Accident.

"Please mark your calendars," said a committee spokesperson, "your help is greatly needed." For more information, persons may call Debbie Workman at 301-746-8717.

Reunion-Planning Meeting Slated By SHS Class Of '79

The Southern High School class of 1979 will hold a reunion-planning meeting this Saturday, Jan. 31, at 5 p.m. at the Long Branch Saloon, Mtn. Lake Park.

Any interested classmates wishing to help plan the reunion, scheduled for Oct. 15, are asked to attend.

Classmates with questions or whose addresses have changed since the last reunion are asked to call Roberta Johnson-Cvetnick at 301-334-1891.

4-H Club News

RED HOUSE 4-H
by Brittany Green

The January meeting of the Red House 4-H Club was recently called to order by Levi Green. Catlin Jones called roll. Levi also read over the club agreement.

The club members decided that they wanted Missy Paugh to talk to them about how to give good demonstrations. The club also decided to make crafts for the nursing homes. The club's community project will be mowing the Moreland family graveyard.

Demonstrations for this month were given by Justin Fitzwater and Josh Wotring.

A beef workshop was held on Jan. 22. The meeting covered the various parts of an animal and what judges might ask the club members when they show an animal.

The new officers for this year are Stephanie Brenneman, president; Levi Green, vice president; Catliñ Jones, secretary; Nathan Sines treasurer; Annie Graham, photographer; and Brittany Green, reporter.

The officers made up the yearly activity calendar so that the members would know what they wanted to vote on. Brittany Green, Tina Green, and Catlin Jones also attended an officers' workshop at Southern Middle School.

County Officials Around State Feel Pinch Of Md. Budget Cuts

by Rolando Garcia
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – Maryland county officials sharply criticized Gov. Robert Ehrlich's proposed budget last week for slashing more than $160 million in aid to local governments still reeling from last year's cuts. The largest cut is a $51 million reduction in highway funds distributed to counties for local roads, which comes on top of $51 million sliced by the General Assembly last session to take effect this year.

The lost transportation funds are hitting large and small counties alike, said David Bliden, executive director of the Maryland Association of Counties. To underscore the magnitude of the cuts, Bliden pointed out that the lost highway funds in Garrett County exceed the county's entire snow removal budget. "The deferral of maintenance will have a devastating impact on highway infrastructure," Bliden said.

"[Ehrlich] avoided making the tough decisions and presented a pass-the-buck budget," said David Weaver, spokesman for Montgomery County executive Doug Duncan.

Ehrlich's $23.8 billion budget includes a record $326 million increase for public schools. However, the budget was balanced largely through one-time revenue sources and Democratic lawmakers say Ehrlich, by refusing to raise sales or income taxes, is dodging the state's long-term fiscal woes.

Ehrlich's budget also cuts $30 million in grants to certain counties intended to offset the loss of property tax revenue prompted by mandated lower property tax rates near electric company power plants. Anne Arundel, Calvert, and Prince George's counties, which receive the bulk of the funds, were especially hard hit. Calvert County's $6 million loss in utility grants essentially erases the county's tax hikes last year, Bliden said. Prince George's County is taking a double hit, he said, because Mirant Inc., which operated a power plant there, went bankrupt and could not pay the $14 million it owed in property taxes, plus the county now stands to lose $7.7 million in lost utility grant revenue.

"People in Annapolis brag about funding the Thornton Act (for education), but it's a ruse because they're cutting aid to the counties," Bliden said.

Ehrlich's budget also cut $10 million in county aid earmarked for teacher pay raises and $13 million from funds to help counties buy and maintain land for parks. After last year's cuts, which totaled $185 million, 10 counties raised taxes, and Ehrlich's cuts may force another round of tax hikes, Bliden said.

Neil Bergsman, budget analysis director at the state Department of Budget and Management, said county officials should be relieved the cuts were not deeper. "Except for public schools and Medicaid, every part of the state budget is feeling the cuts," Bergsman said. "Local governments need to make some tough decisions to balance their budgets just like we did." The new influx of state cash for county school systems satisfies what county officials have long said is their top priority, he added.

Although Duncan raised Montgomery County taxes last year to make up for lost state revenue, he has ruled that out this year, Weaver said. "We'll just have to make some painful cuts."

Woman Pleads Guilty To October Homicide By Auto

An Oakland woman entered a guilty plea in Garrett County District Court last week to a charge of negligent automobile homicide while driving under the influence, and a pre-sentencing investigation has been ordered by Judge Ralph M. Burnett.

Julie Marie Jenkins, 23, was charged by Maryland State Police troopers in the wake of a 1:30 a.m., Oct. 15, crash on the ramp from westbound Interstate 68 to Chestnut Ridge Road that claimed the life of 25-year-old Grantsville resident Jody Lee Emerick.

Emerick was pronounced dead at the scene, where he was partially ejected from a 1998 Dodge Caravan that Jenkins was driving when it struck the rear of a parked tractor-trailer rig. The rig was parked on the shoulder of the ramp as the truck driver was taking a nap, and police said that the rig's running lights were on at the time of the mishap.

State troopers reportedly detected a strong odor of an alcoholic beverage coming from Jenkins' breath and said her speech was slurred. Jenkins allegedly admitted at that point to driving the vehicle, and was placed under arrest for driving while intoxicated because of her "obvious state of intoxication."

After being transported to the MSP McHenry Barrack, she consented to a breath test that indicated a blood alcohol level of .15, nearly twice that of the legal limit. She was advised of her Miranda rights, then reportedly started making numerous spontaneous statements, including admitting to driving the vehicle after drinking alcoholic beverages throughout the same evening at Wild Water Tavern on National Pike. The charging statement said that Jenkins did not recall what she had struck with her vehicle, and said all she remembered was driving and striking "something."

A sentencing date for Jenkins remains to be scheduled.

In other District Court news, Joshua Aaron Donoghue, 19, Oakland, pleaded guilty to contributing to a condition rendering a child in need of assistance and was handed a 60-day jail term, while additional charges of second-degree assault and fourth-degree sex offense were not prosecuted. Donoghue's August arrest by Garrett County sheriff's deputies stemmed from a sexual encounter with a 14-year-old girl at his residence that occurred after he had provided her with alcohol.

Jeremy Edward Sweitzer, 21, Oakland, pleaded guilty to driving while under the influence, while an associated charge of resisting arrest was placed on the stet docket. He was handed a six-month sentence, all but 30 days of which was suspended, and was fined $655 and placed on two years of supervised probation. Additional charges of indecent exposure, failure to obey a lawful order, and alcohol intoxication to the point of posing a danger were not prosecuted.

Sweitzer's August arrest by state troopers stemmed from an incident at the Harbor Bar parking lot, where he backed his truck into a tree, refused to cooperate with police officers, made threatening physical gestures, and urinated in public.

Candace J. Whittemore, 19, Fredericksburg, Va., pleaded guilty to marijuana possession, and received a 60-day suspended sentence, a $500 fine, two years of supervised probation, and 40 hours of community service. She was jailed by sheriff's deputies in August after a traffic stop near Hutton led to a search that uncovered the drug in her vehicle. Not prosecuted were charges of possession of cocaine and drug paraphernalia, and various traffic offenses.

Jay Michael Smith, 30, Portsmouth, Va., pleaded guilty to marijuana possession and was handed a probation before judgment (PBJ), along with a 30-day sentence with all but one day suspended, a $200 fine, six months of unsupervised probation, and 30 hours of community service. Smith was arrested in April by sheriff's deputies during a Hutton area traffic stop when a search located the drug. An additional charge of paraphernalia possession was not prosecuted.

Joseph Michael Collins, 24, Deer Park, pleaded guilty to marijuana possession and was handed a PBJ, along with a 30-day suspended sentence, a $200 fine, one year of supervised probation, and 20 hours of community service. Collins's June arrest by sheriff's deputies during an Oakland traffic stop resulted in a search that located the drug. An additional charge of paraphernalia possession was not prosecuted.

Collins was deemed not guilty on an unrelated charge of second-degree assault when his alleged victim refused to take the stand to testify. Sheriff's deputies filed the charge when they arrested Collins in July after he reportedly choked his wife during an argument. Alcohol was cited as a factor in his behavior.

DARE TO BE YOU, an 11-week program, will be held Thursdays beginning Feb. 12 at Crellin Elementary School. The program focus at this site will be on parents and their children, ages 2½ to 5 years. According to a Garrett County Health Department spokesperson, Dare to Be You focuses on basic key principles in decision-making and problem solving, self-discipline, assertiveness, positive communication and social skills, responsibility, role models, and self esteem. Rewards include family meals and workshop incentives for completion of the program. "I believe in this program because it creates a non-judgmental, nurturing environment for parents," said Sandy Sutton, preschool program coordinator. "I believe in the underlying principles and work to use them in my private and professional life." In the activity pictured above, workshop participants Marna Dunne and her son Joshua explore and express their feelings by rolling a "feelings cube." Parents encourage children to share a time when they felt this feeling. To be considered for participation in the Feb. 12 through April 22 program, persons may call the Health Department at 301-334-7730. This program is the result of collaboration between the Garrett County Partnership for Children and Families Inc., Health Department, Garrett County Community Action, and the Garrett County Board of Education.

Fraud, Identity Thefts Rise In Maryland, Slightly Above Nation

by HAZEL FEIGENBLAT
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON – Fraud and identity theft complaints rose last year in Maryland, leaving more than 10,000 victims around the state who were hit up for millions of dollars in 2003, the Federal Trade Commission reported recently.

The FTC said there were 4,124 reports of identity theft in the state in 2003, up from 3,497 a year earlier, and at least 5,931 cases of fraud, up from 4,131. The 31.8 percent increase in those crimes in Maryland slightly outpaced the nation, which saw the total for those crimes rise 27.9 percent, from about 404,000 to 516,740. And FTC officials said it is getting harder to track those criminals, because so many of the scams use the Internet.

J. Howard Beales III, director of the FTC's Bureau of Consumer Protection, said 55 percent of the cases reported nationally were Internet-related. That can mean the consumer was solicited via e-mail, saw an ad online, contacted a company electronically after seeing a print ad – or that the entire transaction took place on the Internet.

"Clearly, computers and the Internet have become a common part of the consumer experience. An interesting side note is that more consumers' complaints we received last year came via the Web," Beales said.

Caroline Henneman, chief of Criminal Investigations Division of Maryland Attorney General's Office, said her office has seen an increase in the number of identity theft complaints – but that does not mean there have been more prosecutions.

"Most of the cases are not prosecutable because we don't know who did it," Henneman said. But she could not say how many cases have been prosecuted in the state, because most are handled by county prosecutors. In Maryland, the FTC said that more than one-third of all fraud complaints were related to Internet auctions or services last year.

Henneman said thieves are even using fears about Internet scams as another way to scam people. Henneman cited the example of a recent fraud that involves an e-mail that appears to come from a bank, informing the recipient about suspicions of fraudulent activity. It then directs them to give up personal information, including PIN numbers, to verify the accounts are in order. Identity theft – where stolen personal information is used to commit fraud – can be committed by anyone from the baby-sitter who got a credit card number from the home where she worked to criminal organizations that buy and sell information that can be passed on for years.

Maryland reported 74.9 identity theft cases per 100,000 people last year, improving the state's ranking from ninth-worst in the nation in 2002 to 11th-worst in 2003. But the state regressed slightly in its fraud ranking for the year. There were 107.7 fraud cases reported for every 100,000 people in Maryland in 2003, moving the state to 13th-worst in the nation, one step down from 14th-worst in 2002.

The FTC said the Washington, D.C., area, which includes the Maryland suburbs, had the highest fraud rate in the nation last year, with 153.4 complaints per 100,000 people. The fraud claims in Maryland alone cost at least $8.8 million last year. The number would have been higher, but almost a quarter of the people who reported being victimized were able to recoup their money or stop payment before they were burned, the FTC said.

The frauds related to Internet auctions, shop-at-home and catalog sales, Internet services, advance-free loans and foreign money offers, the FTC said. Identity-theft cases involved misdirected government benefits and misuse of people's personal information to fraudulently get loans, run up credit card bills, and use phone and other utility accounts.

Beales said people must be extremely careful to protect their money and their personal information to keep both from falling into the wrong hands. Just giving a credit card to a waiter in a restaurant could open the door to an identity theft case, he said.

Steve Sakamoto-Wengel, assistant attorney general in the state's Consumer Protection Division, said people should check financial statements monthly and destroy all documents containing personal information. They should not do business on any Web site without first verifying who is on the other side of the computer, he said.

ACT Test Set For April 3; Deadline Noted

College-bound high school students can take the ACT Assessment on April 3, the next nationwide test date. The registration postmark deadline is February 27. Late registration postmark deadline is March 12 (an additional fee is required for late registration).

ACT scores are accepted by virtually all colleges and universities in the nation, including all Ivy League schools. The test fee is $26 ($29 in Florida). Colleges use ACT scores, along with a student's high school GPA, high school courses taken, extracurricular activities, and other information to help determine admissions and the appropriate course placement for new students.

The ACT Assessment is an achievement test in English, reading, math, and science. It measures what students have learned in high school, and the skills required for success in college. It is not an aptitude test. Some students find it more comfortable than an aptitude test because it reflects their high school curriculum. The ACT was administered more than 2 million times last year.

Students who have already taken the ACT may take it again and try for a higher score. Juniors can use their scores to examine academic weaknesses, take courses to correct those weaknesses, and retake the exam as seniors. Students who take the exam more than once can report only their highest composite score to prospective colleges if they choose.

For more information, including registration forms and test locations, persons should contact a high school guidance counselor or register online on ACT's web site, www.act.org. The web site also provides sample tests and the opportunity to order test prep materials.

THE MENTAL HEALTH CENTER

... is pleased to announce the offering of Adult LifeSkills–A Psychiatric Rehabilitation Service in Garrett County.

What are Psychiatric Rehabilitation Services? These services are designed to teach or restore skills necessary for recovery from mental illness and are provided by a trained and caring staff. Episodes of mental illness may delay or interrupt a person's capacity to manage one's daily responsibilities or pursue dreams, hindering one's ability to work, to learn or to get along with others. Rehabilitation service assists in expediting and sustaining recovery.

What is the Adult LifeSkills program? Adult Lifeskills offers both group activities and individual one-to-one sessions. Care managers assist participants in developing their rehabilitation plan, which is designed to address the participant's needs and desires. Regular reviews and modifications to the plan occur as progress is made. Services are designed to or wherever the person's needs are best addressed: at home, in the community, on the job or at our center.

Pilot's Career Path Travels From Cow Barn To Cockpit

By David Foster

It's a long way from the underside of a cow to eight miles in the air, but that's the course local resident Ken Miller has navigated from his parents' Grantsville dairy farm to a successful career as a professional pilot. Along a circuitous route Miller had to overcome a major hurdle, admittedly of his own creation—dropping out of high school at the age of 16.

"I wouldn't recommend dropping out of school to anyone, no matter what," Miller said. "It made getting to where I am today very, very difficult, much more so than it had to be; on the other hand, no one should consider dropping out to be the end of the world. You are what you make of yourself.

"I dropped out because at the time I thought I was going to be a farmer, and going to school on top of milking, feeding, cleaning, and the other farm chores was getting to be too much, so I thought, 'Why torture myself if I'm already doing what I'll be doing the rest of my life?' I didn't hate school at all—in fact I was a B student—so when I dropped out I thought I was making a good career choice."

What Miller soon realized, however, was that by quitting school before receiving his diploma he had painted himself into a corner that took a lot of hard work, encouragement from others, and a little luck to get out of.

"From the ages of 16 to 19, I began seeing that the time I wasn't spending in school was being gobbled up by the farm, and it wasn't going to change. I did love farming, especially working with machinery and equipment, but seeing that other people were having lives off the farm got me to thinking about what I might be missing."

When he was 18, Miller took his first off-farm job working part-time at the Yoder's Meats butchering plant. The following year he began full-time work as a truck driver for the local company, making regional deliveries to stores in Cumberland, and Clarksburg and Wheeling, W.Va., and longer runs into Lancaster, Pa., and New York City, which was "something else," he said with a laugh.

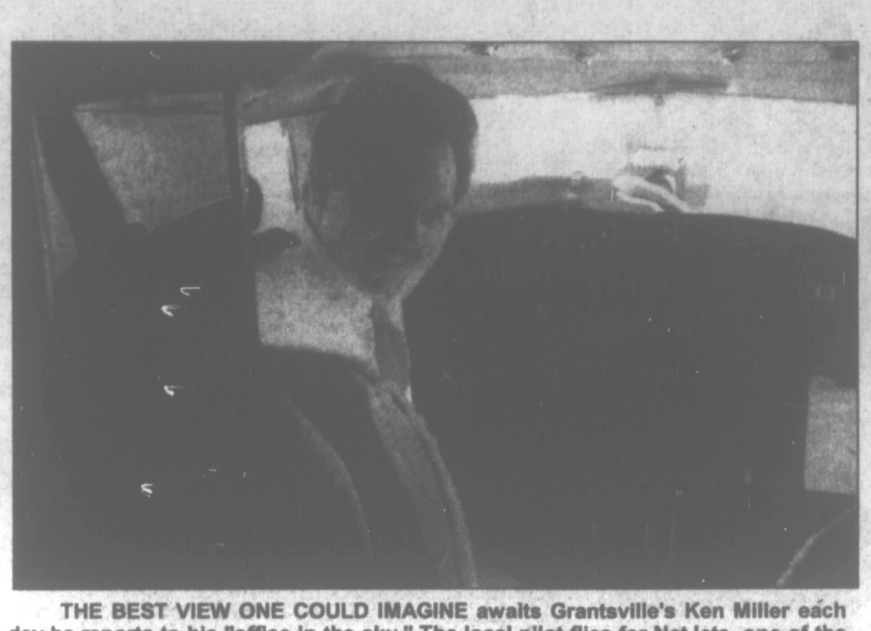
"I was the typical small-town boy in the big city, and didn't know enough to know how dangerous it could be in New York. I followed another driver in the first time, and was told flat-out to always keep my doors locked. It was also pretty much standard practice for all trucking companies making late-night deliveries—I usually arrived between 1 and 4 a.m.—to not stop at any red lights in the rougher parts of town, because trailers were sometimes broken into and looted while a driver was waiting for a light to change.

"What struck me most about the city, even more than the big buildings, was seeing so many people sleeping on cardboard out on the sidewalks. It would make me think, 'You see that on TV, but it's not supposed to be real,' and I'd wonder what each person's story was, and what could have possibly caused them to live like that."

After 2½ years of driving trucks, Miller climbed down from the cab to pursue other career possibilities. His varied résumé over the next seven years included construction work, equipment repair jobs at sites including Mettiki mining and Westvaco's Luke mill, raising veal calves, and traveling as a sales representative for a feed company.

"I really enjoyed all the people I worked with and worked for, but just couldn't find work that satisfied me," he observed. While doing those other things, he began laying the groundwork for a career in the air without even knowing that's where he'd eventually end up making his living.

"I took my first introductory flight at the age of 26, and spent a good while when I was employed as a feed sales rep working on getting my pilot's license. But it wasn't until I was 29, with a lot of encouragement from my wife Sheila, that I decided to make flying my career. That was a tough decision, because a lot of pilots know that's what they want to do by the time they're 18 or 19, and because I had dropped out of high school.



THE BEST VIEW ONE COULD IMAGINE awaits Grantsville's Ken Miller each day he reports to his "office in the sky." The local pilot flies for NetJets, one of the world's premier corporate aviation services, criss-crossing the North American continent at 500 miles per hour, 45,000 feet up, with a clientele list that includes famous politicians, movie stars, professional athletes, and top corporate executives. Note the myriad computer screen gauges Captain Miller must monitor covering the instrument panel, only a portion of which is visible. The NetJet Citation jet is pictured below from the exterior. Miller, who dropped out of Northern High School at the age of 16, says that everyone should complete their education, but the lack of one should not hinder anyone from reaching for their dream. See story.

"I thought flying was only for smart people, but Sheila convinced me to go for it. She had just gotten her first teaching job, and she had done a lot of talking to convince me to go against my grain of not producing financially and letting her income support us while I pursued flying. She would say over and over, 'Hey, we're used to living on not a lot of money, so let's do this now or you'll regret it the rest of your life'—and she was right.

"In a way it was kind of going back to something I had always dreamed of, because when I was a kid an uncle of mine was a bush pilot up north. He had great stories of flying in wilderness areas, having to be self-sufficient with his navigation and his plane, even making his own repairs. One time he had to land on a lake and get out on the water to repair a broken magneto himself; another time he saw a moose from the air, set his plane down nearby, and stalked it to kill it for meat. Being into both repairing machinery and hunting, those stories stuck with me.

"I can also vividly remember how I went with him in an old radial-engine Beech 18 'tail-dragger' as he flew supplies into Indian reservations when he was working for a missions group in Canada. I was pretty small then, but there was no heat in the plane and it still almost hurts to think about how cold it was—but I loved it."

With memories like that packed for his journey, Miller spent five days a week for the months of May through October 1993 feverishly working on earning his various pilot's licenses at the Somerset, Pa., airport. At the end of the span he possessed his instrument rating, private and commercial pilot's licenses, and flight instructor's license, all for propeller aircraft.

After driving trucks over the ensuing winter to help pay back for those flight lessons, Miller took a position as a flight instructor at the airport the following spring while also completing his GED. After "getting to know some folks" in the area, he picked up some commercial flying assignments out of Somerset and nearby Johnstown, but year-round employment was still a distant goal. For the next three winters he'd pack up his wings and go back to driving trucks and plowing snow to help make ends meet.

"I had my goal set all the while, so I just saw all the work I did in between as helping me get there," recalled Miller. "I was even looking pretty early on in my flying days at NetJets, the company I'm working for now. NetJets had minimum application requirements of 2,500 hours total flight time with 500 hours of that in multi-engine planes, and although it took three years of hard work to get that time, I knew what I wanted to do with it.

"I hit my minimums in January 1997, interviewed with the company in April, and was hired on May 1, four years to the day after I had begun putting everything into pursuing my career. I could tell in the interview that the company didn't look too favorably on my having dropped out of school, but they hired me anyway. The timing had something to do with it, because pilots were in big demand back then; now the demand has slowed down to the point that they require a college degree."

Even with his new career under way, Miller's education was far from over. He spent the first 10 months as a co-pilot, "sitting in the right seat," as he put it, and adjusting to a whole new way of flying. "It was quite a culture shock going from flying small, piston-engine prop planes with analog gauges to flying a jet with a 'glass cockpit,' which is what we call our jets with computer screens instead of instrument panels. It was also different learning to work as part of a flight crew instead of being a single pilot who does everything, and of course it was a fun adjustment to go from a typical cruising speed of 160 miles per hour to 500 mph."

Part of Miller's NetJets training required schooling in Wichita, Kan., for his jet rating. "That was incredibly tough, and by the second week I didn't know if I was going to make it. I'd call Sheila back home and she'd give me lots of good pep talks, and lots of family and friends were pulling for me. I couldn't have made it without that support."

Space limits a full accounting of now-Captain Miller's duties, but as a NetJets corporate pilot he is responsible for flying clients that include politicians, corporate executives, members of the news media, movie stars, and professional athletes throughout North America and the Caribbean. The work is challenging and highly technical, but suffice it to say that Miller loves his job.

"After seven years I still love going to work. Every takeoff is a thrill; the push back in the chair when you give the thrust a fistful of throttle feels like the world's best amusement park ride. And I've always loved handling equipment, and flying a jet is having some of the best equipment that produces huge amounts of power right at your fingertips. It's also beautiful up there, and there are still many times when I and fellow crew members with lots more years of aviation experience will sit and marvel how beautiful the sun and the clouds can be, and some of the scenery is just awesome, like the Grand Canyon, the Rocky Mountains, and the skyline of New York City," he observed.

"You won't find a crew who, on a clear night flying into New York, won't remark about how beautiful it is. Sometimes I'll think about how there's a lot of lives under those buildings and bright lights, including those homeless people I saw when I was driving trucks, and I think about them and also about all that's happened to me and how my life has changed since then. It makes me very grateful.

"I visit schools once in a while to talk to students about aviation as a career, and how if they're interested in flying they need to be doing well in school, especially in math, science, meteorology, and computer classes.

"I also always tell them right up front that I made a big mistake by dropping out. Kids have to pay attention in school, no matter if they think it's boring, because it will pay off someday—maybe not tomorrow or next month, but somewhere in their lives it will make a difference. I didn't have good study habits, and that really hurt me when I went to jet school and could have cost me everything I had worked so hard for.

"Kids, and people of all ages, have to realize that if they have a dream they need to go for it by focusing and working hard. Life's too short not to be doing what you love."

Maryland Grain Producers Board Allocates Funds

The Maryland Grain Producers Utilization Board (MGPUB) met recently to complete its annual process of allocating checkoff funds to various grant seekers. The funds are provided in the form of grants to carry out research, education, and the market development of grain.

This year the MGPUB funded 38 different grants for a total of $288,000, with $64,000 provided for research, $87,000 for education and $137,000 for market development. "It remains a difficult task deciding which projects to allocate funds toward, and this year was no exception," stated Bruce Burgess, MGPUB board member and an Eastern Shore grain farmer.

"Because the checkoff funds are based on a percentage of a farmer's net grain income, the level of funding varies each year depending on market prices and yields. Evaluating the available dollars for 2004, we again had to be conservative on our funding and looked at the projects that will benefit Maryland grain farmers the most. Although our board realizes all the grants applied for have value, we really had to weigh the comparative benefits of each when deciding which projects to fund and at what level," said Burgess.

In conjunction with recent consumer trends, MGPUB funded two projects this year that will work to combat grain's loss in market share due to the increase in demand for low-carbohydrate products.

The first is a new market development project that will examine calorie and carbohydrate contents of regionally grown, identity-preserved wheat varieties to develop a natural recipe for dough that will bake into products that are great tasting and significantly lower in carbohydrates than the low-carb bread products on the market today. Texture and sensory evaluations will be conducted on the finished breads to ensure a product that could translate into a value-added farmer-owned operation. This project is being conducted by Dr. Y. Martin Lo, an assistant professor and extension specialist in the Department of Nutrition and Food Science at the University of Maryland.

"This is an exciting project," commented Jim Saathoff, president of MGPUB. "It is important that we provide products that consumers demand. Whether one likes the Adkins diet or not, consumers are definitely trying it. As they look for low-carb foods, we can either provide them with a Maryland grain product—or not. If this work is successful, Maryland farmers will be able to fill this new niche market and continue to give our customer what they want on the grocery shelf."

The second project, conducted by the Wheat Foods Council, will take a different approach on the low-carb craze. The council's 2004 campaign, "The Great Grain Campaign: Bring Back the Carbs," will be a hard-hitting, political-style approach to educating consumers about the important role whole grains and even sweet desserts play in a balanced diet.

Other key areas of interest for funding allocations are research and education. MGPUB approved 11 research projects for 2004. New this year is a study that will be conducted on the highly marketed Poncho insecticide. This project will look at the product's effectiveness versus cost of usage to help producers make good management decisions.

New to the education grant lineup is a $5,000 grant to the James R. and Patricia M. Miller Endowment Fund in memory of a great friend and supporter of Maryland's grain and agriculture industry. This fund provides a scholarship to a deserving senior in the College of Agriculture and Natural Resources at the University of Maryland.

In addition, 18 MGPUB grants were approved for local or regional programs aimed at teaching school-age children about the importance of grains in their daily diet, while giving them a glimpse of Maryland's diverse agriculture industry.

All grant recipients must submit a report at the end of each year. This allows the MGPUB board to see exactly how monies were used and provides information for future funding distribution decisions.

For a complete listing of all grant proposals accepted and funded, persons may visit the MGPUB Web site at www.marylandgrain.com.

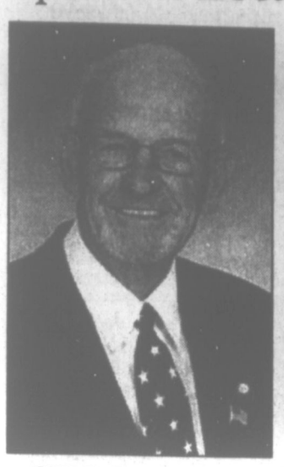
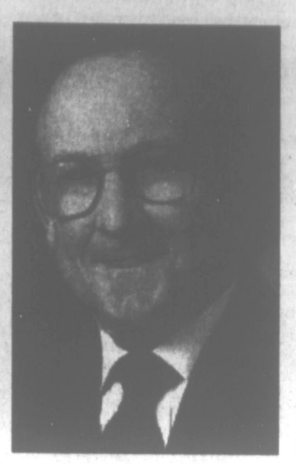
Top Agriculture Officials To Speak At Local Conference



GUS R. DOUGLASS



LOUIS RILEY

West Virginia Commissioner of Agriculture Gus R. Douglass and Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Louis Riley will be guest speakers at the Garrett-Preston Rural Development Coalition conference to be held at Garrett College in March, according to an announcement earlier this week by RDC chairman Dave Moran.

"We are very pleased and honored that Secretary Riley and Commissioner Douglass accepted the invitation to attend our annual economic conference on March 20. Their participation fully underscores the bi-county and interstate nature of our organization and our goals," Moran said.

Formed in 2001 by residents of Garrett County and Preston County, W.Va., the RDC works to strengthen the region's rural economy and improve opportunities for agricultural-based businesses, he explained, adding that Riley and Douglass have long supported the agricultural interests in their respective states and served on numerous councils and boards.

Douglass was elected to his ninth four-year term as West Virginia's commissioner of agriculture in November 2000. With 32 years of service, he is now the senior commissioner of agriculture in the United States.

In addition to his position as commissioner of agriculture, he and his son Tom operate their 400-acre family farm in Mason County, specializing in beef cattle and grain production.

Douglass served as president of the National Association of State Departments of Agriculture (NASDA) and the Southern Association of State Departments of Agriculture (SASDA), and was chairman of the Southern Regional Committee for Food and Agriculture under President Jimmy Carter. Additionally, he served twice as president of the Southern United States Trade Association (SUSTA), was a member of several national agriculture committees and task forces, and has been frequently called upon to give testimony before Congressional committees regarding national agricultural policy. He currently chairs the U.S. Secretary of Agriculture's Advisory Committee on International Foreign Animal and Poultry Diseases, representing the state departments of agriculture. He serves on three NASDA committees – International Marketing and Trade, Food Regulation, and Nutrition – and is chair of the Animal and Plant Industries Committee.

Riley held the office of secretary of agriculture in Maryland from May 17, 1994, to December 31, 1997. He resumed the office again in 2003. He is a member of the Education and Rural Development Assistance Board; Maryland Agricultural Land Preservation Foundation; Task Force to Study the Maryland Agricultural Land Preservation Foundation; Maryland Horse Industry Board; Mid-Atlantic Poultry Health Council; Governor's Pesticide Council; Pesticide Advisory Committee; Poultry Issues Action Team; Rural Legacy Board; Rural Maryland Council; State Soil Conservation Committee; Advisory Committee on the Management and Protection of the State's Water Resources; and the Maryland Winery and Grape Growers' Advisory Board. He serves as co-chair for the Interagency Nutrient Reduction Oversight Committee. Riley also serves as chair for the Task Force on the Marketing of Grain and Other Agricultural Products.

In addition to these two speakers, the daylong conference will feature four seminar sessions dealing with a variety of topics, plus youth sessions. For more information on the RDC conference, persons may call Moran at 304-735-6413 or Cheryl DeBerry at 301-334-6960, or visit the conference web site at www.morefarmmoney.org

Videoconference To Discuss "Mad Cow" Disease

The Maryland Department of Agriculture and the University of Maryland have scheduled an interactive videoconference on BSE (Bovine Spongiform Encephalopathy, or "mad cow" disease) for 6 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 28. The three-hour event will be broadcast from College Park to nine other locations around the state, and the site closest to Garrett County will be the Washington County Extension Office in Boonsboro.

"The single case of mad cow disease detected last month in the United States, and subsequent regulatory changes, have sparked questions and concerns within Maryland's dairy, beef, food safety and related industries," said Maryland Agriculture Secretary Lewis R. Riley. "The single case found in Washington state is having a dramatic impact on the beef industry in Maryland and across the country. I am pleased to work with the University of Maryland to bring producers the most up-to-date information about BSE and the case, regulatory changes, foreseeable trends, and to respond their questions."

Industry leaders and government officials will provide Maryland livestock and dairy producers and other interested parties with a background understanding of bovine spongiform encephalopathy, provide the agricultural community with industry and governmental updates on BSE related issues, and provide a forum to discuss BSE related topics.

Specific program topics will include downer cow surveillance and traceability, animal well-being and quality assurance, retail concerns, impact of BSE detection on beef processing and rendering industries, and new feed ban proposals.

Co-Op Brings Good News To Local Farmers

Terry Hauser and Tom Hart, board chairman and manager for Southern States Oakland Cooperative, respectively, recently attended the local Board Leadership Conference in Frederick.

The event was part of a five-city series of meetings in which Southern States Cooperative's senior management delivered a comprehensive message to each region's store managers and their local board chairmen: "The cooperative's financial news is good, and it is getting better every day."

"If you carry only one point back to your customers today, I want it to be this one," said Leslie Newton, CFO. "Southern States has almost one-third the commercial bank debt level it had in September 2001. By the end of last November, we had cut our total bank exposure from $470 million to only $179 million."

Also included in her message to members was the progress the co-op is continuing to make. "We're off to a good start this fiscal year by exceeding our expected results for the first half," she said

"Southern States customers are validating this progress with a tangible testament – their money," said a spokesperson for the co-op. "Balances for the various programs by which farmers and their local cooperatives deposit money with Southern States in order to make subsequent purchases of farm inputs are far above both what were received last year as well as what was projected for this year's budget."

"Companies across the U.S. would be hard-pressed to find a better, more dedicated staff than Southern States employees," noted CEO Thomas R. Scribner. "So we knew we couldn't work harder. To turn this cooperative around, we knew we'd have to work smart er. And once again, our employees were up to the challenge."

In response, he added, the cooperative has continued to lower its operating expenses throughout its network of retail outlets, distribution centers and administrative offices.

According to the co-op, a significant indicator of the financial progress that has been made in a relatively short time is that Southern States has budgeted an $11 million profit for fiscal year 2004, its first after several years of losses.

"This level restores us to what had been our historical levels of profitability," Newton pointed out.

"And we will make this goal," emphasized Scribner. "Our number-one goal is to make our 2004 budget. We will do this by providing customers what they need when they need it and by continuing to work smarter every day."

ADJUSTED GROSS REVENUE-LITE INSURANCE

The USDA's Risk Management Agency announces the availability of the new Adjusted Gross Revenue-Lite (AGR-Lite) insurance to farmers. AGR-Lite is a streamlined whole-farm revenue protection package. The plan provides protection against low revenue due to unavoidable natural disasters and market fluctuations that affect income during the insurance year. Most farm-raised crops, animals, and animal products are eligible for protection. The program is based on the five-year farm average revenue reported on IRS Form 1040 Schedule F or other IRS tax form. Therefore, minimal additional record-keeping is required.

AGR-Lite can stand alone or be used in conjunction with other Federal Crop Insurance plans—including Multi-Peril Crop Insurance, Crop Revenue Coverage, and Income Protection, except AGR—by coordinating the insurance protection and benefits with other plans. When producers purchase both AGR-Lite and other crop insurance plans, the AGR-Lite premium will be reduced.

The AGR-Lite concept:

- uses a producer's historical IRS Form 1040 Schedule F tax form and other IRS tax form farm income information and an annual farm report as a base to provide a level of guaranteed revenue for the insurance period;
- provides insurance coverage for multiple agricultural commodities in one insurance product;
- establishes revenue as a common denominator for the insurance of all agricultural commodities; and
- reinforces program credibility by using IRS tax forms and regulations to alleviate compliance concerns.

AGR-Lite coverage is available to farmers throughout West Virginia, Maryland, and Pennsylvania.

To be eligible for AGR-Lite Coverage, a producer must meet the following eligibility requirements:

- be a U.S. citizen or legal resident;
- file a calendar year or fiscal year farm tax return;
- have less than $512,821 in gross income — policy size is limited to $250,000 of liability;
- have IRS Form 1040 Schedule F tax forms (or equivalent IRS form) available for the previous five consecutive years under the same tax entity (unless 90 percent of the previous farming operation was transferred to the current tax entity);
- may not purchase Adjusted Gross Revenue (AGR) insurance;
- have revenue from commodities purchased for resale not exceeding 50 percent of total; and,
- have revenue from potatoes not exceeding 83.55 percent of total.

The AGR-Lite timeline is as follows:

- Jan. 31—sales closing date and termination date;
- Jan. 1—beginning of insurance (for the year of application, the beginning of insurance is 10 days after a properly completed application is received);
- Nov. 30—contract change date;
- Insurance Year—the calendar year in which the sales closing date occurs and includes both calendar year and fiscal year filings.

Claims are settled after taxes are filed for the insurance year. For further information on AGR-Lite coverage, producers should contact their agent regarding program eligibility and availability. A list of crop insurance agents is available at the Preston County Farm Service Agency Office located in the Corner Mall of the Kingwood Plaza, or through RMA's Agent Internet Locator at www3.rma.usda.gov/tools/agents/.

FRIENDSVILLE NEWS

100TH BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION

An open house will be given to honor Chauncey Friend's 100th birthday on Saturday, Feb. 7, at the Sand Spring Church of God Fellowship Hall. All are invited to stop by and extend greetings to him between 3 and 6 p.m. A light meal will be served. Also, those who have mementos that they would like to share with Chauncey are encouraged to bring them. The family requests that gifts be omitted, but cards are welcome.

THE WISHING WELL
by Lucretia Sines

Lydia Friend would like to thank everyone for their concern, cards, prayers, gifts, and visits during her illness. She is currently receiving treatments and is recuperating at her home. Her address is P.O. Box 201, Friendsville, MD 21531.

If you know someone whom you would like to have mentioned in the Wishing Well or Birthday Wishes, please contact me at 301-746-5933 or P.O. Box 411, Friendsville, MD 21531.

BIRTHDAY WISHES

Bob Cupp will be turning 89 years old this Saturday, Jan. 31. His address is 8243 Friendsville Road, Friendsville, MD 21531.

Chauncey Friend will be turning 100 years old on Friday, Feb. 6. Cards can be sent to him at the Goodwill Nursing Home, P.O. Box 310, Grantsville, MD 21536.

SCHOOL NEWS

Because of the missed school days this week, the Book Fair has been extended until Wednesday, Feb. 4. Parents may browse through the many selections of books every school day, including Feb. 4, from 8:15 to 8:45 a.m. or send money in with students who may also purchase books at that time.

LIBRARY NEWS

The Friendsville Branch of the Ruth Enlow Library is now extending its hours. The weekly schedule is as follows: Monday, 2 to 8 p.m.; Tuesday, noon to 5:30 p.m.; Wednesday, 2 to 8 p.m.; Thursday, noon to 5:30 p.m.; and Saturday, 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. The library is closed on Sundays. For more information, persons may telephone the library at 301-746-5663.

FVFD NEWS

The new administrative officers for the Friendsville Volunteer Fire and Rescue Dept. for the year 2004 are: president, Keith Fisher; vice president, James Spear; secretary, Joy Fisher; and treasurer, Randy Humberson. The fire officers are Chief Terry Spear and Deputy Chief Michael Hoover.

Two new members, Jonathan Hook and Joshua Hook, recently completed the Firefighter I class at Grantsville. At the present time, five new members are attending the Firefighter I class at Deep Creek. They are Kody Suter, Travis Spear, Andy Rodeheaver, Bill Brantner, and R.J. Leash.

GUN BASH

The Friendsville Volunteer Fire and Rescue Dept. will be hosting a Gun Bash on Saturday, Feb. 28, from noon to 6 p.m. A donation for a gun bash ticket is $25, and tickets are available from any volunteer fireman or at Funny Farm Citgo, Ed's BP/Amoco, Friendsville Discount Liquors, or S&S Market. Doors will open at 11 a.m. and a total of 25 guns will be raffled off, one every 15 minutes starting at noon. There will also be separate raffles all day long, and food and beverages will be provided. Only those persons with a ticket will be able to enter the gun bash. Tickets can also be purchased at the door if available.

ELECTION NEWS

The town of Friendsville will hold its municipal election on Tuesday, Feb. 10, at the Town Hall. Three council members and one mayor will be elected that day.

Herschel Allen III is running for a seat on the town council. He has been a resident of Friendsville for over 10 years and is married with a son who attends Friendsville Elementary School. Herschel works from his home as a chemical civil engineer with a PE in engineering. He served in the U.S. Army, with two years of duty in Vietnam. He has previously served on the town council for two years, at which time he says he "got the ball rolling on the handicapped sidewalks and also headed the project for the energy-saving street lights."

Herschel says he is running for council because he sees a need for a change, "someone with different ideas." He feels that he would work "for the people." For example, the Neighborhood Watch would get his support and help. "I care about the people and the town," stated Herschel," and I've seen what other towns have received through grant money and feel that we can do the same in this town."

Tom Fike is running for a seat on the town council. Tom was born and raised in Friendsville and is a descendent of over 300 years of Fikes in Friendsville. After graduating from Northern High School, he worked for the United States government in the Dept. of Commerce in Washington, D.C. He returned in June of 1984 because he said he was "tired of city life" and wanted to return to his hometown and family and to take care of his aging grandparents. He is currently self-employed as a personal care provider for the Maryland Dept. of Aging and resides at home with his mother Helen.

He serves on the Friendsville Election Reform Committee and Friendsville Community Legacy Task Force. He is a member of the Garrett County Alzheimer Association and a supporter of the St. Jude's Children's Hospital and Paralyzed Veterans of America.

Tom was asked to run for council by several members of the community, and he sees a definite need for "new guidance" in the town council. "A stronger team together with the mayor is needed to work for the town." stated Tom, "The town is slipping, and I want to help pull the town back together. We need to get the voice of the people back in the decision making of this town." He would like to see a health clinic in town and would like to enlarge the library.

"I would like the Mayor and Town Council to help the businesses in Friendsville 100% by first starting a business association with the business owners, business property owners, and business operators," continued Tom. "They need to have a voice in the decisions made by the Mayor and Town Council concerning their businesses and the ongoing prosperity of the town."

Frances Friend is seeking re-election as a council member after serving the last two years. Frances was born and raised in Friendsville, where she has remained a resident all of her life. She is the mother of six children, four whom are living. She is grandmother to 11 and great-grandmother to 11.

Frances is retired from 31 years in food service to the Garrett County Public Schools. She was an original member of the Town and Community Women, who first started Friendsville Days as an annual event. She is a member of the VFW and American Legion as a Gold Star Mother.

She says she would like to see the town park finished soon. "Vandalism at our beautiful town park is of great concern to me," stated Frances, "and I would like to see some means taken to assure the safety and beauty of our park. I think the town is staying in good shape even without revenues from the government, and would like to see it progress further without any revenues." She added that she would "greatly appreciate" the support of the voters to re-elect her to two more years as a council member.

Candidate Maureen Stewart was born in McHenry to the late Charles and Esther (VanSickle) Nedrow. Her family later moved within the town limits of Friendsville while she was still a child. She attended the old Friendsville School and is a 1961 graduate of Northern High School. While she was a teenager, she worked at Schlosnagle's Store, one of the 21 businesses in town. She moved to Baltimore and worked for a while, only to return to Garrett County once more. She later married and moved back to Baltimore with her husband, where they resided for nine years. She is the mother of one daughter.

Upon returning to Garrett County, they purchased property in Friendsville, where they have resided for 31 years. A former employee of Bausch & Lomb, she was also a business owner in Oakland, has a real estate license, and worked at the Friendsville Library. She has done volunteer work for Hospice and Habitat and previously served on the Friendsville Election Board.

"I love this town," stated Maureen, "but over a 39-year period I have seen some of its beauty taken away by the freeway, which has not brought businesses in, but has helped other towns to gain business growth. I have seen our town constantly slip away from a progressive town to a declining town. The town used to house many businesses in the past such as five stores, two feed stores, two restaurants, two hardware stores, three garages, four taverns, three beauty shops and a barber shop, toy store, movie theater that later became a bowling alley, and much more." She says she is "very concerned" for the people of the town.

"That is why I want to run for council," continued Maureen, " I would like to help bring the voices of the people to the council, and as their representative, I will debate their wants and problems with all sincerity and honesty. But the results lie in the other five council members also to bring about action by the rules of the Town Charter. It grieves me that for the first time I know of a town clerk who has resigned from Friendsville, even after 17 years of dedicated service to our community, which never should have been allowed to happen. When you vote on election day, please ask yourself who would work together and work for you on the council. Thank you for your support."

Candidates Robert Sines, Hobart Griffith, Terry Spear, and Spencer Schlosnagle will have a chance to voice their opinions in this column next week.

Anyone (ages 10 and up) who is interested in learning about puppetry is also invited to attend. The cost for training is $20 per person (this includes a manual), and for an additional $5, participants can make their own puppet. Anyone interested in this training may call June McClosky by February 16 at 301-387-2990.

PERSONALS

Sandy Friend traveled to Hollywood (Md.), to care for her grandchildren Karly, Kyle, and Kasey Winegardner, while their parents went to Arizona last week. Sandy returned to her home Saturday.

Howard Friend was a patient in Sacred Heart Hospital, Cumberland, over the weekend.

During the week, Orval and Mareva Teets were in Cumberland, and they also visited their daughter and son-in-law, Linda and John Fleming, here. John has been undergoing treatment. He likes visitors, but asks that persons call first.

Hair Loss Treatment In Men and Women

Hair loss (medical term is alopecia) affects both men and women, usually past the age of 40. Male pattern baldness is caused by changes in male hormones. These changes are responsible for the bald spot on the top of the head. Nearly one-half of women near the time of menopause are affected by a condition called androgenic alopecia. There is a slow thinning of the hair all over the scalp. Other causes of hair loss in men and women include scarring, mental illness, deficiency of iron in the body, thyroid abnormalities, and taking certain medicines such as blood thinners, birth control pills, colchicine and the blood pressure drug captopril.

Topical minoxidil (Rogaine) is available over-the-counter for regrowth of hair when applied to the scalp. The 2% formulation can be used by both sexes, but the 5% formula is available only for men because of its tendency to cause dark facial hair growth and other masculine features when used by women. Minoxidil is thought to work by increasing blood flow in the skin to areas of the scalp. A prescription-only product for men is finasteride. This drug, which is taken as an oral tablet, decreases levels of the testosterone derivative that shortens the life cycle of hair.

SWANTON, MD 21561

Under a power of sale contained in a certain Deed of Trust from Edward R. Grove Sr. and Patricia A. Grove, dated June 7, 2003, and recorded in Liber 978, Folio 611 among the Land Records of Garrett Co., MD, default having occurred under the terms thereof, the Sub. Trustees will sell at public auction at the Circuit Court for Garrett Co., at the Court House Door, Oakland, on

FEBRUARY 4, 2004, AT 2:00 PM

ALL THAT FEE-SIMPLE LOT OF GROUND, together with the buildings and improvements thereon situated in Garrett Co., MD, and more fully described in the aforesaid Deed of Trust.

The property, which is improved by a dwelling, will be sold in an "as is" condition and subject to conditions, restrictions and agreements of record affecting the same, if any, and with no warranty of any kind.

The property will be sold subject to a prior mortgage, the amount to be announced at the time of sale, if made available to Substitute Trustees.

Terms of Sale: A deposit of $45,500 in the form of cash, certified check, or in any other form suitable to the Substitute Trustees in their sole discretion, shall be required at the time of sale, except no deposit shall be required of the secured party, its successors or assigns. Balance of the purchase price to be paid in cash within ten days of final ratification of sale by the Circuit Court for Garrett Co. If the purchaser fails to go to settlement, the deposit shall be forfeited and the property may be resold at the purchaser's risk and expense. The defaulting purchaser shall not be entitled to any surplus proceeds or profits resulting from any resale of the property. Interest to be paid on the unpaid purchase money at the rate pursuant to the Deed of Trust Note from the date of sale to the date funds are received in the office of the Sub. Trustees. In the event settlement is delayed for any reason, there shall be no abatement of interest. Taxes, ground rent, water rent, condominium fees and/or homeowner association dues, all public charges/assessments payable on an annual basis, including sanitary and/or metropolitan district charges, if applicable, to be adjusted for the current year to date of sale and assumed thereafter by the purchaser. The purchaser is responsible for any amount in excess of $500 of outstanding water bills, if any, incurred prior to date of sale. Cost of all documentary stamps, transfer taxes and settlement expenses shall be borne by the purchaser. Purchaser shall be responsible for obtaining physical possession of the property. Purchaser assumes the risk of loss or damage to the property from the date of sale forward. If the Sub. Trustees are unable to convey good and marketable title, the purchaser's sole remedy in law and equity shall be limited to a refund of the deposit. In the event the sale is not ratified for any reason, the purchaser's sole remedy, at law or equity, is the return of the deposit. Additional terms, if any, to be announced at sale. Purchaser agrees to pay $245.00 at settlement, to the Seller's attorney, for review of the settlement documents.

AURORA/EGLON

CALENDARS STILL AVAILABLE

There are extra birthday calendars of the Aurora-Eglon-Horse Shoe Run-Amboy communities available for sale. The Aurora Youth League has these calendars that have birthday and anniversary dates, and feature a picture of the Sell School, for $4 each. Those who would like one, may contact Renee MullenAx at 735-6281.

STEMPLE BABIES ARRIVE HOME

Ryan and Kelly Stemple of Petersburg took home their twin sons last week. The boys were born Dec. 6, 2003, at Ruby Memorial Hospital, where they had been growing, as they were premature and weighed only 2 to 3 lbs. each. Meshach Judah (Mac) and Asher Jabez (A.J.) now weigh in at the near five-pound level. Older sister Victoria will be helping in their care.

Paternal grandparents are Ronald and Patricia Stemple of Oakland. Maternal grandparents are Charles and Margaret Smith of Keyser. Local great-grandmothers are Gertrude Stemple and Marie Martin, both Aurora.

SCOUT COOKIES

Girl Scout cookies are now on sale. The Aurora troop is taking orders for choices of eight different kinds at $3 per box. Persons may contact one of the following to place an order: Sue Shillingburg: 735-3007; Carla Jarvis: 735-3354; or Barb Snyder: 735-5769. The cookies should be ready for delivery around Feb. 17.

PERSONAL MENTION

Named to Bridgewater (Va.) College's fall semester dean's list is Maria harsh, daughter of David and Rita Harsh, Amboy. Maria is a medical technology major and a junior.

Friends are asked to remember Viola Fike Gordon with a birthday card. Her 82nd birthday is Feb. 7, and her address is 3463A Walker Road, Apopka, FL 32703-9356. Viola is a daughter of the late Homer and Nellie Fike who resided in Eglon.

Louella Fike is reportedly improving and expecting to be released from Garrett County Memorial Hospital by mid-week. Her daughter, Judy Highberger Charleston, S.C., has come to her mother's home since her illness. Her sons, Gary Fike of Terra Alta, and Norman Fike of Belington, have also been visiting with her.

Don Roth was able to return last week to his home at Horse Shoe Run after recuperating from a surgical procedure at Ruby Memorial Hospital.

The new daughter of Melvin and Melissa Frantz who arrived January 12 in Japan was named Harmony Lynn. The name was misspelled in last week's paper. There is no Maple Spring Church 4-H as was reported. The Eglon Mountaineer 4-H Club is the one mentioned in the report from the Mountain Lions Club report.

Edna Rothwell has assumed the roll of principal at the Aurora School. She took the post upon the resignation of David Toothman. Mrs. Karen Toothman also resigned, and her position has been filled by Mrs. Angel Kline of Barbour County.

Donald Beckman of Horse Shoe Run was admitted Saturday night to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, where he is undergoing tests.

SANTA VISITS AURORA SCHOOL – Santa Claus and his Mountain Lions Club elves paid a visit to Aurora Elementary School over the holiday season. More than 120 area children came to sit on St. Nick's lap and receive treats and gifts as a 50-year tradition of Santa's visits to the school continued for another Christmas. Ron and Jana Freeman organize the annual event and prepare gifts and treats for the kids. Santa Lion Ron Freeman is shown above with preschooler Darren Roth, son of Carla and Alan Roth.

4-H Club News

AURORA PIONEERS
by Michael O'Conner

Tracy Fields called to order the January meeting of the Aurora Pioneers. Seventeen members were present.

Chelcee Rinker and Brittany Stemple led the pledges. Devotions were read by Marissa Bachtel, Ryan Rocha, and Kristin Stemple. Lakin Radford led the song. The treasurer's report was given by Scott Field. Daniel O'Conner led the group in a spelling game.

Under old business, Stacy Fint talked about the rules of the poster and photo contest. The posters and photos are due at the February meeting.

Under new business, Stacy gave out the project books. We talked about the crafts at Jackson's Mill. It was decided to have a bake-off at th February meeting.

Joe Mullenax gave a talk about National 4-H Day at Atlanta. He was one of three West Virginia 4-H members in attendance.

Woman Pleads

20, McLean, Va., pleaded guilty to drug paraphernalia possession, and was handed a PBJ, a $100 fine, and one day of unsupervised probation. He was arrested after being stopped by state troopers on I-68 in September, when the odor of suspected burnt marijuana led to a vehicle search. An additional charge of marijuana possession was not prosecuted.

Erick Richard DeWitt, 19, Swanton, was handed a stet ruling on a felony theft charge, with an order to pay $1,039 in restitution to the victim. DeWitt had been jailed in August by sheriff's deputies after he allegedly stole stereo equipment from a friend's vehicle and pawned the items.

Edward Frank Bower, 55, Imperial, Pa., was handed stet rulings on two counts of second-degree assault. The charges were filed by sheriff's deputies following an August domestic-related incident at a Swallow Falls State Park campsite, where Bower reportedly pushed his girlfriend during an argument and threw a bottle of wine at her.

Diane Ryan, 39, Friendsville, was handed a stet ruling in connection with a second-degree assault charge that stemmed from her October arrest by state troopers following a domestic incident. She had allegedly fought with her boyfriend in their apartment, where she was accused of throwing a glass at him and damaging his gun cabinet when she kicked it.

William Dale Mahaffey, 47, Oakland, received a stet ruling in connection with a second-degree assault charge filed by sheriff's deputies in the fall after he allegedly hit a woman in the face with a telephone.

Shirley Jane Bosse, 39, Oakland, received a stet ruling in connection with a destruction of property charge filed by sheriff's deputies after he broke a front door window of an Oakland residence where she was renting an apartment.

Anthony Howard, 18, Hyattsville, was not prosecuted on a second degree assault charge filed in October by state troopers following an incident at the Savage Mountain Youth Camp. Howard had reportedly grabbed a staff member with a choke hold and pushed him to the ground.

Joseph Lynn Hutzel, 44, Frostburg (Garrett County), was not prosecuted on a second-degree assault charge filed by state troopers in October after he allegedly struck his son in their home.

Jamie Edward Droppleman, 24, Swanton, was not prosecuted on a charge of illegal possession of a short-barrel shotgun that stemmed from his June arrest by state troopers. As police were investigating a threatening phone call complaint at a Swanton residence, Droppleman pulled into the driveway where troopers saw a sawed-off shotgun in plain view in his truck cab.

Randall Eugene DeWitt Jr., 20, Oakland, was not prosecuted on a destruction of property charge filed by sheriff's deputies after he allegedly kicked out the parking light of an acquaintance's vehicle.

A verdict of "not guilty" was handed to William Edward McRobie, 29, Oakland, after an alleged victim refused to testify against him in connection with a charge of making an arson threat. McRobie was arrested by sheriff's deputies in September for allegedly threatening to set his family's house trailer on fire.

Dusty Allen Roy, 22, and Bonetta Marie Roy, 23, both of Friendsville, were each deemed not guilty when they refused to take the stand to enter testimony against each other. The couple had been arrested in November after a domestic dispute at their apartment when they had allegedly struck each other.

DUI/DWI HEARINGS

Several driving while under the influence (DUI) and driving while intoxicated (DWI) cases were heard in traffic court recently.

Russell Joseph Rounds, 42, Md., pleaded guilty to DWI and was handed a 30-day sentence, all but six days of which was suspended, and was fined $400, placed on one year of supervised probation, and ordered to complete 30 hours of community service.

Ronald Antwon Rhodes, 29, Md., pleaded guilty to DUI and was fined $400, handed a 60-day suspended sentence, placed on one year of supervised probation, and ordered to complete 40 hours of community service.

William Thomas Resh, 39, Md., was deemed to be in violation of his DUI probation, which was revoked with a two-week sentence reimposed.

Scott Daniel Doolan, 25, Md., was deemed in violation of his DUI probation, which was revoked with a 14-day sentence reimposed.

Joseph O. Friend, 23, Va., pleaded guilty to DWI and was handed a PBJ, along with a $455 fine, a 30-day suspended sentence, one year of supervised probation, and 30 hours of community service.

Wallace Victor Marchand, 62, W.Va., pleaded guilt to DUI and was handed a PBJ and a $400 fine, a 30-day suspended sentence, one year of unsupervised probation, and 20 hours of community service.

Jennifer Lee Hott, 35, Md., pleaded guilty to DWI and was handed a PBJ, a $200 fine, a 30-day suspended sentence, one year of unsupervised probation, and 20 hours of community service.

Real Estate Facts by...

Fred Washburn

Time To Play . . . "The Price Is Right"!

Price vs. Value – two sides of the same coin, and whether you're a buyer or a seller determines which side you're on. Price is number one on the list that buyers use to choose which homes they want to see.

Your asking price is affected by factors such as how quickly you need to sell, how many similar homes are for sale in your area, and the recent sale prices of homes in your area.

When considering your asking price, don't worry about what you originally paid for your home, prices are figured using today's market trends. Keep your emotional attachments and opinions of friends and relatives out of your pricing equation. Remember that while you set the price, the buyers will set the "value" of the home.

By overpricing your home, you're just encouraging buyers to look at others in the area, making them look like bargains compared to yours. This may keep your home on the market for an extended time, force you to accept a lower offer, or cause a deal to fall through because the buyers' financing was rejected after a low appraisal.

Ask a real estate agent to prepare a Competitive Market Analysis for your home. By factoring in your situation, recent market trends, and local sales figures, the agent figures your home's "fair market value". Then both sides win!

If you're planning to sell your home soon and would like information on its current value, give me a call today!

Proposed Bear Hunt Specifics Coming Forth

An outline of a proposed black bear hunting season was released by the Maryland Department of Natural Resources yesterday, as officials continue to consider instituting a bear hunt in western Maryland this fall.

The proposed two-week lottery-style hunt would take place in Garrett County and western Allegany County west of Cumberland. The hunt would be split into two portions, with one week in October and a second week in December, and the entire fall kill for the state would be limited to 30 bears, according to reports. Hunters will be allowed to use any weapon that is legal in deer hunting season. The use of hunting dogs would not be allowed. Application fees and permits are expected to cost approximately $30.

While the plan has drawn praise from hunting groups, opponents are taking action in an attempt to derail approval of a hunt. House Bill 451, which would prohibit bear hunting until 2010, will be debated by the General Assembly's Environmental Matters Committee in a hearing slated for Wednesday, Feb. 18. The bill was sponsored by Del. Barbara Frush (D-Prince George's County), and has the support of 15 other legislators, each who also hails from suburban Maryland.

Citizens may register their opinions on the draft version of the Black Bear Management Plan through Friday, Feb. 13. The plan can be viewed online at www.dnr.state.md.us/wildlife/bbmgtplan2004.html, and written comments may be e-mailed to customerservice@dnr.state.md.us or submitted via the DNR Web site at www.dnr.state.md.us/wildlife/bbmgtplanforum.html. Comments can also be sent by mail to Black Bear Project, Wildlife and Heritage Service, 1728 King's Run Rd., Oakland, MD 21550.

Comments already submitted may also be viewed online at www.dnr.state.md.us/wildlife/bbmgtplancomments.html.

DNR is reportedly planning a public hearing on the proposed bear management plan for next March.

THE LARGE AND THE SMALL OF IT — King and Prince, the gentle giants of Lee Walker Stables, Somerset, Pa., treated a group of Crellin Head Start students to a winter horsedrawn sleigh ride recently through the Fantasy Valley area of the Wisp Resort. The huge Belgian horses were very obliging, and tolerant of the children and their curiosity. Lee Walker and his son Jason donated their time, equipment, and horses to provide the children with a wonderful horse-drawn sleigh ride. Crellin Head Start teacher Terri Shaffer and assistant teacher Pam Friend planned the trip to coincide with the classroom theme of "Winter," and have also decided to make the outing a yearly scheduled field trip. For more information regarding Head Start or Early Head Start, parents or guardians may contact the Garrett County Community Action Committee by calling 301-334-9431 or 1-888-877-8403.

Commissioners Approve Updated Animal Ordinance

The Garrett County commissioners this week unanimously approved new provisions to the animal control ordinance. One major change to the county's original 1985 "dog" ordinance is that it now mandates that cats be licensed. The revised edict also gives animal control officers more authority and increases the cost of licenses and fines.

The process of updating the county's ordinance had been ongoing for at least four years, noted Commissioner Ernie Gregg. A broad-range committee of private citizens, law enforcement officers, county government staff, kennel owners, Humane Society members, and others met several times over the years.

Gregg said the meetings were "very productive," adding that the members had served the county "very well." He called the revised ordinance an excellent document, representing four years of hard work by a lot of people who gave a lot of their time.

Last week more than 30 residents attended a public hearing on the new provisions. Comments against them were mostly from rural residents, said Brad Frantz, director of Emergency Management. Farmers were concerned about

BIRD COUNT SET FOR SATURDAY — The Garrett County Midwinter Bird Count will take place this Saturday, Feb. 7, and all local residents are invited to participate—whether from the comfort of their kitchen window or afoot in the frozen forest. For the information to be usable, observers should record, for each bird species, the maximum number of individuals seen at any one time during the day, and the time during which birds were observed. Data from the annual count is used to help discern year-to-year patterns in bird populations in the region. The count is being coordinated by Kevin Dodge and Aaron Holochwost, and persons interested in participating are asked to contact Dodge by phone at 301-387-3328 or 301-245-4503, or via e-mail at kdodge@garrettcollege.edu. Observers may wish to tote a camera along for fine photo opportunities such as this one of a roosting eastern screech owl sunning itself on a bright winter's day. Photo by Mike Logsdon.

Heat Tape Said To Be Cause Of Structure Fire

A family of three was left homeless Saturday when their residence, located at 2023 Fingerboard Road just west of Oakland, was destroyed by an accidental fire.

According to John Feather, chief of the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department, the cause of the fire was believed to be a heat tape attached to a water pipe which had been frozen.

The residence, which housed the Steve Edwards family, was a mobile home with an addition added on. Feather said that the one-story structure was fully engulfed in flames upon the arrival of the first units.

Feather added that the family had no insurance, and estimated the loss to be $10,000.

Also responding to the 11:49 a.m. alarm were units and personnel from the Deer Park, Terra Alta, and Gorman VFDs, the county air cascade unit housed at the Deep Creek VFC, and the Southern Rescue Squad.

One firefighter sustained a minor injury to his hand, but he was treated on the scene.

Feather said he believed that the Edwards family members are staying with relatives.

Officials Approve Pursuit Of Rt. 50 Improvements

A discussion about proposed improvements and upgrades to U.S. Route 50 took place last week at the Garrett County courthouse, where various officials representing Garrett and eight West Virginia counties adopted a strategic plan for improving the highway from the Virginia line to Clarksburg, W.Va.

The group has adopted the name "The Route 50 Association." The cooperative effort of Garrett, Preston, Tucker, Hampshire, Mineral, Grant, Garrett, Taylor, Barbour, and Harrison counties is a comprehensive project designed to address a variety of facets regarding the highway's future. Among the issues the group will pursue are physical improvements to the road's infrastructure, increasing traffic and safety concerns, and tourism marketing concepts designed to capitalize on the road's history.

County Commissioners Approve Oakland's Zoning Waiver Request

The Board of Garrett County Commissioners this week approved Oakland's request for a zoning waiver. The town wants to change the zoning classification for Southern High and Dennett Road Elementary schools from suburban/residential to residential/industrial/professional. The waiver now allows Oakland officials to more easily annex the schools into the town.

Oakland mayor Asa McCain, Oakland councilman Jay Moyer, and Mountain Lake Park officials were in attendance to hear the commissioners' decision.

Commissioner Ernie Gregg stressed, however, that the board's decision was only an approval of the waiver. It is now Oakland's responsibility to annex the schools.

Gregg and Dave Beard voted in favor of granting the waiver. Commissioner Fred Holliday voted no, because Oakland's current annexation plans would leave small areas of "no-man's land" between it and Mtn. Lake Park. The county would still be responsible for maintaining these areas.

"I would like to see the whole thing annexed," he said, and suggested that Oakland consider including those areas in its plans. "It makes no sense to create islands," he said.

McCain said the town made an agreement with the Board of Education that it

Crellin Man's Arson Charge Not Prosecuted

One count of first-degree arson and one count of malicious burning/fraud against Ronnie Dale Upole, 42, were not prosecuted in Garrett County Circuit Court by a recent order of the state's attorney.

Upole, Crellin, had been charged with setting fire to a two-story wood frame dwelling in the town on April 6, 2002. He pleaded not guilty to the charges in July 2003.

Schools To Be In Session On Presidents' Day

Because of the severity of the winter and having missed seven days of school, Garrett County public schools will be in regular session on Presidents' Day, Monday, Feb. 16, according to Dr. Wendell Teets, superintendent.

Commissioners Eliminate Business Property Tax, To Be Effective July 1

The Board of Garrett County Commissioners this week officially reduced the business property tax by another 25 percent. This action means that effective July 1, business owners will no longer have to pay property taxes. This reduction was part of a multi-year plan by the commissioners to delete the tax.

"A systematic reduction in this tax, which is integral to the enhancement of economic development by acting as a stimulus to attract new businesses to the county and provide support to those in existence, commenced in Fiscal Year 2001," said Monty Pagenhardt, county administrator. "The board is confident this action will have very positive long-term benefits."

At this time, county revenues [illegible] million of general fund revenue for capital projects to include the construction of a new detention center, public works infrastructure improvements, and the exhibit/trade center, noted Pagenhardt.

Audited financial reports show that as of June 30, 2003, the county has $9.4 million in unreserved/undesignated general fund balance, according to the administrator.

"The county is positioned to address potential reductions in state revenue for upcoming years," he said. "Final approval of a number of capital projects will be based on matching funds."

Additionally, FY 2005 budget planning has begun, Pagenhardt said there were no plans to increase the real property tax rate of $1.036, which has not increased in eight years.

The audit for FY 2003 and other pertinent financial information is available at Pagenhardt's office or at the Department of Financial Services.

DeWitt Named Director Of GC Social Services

Donald "Rick" DeWitt has been appointed director of the Garrett County Department of Social Services, according to an announcement from the Maryland Department of Human Resources (DHR). DeWitt's appointment was a concurrent decision of the Garrett County commissioners and Christopher McCabe, DHR secretary.

DeWitt has been serving as acting director since last year. Before that position, he worked for 11 years as the assistant director for services at DSS. In that role, he was responsible for administering and monitoring Child Welfare and Adult Services for the agency. He managed two unit supervisors and approximately 20 staff members.

DeWitt has experience in Adult Protective Services, Adult Services, the In-Home Aides program, Respite Care, Child Protective Services, Foster Care, and Family Services.

He holds a master of social work degree from West Virginia University, psychology and sociology degrees from Frostburg State University, and an associate's degree in psychology and sociology from Garrett College.

"A lifelong resident of Garrett County, Rick has demonstrated a commitment to the county, serving in a number of community services programs," said McCabe. "In his new position, he will continue the commitment to providing services to Garrett's most needy families."

Kansas Fugitive Apprehended At Finzel Scales

A random tractor-trailer check at the Finzel Weight and Inspection facility Friday resulted in the apprehension of a fugitive accused of a variety of offenses in Kansas, according to the Maryland State Police Commercial Vehicle Enforcement Section.

Michael Lynn Meyers, 35, an employee of J&S Trucking in Prairie View, was taken into custody after police learned he was wanted by Kansas authorities on charges of violation of probation, obstruction of justice, drug possession, and firearms violations.

The random search of Meyers' 1996 Peterbuilt tractor-trailer led to the recovery of drug paraphernalia, police said. Local authorities conducting the search filed fugitive charges, and charges of marijuana and drug paraphernalia possession, and failure to provide a current copy of his driving record.

Meyers was transported to the Garrett County Jail to await extradition to Kansas.

Leads Sought In Theft Of Carved Bears In McHenry

Three hand-carved wooden bears were stolen from the sidewalk in front of a McHenry business over the weekend, and Maryland State Police investigators are seeking the public's assistance in solving the felony theft.

The bears were taken between 6 p.m. Saturday and 9 a.m. Sunday from the property of Country Treasures, located next to the NAPA auto parts store along Garrett Highway. The three carvings — a 3½-foot tall black bear, a second black bear with the word "cooking" written on it, and a third 2-foot tall black bear — had a combined value of $600.

Persons with information regarding the crime are asked to contact Tfc. DeLauter of the McHenry Barrack at 301-387-1101. Anonymity is guaranteed.

FAMILY LEFT HOMELESS — A fire apparently caused by a heat tape on a water pipe resulted in the destruction of a mobile home and wood frame addition which served as the residence of the Steve Edwards family. The structure, located along Fingerboard Road west of Oakland, was fully engulfed in flames upon the arrival of fire units from several local fire departments. One minor injury to an Oakland firefighter was reported. See story for details. Photo by John McEwen.

Former Contractor Sentenced To One Year In GC Jail

A Morgantown, W.Va., man pleaded guilty in Garrett County Circuit Court last week to violating provisions of the Custom Home Protection Act. Judge Fred A. Thayer (ret.) sentenced Kirk Wesley Overfield, 48, to one year in the Garrett County Jail.

The sentence was then suspended, and he will be on probation for three years.

Overfield, who previously owned a contracting company doing work in Garrett County, was charged by the state's attorney after homeowners alleged all of the monies they had paid had not been used to build their house, and the project then remained uncompleted.

Conditions of Overfield's probation include the payment of restitution, according to the state's attorney.

Man Charged Following Single-Vehicle Mishap

A McHenry man was charged following a single-vehicle accident on Ben DeWitt Road Sunday afternoon, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Bradley Collins, 28, was charged with leaving the scene of an accident, operating an unregistered and uninsured vehicle, and driving without a license.

According to police, Collins lost control of the 1990 Ford van on an icy patch in the road, slid out of control, and struck a tree and telephone box.

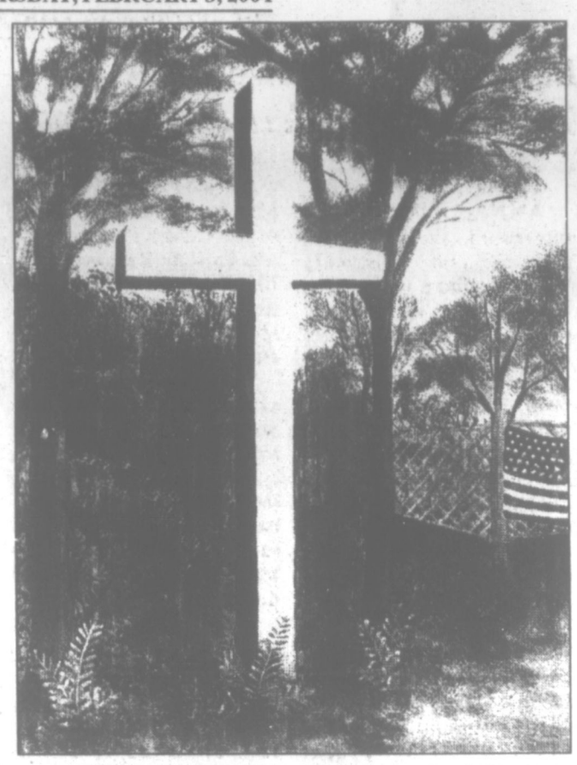
No injuries were reported.

In other police news, John William Dillsworth, 33, Aurora, W.Va., was arrested after his vehicle was found against a tree on Ben DeWitt Road. According to police, no one was around, the vehicle sustained significant damage, and there were numerous beer cans inside the vehicle.

Several witnesses were interviewed, and further investigation led to the arrest of Dillsworth. He was charged with driving on a revoked license and privilege, driving under the influence of alcohol, driving while impaired by alcohol, and leaving the scene of a property damage accident.

In a separate incident, no citations were given because of road conditions in a two-vehicle accident Friday afternoon on Broadford Road, police said.

Ashley Stimak, 22, Oakland, was traveling southbound on Broadford Road, and Elaine Olivia Glotfelty, 30, Oakland, was traveling northbound when their vehicles collided head-on. Police noted that Broadford Road was one-lane at that time because of the snow and white-out conditions



CROSS ON THE HILL – The Mountaintop Ministerial Association has purchased a plot of land near the overlook in Oakland, and plans are in motion to erect a cross near the United States flag already located on the hilltop. The cross, designed by the Beitzel Corporation, is to be approximately 30 feet tall with a 200-foot crossbeam. It is to be constructed of translucent white plastic and lighted from behind. The cost of the project is estimated to be $25,000, which includes construction and maintenance. Fund-raising is beginning this week, although the official kick-off campaign will take place during Holy Week in April. Persons who would like to donate to the project may send contributions to Cross on the Hill, c/o Pastor Mel Menker, treasurer, Mtn. Top Ministerial Association, PO Box 2333, Mtn. being responsible for cats that were dropped off at their barns by irresponsible owners.

Under the new ordinance, farmers and other residents will have the option of either taking responsibility for the cats and getting them licensed and vaccinated for rabies or calling the Garrett County Animal Shelter to pick them up.

Frantz said the farmers' concerns were legitimate. "But I don't think there is any easy equitable way to separate that group out," he said.

Licenses for both dogs and cats are now $15, but if the animals are spayed or neutered, the cost is only $3.

As in the past with dogs, cats that are not on their owners' property or under their owners' control will be considered "at large." The ordinance now gives animal control officers the authority to pick up "at large" cats.

Frantz said he did not think that requiring cats to be licensed would solve the problem of stray cats, but it would help alleviate it. Animal control spends many hours trying to determine if a cat has an owner, he said. If a cat is licensed, it will be easier to track down its owner.

The new provisions in the ordinance became effective Tuesday, Feb. 10, however, residents will not be required to have their cats licensed immediately. County administrator Monty Pagenhardt said the effective dates for the new provisions will be announced shortly via a press release. For more information, persons may call Frantz at 301-334-1929.

The animal ordinance is available for viewing on the county's web site at garrettcounty.org/em/animal/index.html. Copies will also be available for the public at the Animal Shelter.

Friendsville Man Sentenced For Probation Violation

A Friendsville man was found guilty in Garrett County Circuit Court last week of violating his probation. Judge Jim Sherbin reimposed Derek Ray Bittinger's 3½-year sentence that was suspended in April 2001. Of the 3½-years, Bittinger will serve 60 days in the Garrett County Jail and then be released on probation again.

Bittinger, 31, was originally sentenced for a first-degree bruglary charge to five years in the Division of Corrections, with the 3½ years suspended. After he served 18 months in the Garrett County Jail, Bittinger was released on probation.

He reportedly violated that probation by failing to report to his agent, failing to get permission before changing his address and moving to Pennsylvania, and failing to pay his supervision fee.

Board Of Ed. Meeting Slated

The Garrett County Board of Education will hold its regular monthly meeting on Tuesday, Feb. 10, beginning at 4 p.m.

During public session which begins at 5:30 p.m., the board will recognize Laci Slagle, student designer of the board's 2003 Christmas card. Information topics include a review of MSDE Suspensions, Expulsions, and Health Related Exclusion for 2002-2003; policy and procedure review; annexation update; reports on various board-related meetings; and discussion regarding the MSDE proposal for a tiered diploma system.

Action items will include personnel recommendations, professional travel requests, and revisions to the school calendar.

Time is set aside at 4 and 7 p.m. for public comment and participation on any topic. The board will meet in closed session from 4:05 to 5:30 p.m., and reconvene in open session immediately thereafter. The public is invited to attend.

Road Conditions Blamed For Two-Vehicle Mishap

The road conditions were blamed for a two-vehicle accident on Ben DeWitt Road Thursday morning, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

A truck driven by Alisha Christine Kight was stopped in the eastbound lane of Ben DeWitt Road when it was struck in the rear by a 1994 Ford truck operated by Brian Eugene Wolf.

Kight and a juvenile passenger were transported by Southern Rescue Squad to Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

No citations were given, police said.

Oakland firefighters also responded to the 10:30 a.m. scene.

Bloodmobile To Visit Tomorrow, Next Monday

The American Red Cross bloodmobile will provide three opportunities for local donors to give blood this coming week.

Donors will be welcomed at St. Peter's Catholic Church this Friday, Feb. 6, from noon to 6 p.m.

A bloodmobile will also be at the Grantsville fire hall next Monday, Feb. 9, welcoming donors from 12:30 to 6:30 p.m., and one will also be at Garrett College, McHenry, Room 305, from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

In order to be eligible to donate blood, a person must be at least 17 years of age, weigh at least 105 pounds, and be in generally good health. Such persons may donate a unit of blood every 56 days.

Persons with questions about the local February bloodmobile visits, or the ARC Blood Services Program, may telephone the Western Potomac Chapter of the ARC at 1-800-361-9481, or 301-722-1760.

Area Man Injured, Charged In Three-Vehicle Accident

Maryland State Police troopers charged an Oakland man in connection with a three-vehicle crash Saturday morning at the intersection of Garrett Highway and Sand Flat Road. The same subject was the only person injured in the 8:59 a.m. mishap.

Thomas Dettmer, 54, was making a left turn from southbound Garrett Highway onto Sand Flat Road when he pulled his 1988 Dodge van into the path of an oncoming 1990 Acura Integra operated by Zachary Uphold, 19, Mtn. Lake Park. The two vehicles collided, then Dettmer's van slammed into a 1998 Chevrolet Cavalier that was waiting at the stop sign on Sand Flat Road. Both Uphold and the Chevy's driver, Lonnie Rodeheaver, age not reported, Oakland, escaped injury.

Dettmer was transported to Garrett County Memorial Hospital by the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad The Deep Creek Volunteer Fire Company assisted at the scene.

State troopers charged Dettmer with failure to yield right of way.

Legislators Criticize Committee's Examination Of Higher Education

From the offices of Minority Leader George Edwards and Minority Whip Tony O'Donnell

ANNAPOLIS – Tuesday, Republican members of the House's Special Committee on Higher Education Affordability and Accessibility criticized the draft report of the committee. Created by the speaker after the 2003 session, the special committee of 24 members of the House was charged with reviewing the affordability and accessibility of higher education in the state of Maryland.

A draft report of the committee's findings was given to members last Thursday in anticipation of a vote in approval of its content on Monday.

"This draft report has been railroaded through," said Minority Whip Tony O'Donnell, a member of the committee. "This committee has met five times over the last year for briefing sessions. There have been no discussions of recommendations or policy approaches. Then on Thursday, we were handed a report that we would be voting on today. As legislators, we best serve our constituents when we work collaboratively, not when we rubberstamp important policy recommendations."

Six of the Republican members of the committee submitted a minority report to the special committee Tuesday. The minority report touches on several issues not addressed by the draft report. Its final paragraph includes a recommendation that a blue ribbon commission composed of stakeholders in higher education be established.

"By issuing our own analysis of the report, we are looking out for the average family in Maryland," said Delegate Susan Krebs. "We talk about making sure that there is access to affordable higher education in Maryland, but I don't think that the draft report addresses the systemic problems that hinder this."

The minority report also calls the recommendations another unfunded mandate. The draft report recommends a substantial increase for University System of Maryland institutions. It recommends a significant increase in the corporate income tax to pay for this infusion of new funds. However, after less than two years, the revenue from the tax increase will not cover the proposed increases to higher education.

"To follow the recommendations of this report would be fiscally irresponsible," said Delegate Susan Aumann. "This is the same old story of throwing money at a problem without addressing the root causes of it. A commission with all of the stakeholders at the table would be better at finding ways to make higher education more accessible and affordable for Marylanders."

The minority report was given to members of the special committee at Tuesday's meeting.

Increased Funding For Higher Education Backed By Delegates

by Mary C. Schneidau
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – Higher education won support this week, with a task force calling for increased state aid paired with a tuition cap and an appropriations subcommittee Tuesday saying level funding of higher education's budget is anything but.

Gov. Robert L. Ehrlich Jr.'s operating budget for the University System of Maryland, which encompasses 11 colleges and universities and two research institutions, was $746.2 million – the same funding level that the system received last year.

System officials have repeatedly thanked Ehrlich for keeping the budget level, but said state-mandated pay raises and other operating increases means $80 million in costs that are not accounted for in the budget. Increased enrollment also is not included, officials said.

"We don't agree that it's level funding," said Delegate James E. Proctor Jr., D-Prince George's, chairman of the House Appropriations Subcommittee on Education and Economic Development. Neither does Sen. Patrick J. Hogan, D-Montgomery, chairman of the Senate Budget and Taxation Subcommittee on Education, Business, and Administration.

"The term level funding to most people sounds pretty good," Hogan said. "That's fine if you don't have growing enrollment, growing health care costs. We're going backwards."

About $122 million in cuts to the system's budget in fiscal years 2003 and 2004 brought tuition increases of up to 21 percent at some campuses and prompted House Speaker Michael E. Busch, D-Anne Arundel, to appoint a task force to study access and affordability in higher education. Regents have already approved a tuition increase for next year averaging 10 percent.

The task force's preliminary recommendations, released Monday, include a 5 percent tuition cap for in-state students and a 3.4 percent increase in state support for 2005. A tuition cap of 5 percent and increased state support of 5 percent is called for in fiscal years 2006 through 2008.

"It will not exactly solve our problems, but it will help our problems," said Proctor, a task force member.

The task force proposes increasing the corporate income tax rate from 7 percent to 7.9 percent through 2008 – similar to an increase vetoed last year by Ehrlich – to pay for the increased funding. The tax increase would generate about $272 million.

Proctor said he was confident Ehrlich would work with lawmakers to find a revenue stream for higher education, while Board of Regents chairman Clifford Kendall said he was optimistic higher education's budget would remain intact.

"The General Assembly," he said, "recognizes the importance of higher education."

Lawmakers Tout Gun Ban Bill; Ehrlich Reportedly Open To Talks

by Marc Lightdale
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – With a federal ban on assault weapons expiring in September, some Maryland lawmakers are stepping into the breach with a bill to ban transportation and possession of the armaments more suited to war than city streets, they said Tuesday. The legislation has the support of more than 70 local and state agencies, according to Leah Barrett, executive director of CeaseFire Maryland, a Baltimore gun-control advocacy group that held a news conference Tuesday to boost the bill's prospects. The bill has 20 Senate sponsors and 34 House backers, CeaseFire said.

With strong legislative support, the question is whether Republican Gov. Robert Ehrlich will sign such a law if it makes it through the General Assembly.

Chief sponsor Sen. Rob Garagiola, D-Montgomery, said Ehrlich is willing to listen to law enforcement arguments. And he's not automatically against it, said Ehrlich spokeswoman Shareese DeLeaver.

"Gov. Ehrlich hasn't taken a specific position or opposition to this legislation," said DeLeaver. "Generally, he has said that the gun laws in Maryland are far reaching and stringent. However, he does not feel that an assault weapons ban would sufficiently address the issue of violent crime."

Delegate Richard K. Impallaria, R-Baltimore County, opposes the bill, saying he believes in the importance of keeping the guns out of the hands of criminals, but not in preventing private citizens from having the guns for protection.

"I wish well-minded people would concentrate on deporting [sniper Lee] Malvo rather than deporting guns," Impallaria said. "Guns didn't commit the crime, the people need to be prosecuted. Those who have illegally obtained handguns should get a harsh punishment."

Garagiola and the other chief sponsor, Delegate Neil Quinter, D-Howard, said they've designed the bill to extend the 1994 Federal Assault Weapons Bill, which curtails the use of automatic weapons, including AK-47s, Uzis, and Streetsweepers. It expires Sept. 13, and Quinter said he does not expect Congress to "do the right thing" and reauthorize it.

Next week, the Maryland Senate Judicial Proceedings Committee will conduct a hearing on the bill, which also would require the Handgun Roster Board to keep a list of prohibited assault weapons published in the Maryland Register. The bill would also designate copycat weapons – guns with a similar design to a military-type weapon, but with minor changes to keep it legal – as assault weapons. These assault weapons, Garagiola said, were designed to spray large swaths of land and kill many people at once during wartime, not for criminals to shoot police officers. One in five police officers are killed in the line of duty by a person using an assault weapon, according to an FBI study referenced by Quinter.

Backers also cited Justice Department statistics that show that multiple gunshot wounds and multiple victims are often struck by bullets from assault weapons.

Sen. Nancy Jacobs, R-Harford, a member of the Judicial Proceedings Committee, said she's against the ban and that the evidence produced at the press conference was based on "falsehoods." For example, she said, the contention that assault weapons are used to kill a fifth of all police officers killed in the line of

Bills Would Require Judge To Rule On Underage Abortions

by Sara K. Clarke
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – Bills introduced Wednesday in the General Assembly would require a judge – not a doctor – to override the parental notification requirement for an underage girl to have an abortion. Now, parents must be notified of their minor child's abortion unless a doctor determines notice will cause the patient physical or emotional harm.

Two similar bills filed in the House and Senate, HB621 and SB351, will require a judge to determine waivers.

"It takes the decision out of the profit-making hands of the doctor, and gives the issue to an objective judge," said Delegate Carmen Amedori, R-Carroll, a chief sponsor. Parental involvement is crucial to get an accurate medical history, and in some cases, to protect children from sexual abuse or statutory rape, she said.

"Abortion, however safe it is in modern America, is still a major medical procedure," said Clare McGrath-Merkle, executive director of the Center for Nonpartisan Pro-Life Politics at Pro-Life Maryland. "This is not just an abortion issue, it's about child advocacy and child protection."

Opponents said the change to court-ordered waivers might negatively affect women's health.

"We think that involving the court puts a burdensome barrier on young people," said John Nugent, Maryland Planned Parenthood director.

"It's an access issue – it keeps young women from being able to access abortion," said Ashlie Bagwell, executive director of NARAL Pro-Choice Maryland. "Most young women involve a parent in these decisions, and those that don't have good reason. The government should not mandate family communication," she said.

The proposed law might lead to self-induced or ille-

Democrats, Anti-Slots Supporters Vow To Kill Gambling Legislation

by Stephanie Tracy
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – It may not be enough to kill the bill yet, but a group of 20 lawmakers said Wednesday they were only the tip of the iceberg of opponents in the General Assembly determined to stop Gov. Robert L. Ehrlich Jr.'s proposed slots legislation. At a news conference, a group of about 20 senators and delegates – including many in the Montgomery County delegation – announced they would not support any kind of legislation to expand legalized gambling in Maryland.

Montgomery County executive Doug Duncan has asked his county's delegation to oppose any gambling legislation, and said so at the news conference, "We don't have to have slots shoved down our throats for the future of the state."

"We're the voice of opposition," said Delegate Anthony Brown, D-Prince George's. "We will not sit back and hope this issue stalemates again. We will directly oppose slots and casinos."

Last session, Ehrlich's first slots package died in the House. Last week, Ehrlich submitted his lightly revised slots bill to the General Assembly, calling for off-track slot machines at two undetermined locations along the Interstate 95 corridor between Washington, D.C., and Baltimore. As before, the bill also calls for slots at four racetracks in the state.

Between sessions, the House Ways and Means Committee studied the economic and social impact of expanded gambling, recommending strong state regulation of slots venues. The study also recommended locating off-track gambling sites closer to major thoroughfares and away from residential areas.

Some House Democrats have said the interim report will guide them on this year's slots proposals.

But Delegate Peter Franchot, D-Montgomery, a vocal opponent of slots last year, sounded a different tone Wednesday. The opposition this year, he said, is stronger and more broad-based. Franchot rejected the connection between slots and balancing the budget and called slots the "crack cocaine of gambling."

"In our view, the governor's job is to come up with new revenues or more cuts if slots are not going to be the mechanism to balance the budget," Franchot said. "Ultimately the budget is his responsibility, and we just decided to stop propping him up."

Some members of the anti-slots coalition present at the press conference included Senate President Pro Tem Ida G. Ruben, D-Montgomery; House Speaker Pro Tem Adrienne Jones, D-Baltimore County; Delegate Curt Anderson, D-Baltimore; Delegate Mary-Dulany James, D-Harford; Sen. Roy P. Dyson, D-St. Mary's; Sen. Brian Frosh, D-Montgomery; Sen. Paul G. Pinsky, D-Prince George's; and Sen. Ralph M. Hughes, D-Baltimore.

The rancor revolving around the slots issue is just par for the course in this year's legislative session. The Assembly, for the first time in 15 years, overrode a gubernatorial veto, while partisans bickered and shouted about rules changes that diminished power and the fairness of debate. Ehrlich Communications director Paul Schurick said the governor was not worried by the vocal opposition.

"The majority of the people who live in Maryland support slots. The state is broke, and we can't fix the problem without revenues from slots," Schurick said. "[If the bill doesn't pass] it means the state won't have the money to pay for education."

In the Senate, where Ehrlich's slots bill passed narrowly last year, President Thomas V. Mike Miller Jr. said Maryland should be considered part of a region of states that already have legalized gambling. The Calvert Democrat called slots "an absolute economic necessity in light of the divided government we have," and said legislators needed to move forward to pass a bill. Senate Minority Leader J. Lowell Stoltzfus, R-Somerset, said the fate of the governor's slots bill rests with House Speaker Michael E. Busch, D-Anne Arundel. Busch said he is NCLB Gets An F...

One of President Bush's pet projects that is coming back to haunt him is his "No Child Left Behind" law passed two years ago, an effort with admirable intent, but apparently loaded with flaws. The brief track record of NCLB seems to indicate that it is destined to fail.

The basic premise of the law is that if school systems and teachers are doing their jobs correctly, then all children, no matter what their individual circumstances may be, are capable of reading on grade level. Each and every public school in the nation is being tested to see if it is meeting something called AYP, or adequate yearly progress. Schools that do not meet the AYP standard are first classified as "needing improvement," and if that school continues to show "needing improvement," it will ultimately be flagged as a "failing" school and face severe sanctions. Government intervention to "reconstitute" the failed schools is the next step, which studies have shown is not only expensive, but also fails.

One of the major problems with the law is that the reading scores of special education students, who take exactly the same test as non-special education children, are included in the overall assessment for the school. Garrett County, which on many occasions has led the state in assessment testing, has several schools right now that are labeled "needing improvement," entirely because of the low scores among the special education students. The state of Maryland currently has 151 schools so designated.

Once again, the premise here is that, even a child with a learning disability or any number of other developmental problems can learn to read on his or her grade level. The fact of the matter is, some children will not — cannot — ever read on grade level, no matter how hard they work, and no matter how much and what kind of instruction is provided by the teacher. It's like asking the top five professional basketball coaches in the nation to "teach" a child who is three feet tall to jump up and touch the rim. It's simply not going to happen, no matter how hard the child tries, how much knowledge the coaches have, and how much money one spends on the instruction.

The key word upon which schools should be evaluated is "progress." If a school can show that a special education child has made progress, or has perhaps met his or her potential, then that school should receive a passing grade. Right now, it is a pass/fail standard, with no consideration for any change in the middle.

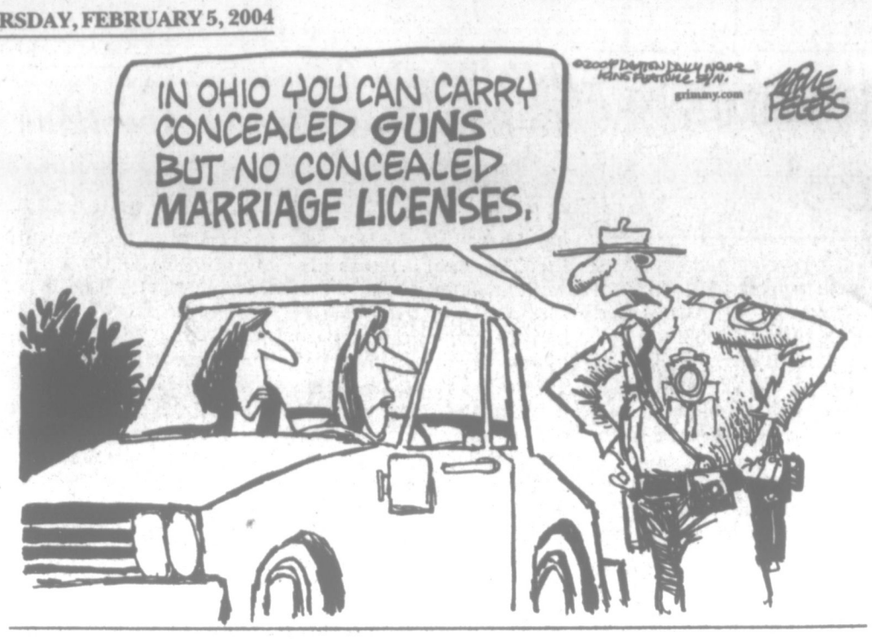
NCLB is under-funded, even though spending more money would not make it work anyway. It is placing tremendous pressure on teachers, and causing them great frustration. They must devote most of their time just drilling children on how to pass a test, which greatly limits attention to teaching the overall curriculum. Higher scores on one particular test does not necessarily equate to academic improvement.

NCLB is also beginning to cause our best teachers to leave the lower performing schools — where they are most needed — and join the faculty of higher performing schools.

Not only are teachers frustrated and disillusioned, but so are the parents of the special education children, who do not enjoy being in the position that, if their community school fails, it is all their kids' fault because they can't measure up.

The law also does nothing to address the many negative factors outside the school that cause students to fail.

NCLB may not need to be repealed, but it certainly needs to be revised. Otherwise, within short order the list of failing schools in our country will be insurmountable.



Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

I couldn't agree with you more (editorial 1/29/04) than for all of us to use caution in this bad weather, especially during severe snow storms. One thing comes to mind: WIPERS ON – LIGHTS ON; it's the law. This is a good law and should be a good habit for all to get into, rain or snow, any season of the year. If you need your wipers, turn on your headlights for safety. It helps keep us all safe.

To the Editor:

On Saturday, January 31, JG's Pub held Garrett County's first-ever snowmobile Poker Run. There where approximately 90 snowmobiles in attendance, with 100 people signed up. This event raised $1,000 for Maryland Special Olympics.

I would like to thank the Maryland State Police and State Highway Administration for their assistance, and the local land owners who allowed us to cross. We could never have done this without you.

I would also like to thank Kate and Fred of JG's Pub, Lohr Distributors, Bill's Marine, Black Bear, Pawn Run, the Board Walk, the Honi Honi, and the people who participated in the run.

Thank you,

To the Editor:

On Feb. 1, at approximately 6 p.m., we witnessed the height of cruelty by a person on a snowmobile.

Five deer were crossing the Pawn Run arm of Deep Creek Lake, going from Penn Point to Pergin Farm. When the individual saw the deer on the frozen lake he immediately began to chase the smallest deer with the snowmobile. The deer fell twice and barely made land at Pergin Farm with macho snowmobiler in pursuit.

Although we blew our trucks horn and screamed some choice words they went unheard by the snowmobiler because of the helmet the individual was wearing and the snowmobile engine noise.

It woiuld be nice to know that someday that person's snowmobile ends up on the bottom of Deep Creek Lake.

My wife and I are active snowmobilers and also avid hunters; however, the actions of this snowmobiler went beyond the rules of fair play.

To the Editor,

I am writing in response to Ms. Stanton's letter to the editor concerning her son's prison sentence. I am the victim of the kidnapping/carjacking case. I was the ex-girlfriend of the author's son when he chose his own fate and made the decision to take me without my consent, giving me the most terrifying experience I have ever had! No one but God and I will ever know what he put me through, physically and emotionally. Thirteen years in prison can't begin to make up for the terrifying things he did to me.

Ms. Stanton wrote of this case and another being similar. I know of no other case that was even like mine. And I know of no other girl in my church who has gone through a situation like I have.

I am with child and I will do everything to protect my child from experiencing anything close to what I went through with the author's son. I want nothing more than for my child to have a loving father; however, I also want to raise my child free from violence and abuse.

I am not perfect, but I also know that I did not deserve to be abused in any way. I can only thank God for saving my life and getting me through this horrifying experience. I will stand for my rights and also my child's rights to be free from any kind of violence and abuse!

To the Editor:

Sometimes I wonder if some of our officials in the county and state governments do not have anything better to do than to sit around figuring new ways to extract extra bucks from the taxpayers and property owners. The proposed cat and dog taxes are a bit of hinging on the mundane and ridiculous, it seems. The law would have merit if all the dogs and cats were covered by license enforcement, but how about the large number of strays and those left to the wilds that are never covered? Is it fair to those who lawfully tag and inoculate their pets, while upwards of a third are not? There are lots of smuggled and unreported animals that never get accounted for, but those of us who try to be law-abiding have to make up the shortfall for others. In my 90 years in Garrett County, I've seen it happen many times.

Many times it is the stray and unlicensed animals who spread rabies and other animal diseases. However, neither is it the domesticated animals that are mostly at fault. Raccoons, skunks, opossums, and squirrels are the worst offenders and they are wards of the state, under the supposed control of the game commission. I've never seen much done by local law in the control of feral wild animals. Yet, our tame animals must all be tagged and we are responsible.

A lot of the ordinances we enjoy (?) today have been slipped under the back door when we weren't looking or were too passive to care. One rather ridiculous thought comes to mind – what if the farmers had to hang a tag around the neck of each chicken, duck, or turkey? What if each horse, cow, pig, sheep, or goat had to wear a license tag? Perhaps stranger things have been considered. For over 70 years, I have legally taken care of my animals, but I think common sense should prevail.

Sincerely,
Wayne Wolfe

To the Editor:

With the coming of a new year, many people resolve to lose weight, get organized, or save money. But how many make it a New Year's resolution to learn more about insurance? Unfortunately, not enough. In fact, according to a recent survey by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners (NAIC), even though most Americans feel they have about the right amount of insurance coverage (72 percent), only 33 percent say they understand the details of those policies "very well."

Luckily, this unfortunate – and often costly – information gap is completely avoidable. When it comes to insurance, knowledge is your best policy, and the Maryland Insurance Administration (MIA) is one very good resource for insurance-related questions. That's why the MIA is partnering with the NAIC to sponsor an educational campaign in February.

During February, the public is encouraged to schedule check-ups with their insurance agents or carriers and to contact the MIA for information on what to expect from insurance coverage. As a public service, our department offers many free brochures with tips for evaluating and finding the right coverage.

Remember, the MIA is here to serve the public. It is our mission to enforce insurance laws and provide consumer protection. And we understand better than anyone the unique insurance needs of the people living in Maryland.

Our goal for this campaign is to educate consumers to make informed decisions about their coverage, not to promote selling or buying insurance policies. It's about making sure every person in Maryland is properly covered. Please contact our department at 1-800-492-6116 with any insurance questions. Also, check our web site at www.mdinsurance.state.md.us for lots of good information.

Sincerely,
Alfred W. Redmer Jr.
Maryland Insurance Commissioner

To the Editor:

I must respond to Steve Schlosnagle's letter of last week. Steve presents one side; here's another.

"Millionaires and billionaires" provide many of the jobs in this country and pay most of the income tax burden. Some of those taxes help to fund arts groups which he and I favor.

Much of the reason health insurance and prescription drugs are so unaffordable is because of the massive regulatory hoops companies and doctors have to jump through. In spite of that, they still manage to provide the best medical care and drugs in the world.

I feel sorry for anyone facing retirement with just Social Security to keep them. And I feel sorry for the rest of us who will be increasing our payments every few years because we can't imagine changing the system; we'll just make it bigger. (Same thing with the schools.) It seems we can't suggest changing anything, only enlarging things that are already failing.

One can find differing numbers on whether economic polarization is better or worse than that of four years ago, but class warfare is certainly alive and well, and it's not helpful. It's getting more difficult to include stockholders in the hated upper class since most anybody who has a 401 K or IRA probably is one. And I remember when my IRA value started declining (before Bush), and I know when it began rising again (during Bush).

I'm not too concerned about those who are alarmed by the way we go about defending ourselves. Friends and enemies come and go; look at the Soviet Union. Our federal government's first constitutional priority is to defend this country. I'll worry about our reputation when masses of people stop rushing to get in. In the meantime, we'll go on being the country that is the most charitable and the top food and medical exporter in the world.

A few years ago almost every public figure (not only in this country) expressed belief that Iraq had or was getting WMDs. Even our preceding president said it, although who can tell what he really believed. One of our leading Democratic presidential candidates spoke against higher intelligence budgets.

Finally, Saddam Hussein blatantly ignored most of the surrender terms he agreed to after Desert Storm. The UN was satisfied with just passing blustering resolutions year after year, but the U.S. "rushed" in after all those years and did something about it.

You'll get no election result predictions from me. But I'm sure whoever loses will blame the stupid people.

Sincerely,
Matt Eary
Grantville

To the Editor:

I have been quiet from the letter front for a while; however, I would like to address a few things. I feel that the debate on Iraq is getting old. Certainly it can continue, but if we reflect back to last year at this time, it appears that as some said at the time, the use of military force in Iraq was unnecessary. The truth is finally starting to come out and people of not only the U.S. but the world were intentionally misled concerning the hoopla and scare propaganda concerning Iraq's supposed stockpile of weapons of mass destruction, which, as is coming out by former officials, probably never existed.

I should point out that the WMD was the main reason used by the U.S. and U.K. for the military action; but it's becoming more clear that it was not the real reason behind it.

I realize there is a need at times to use military force to protect and defend; however, Iraq had nothing to do with the events of September 11, 2001. Foreign terrorists are not the only threat, and there have been a number of high profile terrorist events carried out by American citizens, such as the Oklahoma City bombing, the unibomber, and the Olympic Park bombing, among others. That should be given as much attention as foreign terrorists.

Another thing people need to realize is that more people are killed by drunk drivers or murderers than by terrorists in any year.

It just seems that if the far right wing did not oppose security measures prior to 9/11, that attack may have been prevented, but they said at the time they were unnecessary and a violation of rights. Now since 9/11 the right wing doesn't care about protecting rights of the people, or so it seems.

I want to tie into this an article I read on the Internet earlier this week stating that our nation will have a $2.4 trillion deficit for the next year. I say that is really ridiculous, considering that President Clinton brought our nation record surpluses in the budget only a few short years ago, and it's sad that some good programs that help people and our nation (such as the AmeriCorps) have been shortchanged, under-funded, or cut altogether.

I found some good news in that it appears most of the American people are finally realizing that this nation has only gone down hill the past three years and that a change is needed. A USA Today/Gallup poll showed that John Kerry would defeat Bush 53%-46%, and even John Edwards would have defeated Bush if an election were held at the time the poll was taken.

I feel that we need a change in Washington. Our country can not afford four more years of record deficits and war.

Respectfully submitted
Lester Lewis

To the Editor,

I was just skimming through the Garrett County Weekender, and I came to two full pages of "anti-drug" advertisements. I realize the intent behind this was to deter minors from using mind-altering substances, and I applaud all who participated. However, I am forced to truly make people aware.

Please understand, before I begin, I want all who are reading this to be completely aware that I in no way, shape, or form advocate the use of mind-altering substances by minors.

The first items I would like to bring attention to are the campaign slogans being used to show our children how to be leaders and not followers.

The first one I saw was "talk." I must absolutely say that "talking" does not work, and I cannot in good consciousness sit back and allow people to think it does. Anyone who has ever had a family member or some other person they loved on any kind of a mind-altering substance knows this to be fact. One can talk and talk and talk until he/she is blue in the face. When a person chooses that type of life style, he does not listen to anyone telling him that the effects of what he is doing are detrimental to his well being. The first thing a person who is using will say to anyone trying to incorporate truth into his brain is, "I've got it all under control." One will not, does not, and cannot understand his/her incompetence when he is using. Therefore, "talk" is not an effective means for deterring one away from this immoral, illegal, and invisible seductress.

The next one that caught my eye was, "Just say no," with various other script attached. Please! Telling young adults to say no to a mind-altering substance is like putting one in the middle of the woods during a Garrett County snowstorm with no proper winter attire, with a campfire and three feet of wood stacked beside them, and saying, "Don't put wood on that fire; let it go out!" Just as a roaring campfire keeps one from freezing to death, mind-altering substances keep one warm and makes one feel all cozy inside. Peer pressure has nothing to do with our children getting high – euphoria does.

Another ad that I noticed made my heart ache. It had "be a winner" in it. I am appalled. When one is the only one in a group of people that he highly respects (no pun intended) and is the only one not using, he certainly does not feel like a winner! Even more so, when everyone around him is making the one who is sober and straight feel like the most abnormal person in the entire free universe. So one might think to himself, "Get new friends." Okay, I'll submit to that thought, however weak it might be, but how does one "get a new family?" See, when one is in a situation of watching someone he loves slowly destroy not only his mind, but his body as well, he feels defeated. Once again, "Be a winner" is not reassuring at all!

These ads were obviously geared toward our younger generation. Who thought of putting these ads in the Garrett County Weekender? I have four beautiful girls ranging in ages 7-17, and not one of them is interested in looking at this paper. Therefore, all the time, energy, and money it took to invest into two full pages of ads was (in my eyes) not properly spent!

Finally, I already know that there are those out there musing to themselves, "Well, Ms. Smartie Pants, what is your solution?"

First of all, if I were a Garrett County commissioner I would take money from ineffective advertisements and put it into recreation. I'd find land, buildings, or vacant lots. to refurbish (possibly something like the unused I.G.A. building in Accident) and I'd bring back activities for our children. Small-town U.S.A. has nothing for these young ones to do but sit around and be seduced by a potential black widow. The main reason our children are stoned is because they are looking for fun. I say, let's use money from non-effective advertising and build a skating rink. Let's have a fund-raiser to build an old-fashioned drive-in theater. Garrett County spends millions of dollars on ways of attracting tourists (some of whom, by the way, bring their drugs up from the cities with them); why not find ways of attracting fun for our future leaders of America? There is so much talent in Garrett County. It aches my heart to know that our "shining star" is being enticed, oppressed, and corrupted because those in power feel that tourism is more important than the natives. If we (Garrett County citizens) get serious about our children, one day the sign to our county line could read, "Home of one of the most-loved and respected singers, songwriters, movie stars, or presidents that ever lived." What would that do for tourism and Garrett County economy? I honestly feel that by going the extra mile today, we are building a freeway to the future!

Alas, I am not a Garrett County commissioner. I am but a citizen of Garrett County, one of many who votes. I may not have available funding at this point and time; however, as a citizen I can use what God gave me, and I have. I have used my mind, my pen, my paper, and my time, and if the editor of The Republican will be kind enough to print my article, perhaps I'll have "jump-started" one's ambition enough to go a step further for our children. If I have offended anyone, please note that one could have quit reading this letter long ago. That was not the intention of my letter; however, if the shoe fits...wear it... and I'm not referring to Cinderella.

Lawmakers Seek To Grab Some Of Governor's Budget Powers

by Rolando Garcia
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – A group of lawmakers wants to curb the governor's vast budget power and is proposing a constitutional amendment to allow the General Assembly to move funds within the budget. The move reignites a long-standing struggle between the Assembly and a governor who wields greater constitutional authority than almost any other state executive.

Under the present system, the Assembly can only cut spending. If the Assembly wants to increase funding for a particular program, it must cut funding from another program and then suggest the governor reallocate the money to the favored program. If the governor agrees, he sends the Assembly a supplemental budget.

"There is too much power in the hands of one person," said Patrick Hogan, D-Montgomery, the amendment's sponsor. "This is a very modest change to bring a little bit of balance to the budget process."

The process is cumbersome, Hogan said, because the supplemental budget often comes laden with other provisions the governor wants passed.

The amendment would allow the Assembly to change funding for line-items within the governor's proposed budget, as long as total spending does not exceed the governor's original request. The amendment would bring Maryland in line with most other states where the Legislature can alter the governor's proposed budget, Hogan said.

To be enacted, the amendment would need a three-fifths majority in both chambers of the Assembly and then be approved by voters.

The issue transcends party lines to pit the legislative branch against the executive branch, Hogan said. The measure has 28 co-sponsors, including four Republicans.

When the amendment was last introduced in 2002, it was opposed by then-Gov. Parris Glendening and fell two votes short in the Senate of the supermajority needed to pass. It never got to the House of Delegates.

Sen. David Brinkley, R-Frederick, a co-sponsor, said some Republicans' enthusiasm for the amendment may have waned with a Republican governor in office.

Gov. Robert Ehrlich opposes the amendment, said spokeswoman Shareese DeLeaver.

To pass, the measure must not only overcome the governor's opposition, but also the reluctance of some Assembly members to assume more budget responsibility, said Barbara Hoffman, former senator and advocate of the proposal.

"There are some who prefer not to have that power so they can say, 'Gee, I would have loved to fund your project, but we couldn't change the governor's budget,'" Hoffman said. "It's a good excuse."

Some lawmakers are also fearful the amendment would invest too much budget authority within the Senate Budget and House Appropriations committees, Hoffman said. While the governor could still veto the Assembly's budget changes, the amendment would allow lawmakers to reconvene in special session to override those vetoes. Currently, only the governor can call the Assembly into special session.

Cabin fever, which is becoming epidemic throughout Garrett County this winter, can certainly lead to some interesting activities. Photo by John McEwen.

Bills Would

gal abortions, Bagwell said, or to prolonged decisions that delay abortions, making the procedure more risky.

The same bill was proposed last year by Amedori, but was withdrawn before it came to committee vote. Amedori and supporters worked over the summer to solicit votes necessary to pass the bill, and now have the power to draw the bill to the House floor if it is purposefully stalled in committee, she said. A similar Senate bill died in committee last year, 6-5.

"All pro-life legislation is tough to move in the committees," said Sen. Larry E. Haines, R-Carroll, a bill supporter. "If it gets to the floor of the Senate it will pass."

Sen. Paula C. Hollinger, D-Baltimore, opposes the bill. She is chairwoman of the committee that will hear the Senate version.

"The reason I'm against it is we already have a law," said Hollinger, a nurse. "If there is a question about the safety of a minor, either physical or otherwise, the bypass goes through the physician, not the courts."

GC HUMANE SOCIETY NETS GRANT – The Very Best Pet Network (VBPN) recently presented a grant to the Garrett County Humane Society that is being used to help increase local animal adoptions. A portion of the funding was used to purchase a new digital camera, which will allow volunteers to take and post animal photos sooner, thereby increasing the odds that an animal will be either claimed by its owner or adopted into a loving home. The photos are loaded onto the Petfinder Web page at www.petfinder.com, a nationwide search site that matches pet seekers with potential companions. GC Animal Shelter control officer Barb Collins, left, is shown as Humane Society volunteer Lisa Baker presents the camera.

Hopkins Dean Backs Maryland's Universal Health Care Bill

by Alex Quinones
Capital News Service

BALTIMORE – The dean of the Johns Hopkins school of public health endorsed a state bill Wednesday that would force businesses to either offer health insurance to their employees or pay toward a fund for the uninsured. Bloomberg School of Public Health dean Alfred Sommer said later that it was the first time he has ever endorsed a universal health care bill.

"It is extraordinarily embarrassing for me, personally, to go to almost any meeting in the world where there are people from other developed market economies, because we are the only country which does not guarantee access to health care," he said.

Sommer joins a long list of supporters of the bill, which is expected to be filed in the General Assembly within the next few days. But the proposal has strong opponents as well, including the Maryland Chamber of Commerce.

The chamber, whose 900 members employ 340,000 Marylanders, said that forcing businesses to participate in health care coverage could cost them more than $500 million, which would lead to the loss of thousands of jobs.

"They [backers] have done a good job of raising grassroots support," said chamber spokesman Ronald W. Wineholt. "I think the reason it has not passed is because there are questions with the plan."

A better solution, Wineholt said, is lowering the cost of health care by going after fraud and abuse, making it more affordable for businesses to join health care groups and reforming the medical malpractice system.

"We think the solution is trying to find a way to make health insurance more affordable. If you find ways to reduce cost, that is better for the insured and the uninsured," Wineholt said.

House and Senate bills should be filed in the next couple of days, said Vincent DeMarco, president of Maryland Citizens' Health Initiative, the group behind the proposal. DeMarco's group said the bill would charge a 4.5 percent tax on the payroll of businesses with fewer than 10,000 employees that do not offer health insurance, and an 8 percent tax on such businesses if they have more than 10,000 employees. The bill would also raise the tax on cigarettes by 50 cents a pack.

The Maryland Citizens' Health Initiative estimates that 25 percent of state businesses do not offer their employees health insurance. "Because of how we pay for health care in this state, it's not fair – if you are an employer who gives health care to your employees that you are unfairly subsidizing those who aren't," said Glenn Schneider, executive director of the Maryland Citizens' Health Initiative. "In reality you're picking up the slack of those who aren't doing anything."

The bill also calls for expansions of the state's Medicaid and Medicare programs and ex-pansion of the small-group insurance plan. It would also create a program to offer health care to the 4 percent of the population that would not be covered by expanding current health plans. The bill has won support from groups like the American Cancer Society, the Baltimore Jewish Council, and the American Medical Student Association, 17 members of which were present at Wednesday's news conference with Sommer.

Katherine Conner, a second-year medical student, said she plans to testify to the Maryland Senate Finance Committee on the bill Feb. 25.

"In order for us to effectively work to promote the health of our future patients and our communities, we have to ensure that they are no longer excluded from accessing quality, affordable comprehensive health care," said Conner, who represented the University of Maryland AMSA chapter in Baltimore.

duty. That's simply "not true," she said.

"The majority of crime is committed with handguns," said Jacobs. "It's ludicrous that they're going after law-abiding citizens [by taking away their guns]."

Maryland has been a leader in gun-control legislation, with former Gov. Parris Glendening pushing through trigger-lock requirements, and passage of a 1994 assault-pistol ban.

The bill's backers said that within the first six months after passage of the 1994 legislation, Baltimore had 55 percent fewer assault pistols recovered, while in Prince George's County assault pistols are no longer being seized.

Garagiola used ATF statistics to bolster his claim that gun legislation works to curb dangerous guns from reaching the streets. Criminals' use of assault weapons, according to ATF statistics, has plummeted by more than two-thirds since the ban was enacted in 1994.

Barrett called the use of the assault weapons "morally repugnant" and warned potential supporters not to be intimidated by the power of the gun industry and lobbyists.

"These are military weapons," she said, "and they have no place in a civilized society."

EPA Criticized For Giving State Repeated Clean-Air Extensions

by Jen DeGregorio
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON – Maryland should have no problem finishing a plan to reduce Washington-area air pollution, a state official said Wednesday, one day after a court said federal regulators should not have granted the state repeated extensions on the plan.

Assistant Attorney General Kathy Kinsey said that the state had more studies and paperwork to complete on its plan, but should be able to file it with the Environmental Protection Agency by April. Her comments came one day after the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit said the EPA should not have given Maryland, Virginia, and Washington, D.C., more time to show how they planned to lower ozone pollution in the region, which was in "serious" violation of Clean Air Act standards.

Kinsey downplayed the practical effect of the ruling, but environmental groups that sued the EPA to force the change hailed the decision.

David Baron, the lawyer who represented the Sierra Club in the case, said the appeals court should prohibit the EPA from granting "bogus" extensions to areas that submit illegitimate or incomplete plans to clean up their air. The Sierra Club had sued, charging that the EPA illegally ignored the Clean Air Act by letting the states and district violate clean-air deadlines for more than 10 years.

"What's so galling about this case is that we've had to sue them [the EPA] three times now in a two-year period, and we've won every time," Baron said. "And instead of moving forward quickly to enforce clean-air requirements, they come up with new violations of the law to avoid doing their jobs."

In 1991, the EPA gave all U.S. cities with "serious" ozone problems eight years to bring levels down to standard. But the Washington-region governments did not even file a plan for lowering ozone levels until 1997-98, the court said, and said that plan would not have achieved the required pollution levels until 2005.

In 2001, the EPA extended the deadline for the Washington area until 2005. Maryland counties included in the Washington-area "non-attainment region" include Frederick, Montgomery, Prince George's, Calvert, and Charles.

After the Sierra Club sued, and won, the EPA last year "bumped up" the classification of the Washington-region problem from serious to severe – which had the effect of giving the region until November 2005 to come in to compliance. The EPA also granted conditional approval to the local governments' plans to reach that level of compliance.

But the Sierra Club argued that the plans lacked specifics, required by law, on how and when the air-quality improvements would be achieved. The appeals court panel this week agreed, saying the EPA was wrong to "grant conditional approval to plans that did nothing more than promise to do tomorrow what the [Clean Air] Act requires today."

The court did not give the EPA a deadline by which the states and the district had to submit a better plan to curb ozone levels. But Baron said an unspoken timeline of "a couple of years" exists. What is certain, Baron said, is "that there will be stronger pollution control requirements" for the states.

An EPA spokeswoman said the agency would not comment until the decision has been fully reviewed. Officials with the Maryland Department of Environment could not be reached to comment Wednesday.

Environmental groups would like to see more state and federal money allotted to public transportation, as one way of reducing pollution in the region, said Jon Robinson, vice chair for the Maryland chapter of the Sierra Club.

The organization would also like to see California-style "clean-car legislation" in Maryland. Such laws require cleaner, specially formulated fuel to be sold at gas stations and cars with engine controls that reduce ozone-causing gases like nitrogen and carbon to be sold at dealerships. The "modestly more expensive," said Robinson.

If the states do not come up with a feasible plan on their own, they could face the loss of federal funds for transportation projects, such as road construction and repair.

"And if they don't," Baron said, "we'll have to file another lawsuit."

Walter S. Gay, 76, Bayard, W.Va., died Saturday, Jan. 31, 2004, at the Grant County Nursing Home, Petersburg, W.Va.

Born Jan. 13, 1928, in Bayard, he was a son of the late Samuel T. and Sadie (Shears) Gay. He was also preceded in death by seven brothers, John Gay, James Gay, Edward Gay, Glen Gay, George Gay, Albert Gay, and Clifford Gay; and one sister, Rose Bosley.

He is survived by one sister, Mary C. Cosner, Bayard.

Friends were received at the Stewart Funeral Home, Oakland.

A service was held at the funeral home on Monday, Feb. 2, with the Rev. William McCallister officiating.

Interment was in the Bayard Cemetery.

JENNIE D. STARK

Jennie D. Stark, 88, Lonaconing, died Thursday, Jan. 29, 2004, at Sacred Heart Hospital, Cumberland.

Born July 2, 1915, in Avilton, she was a daughter of the late Wilbur T. and Nellie (Hetz) Durst. She was preceded in death by one son, Robert M. Stark; one grandson; one brother, Marshall Durst; and one sister, Ethel Garlitz.

She was a retired elementary school teacher, who taught at Grantsville Elementary School for 20 years and in Prince George's County for 11 years. She was a graduate of Frostburg State University, a member of the Garrett County Retired Teachers Association, and Northern Garrett County Republican Women's Club. She also was a member of Mount Zion United Methodist Church, where she was a member of the United Methodist Women and former Sunday school teacher.

She is survived by her husband, Ira M. Stark; one son, Ray E. Stark, Greencastle, Pa.; one daughter, Jeanne S. Turner, Cumberland; one brother, Russell C. Durst, Barton; two sisters, Anna C. Durst, LaVale, and Laura D. Turner, Grantsville; five grandchildren; and 14 great-grandchildren.

Friends were received at the Newman Funeral Home, Grantsville, where a service was conducted on Saturday, Jan. 31, with the Rev. Daniel C. Agnew officiating.

Interment was in Mount Zion Cemetery.

Expressions of sympathy may be sent to Mount Zion United Methodist Church.

IDA E. MILLER

Interment was in the Springs Cemetery.

Expressions of sympathy may be directed to the Springs Mennonite Church Building Fund.

TRUCK RAFFLE SUPPORTS CHILDREN'S MIRACLE NETWORK – Oakland resident Ben Hight is shown with the 2003 Chevrolet Silverado pickup truck that he won in a fund-raising raffle sponsored by the Oakland Wal-Mart store. Markwood's Citgo assisted with the local benefit raffle, which raised nearly $20,000 for the non-profit Children's Miracle Network (CMN), an alliance of 170 premier children's hospitals across North America. Wal-Mart and Sam's Club employees around the world were responsible for over $30 million worth of fund-raising last year for the CMN organization, which has raised more than $2.2 billion since its 1983 inception.

In Loving Memory of our daughter
Jennifer Ranae Fisher
April 27, 1984 - Feb. 9, 2003

If roses grow in Heaven, Lord,
Please pick a bunch from us.
Place them in our daughter's arms
And tell her they're from us.
Tell her how we love and miss her,
And when she turns to smile,
Place a kiss upon her cheek
And hold her for a while.
Because remembering her is easy,
We do it every day.
But there's an ache within our hearts
That will never go away.

Loved and sadly missed by Mom, Dad, brothers & family

Adorable Adoptables

OH, WHERE HAVE THESE LITTLE DOGS GONE – These two beagle mixes were picked up recently by the Garrett County Animal Shelter and are available for adoption. A Humane Society spokesperson noted, however, that they probably have owners. She reminds residents to please put identification tags on pets, so that they can be more easily returned to their owners. Residents are also asked to provide adequate water (not snow), shelter, and bedding for their animals, especially during the severe weather conditions that the county has been experiencing lately. Straw is still available at the Animal Shelter for outdoor pets. For more information about adopting these or any other pet from the shelter, persons may call 301-334-3553.

RECYCLE FRIDAY

This Friday, Feb. 6, is recycling day for the residents of Friendsville. Residents are encouraged to continue their support of this project by saving newspapers, glass, and aluminum cans. Items to be picked up should be at curbside by 9 a.m. on the first Friday of every month.

FRIENDSVILLE FIREFLIES 4-H CLUB

The January meeting of the Friendsville Fireflies was held at the Friendsville Elementary School. New officers were assigned and they are as follows: president, Bradley Friend; vice president, Beth Long; secretary, Ashely Calhoun; reporter, Teresa Friend; song and recreation directors, Keaton Thomas and Aaron Calhoun; and Clover Bud, Brian Friend.

The 4-H pledge was led by Teresa Friend, and the American pledge was led by Aaron Calhoun. The roll-call was answered by naming a winter sport. Club plans for the new year were discussed, which included a candy bar fund-raiser. Plans were also made for a spaghetti dinner to be held for the Hunter family, whose house recently burned. Snowy Creek 4-H Club will also be helping with the spaghetti dinner.

Teresa Friend hosted the meeting and provided the snack and craft.

The next meeting of the Friendsville Fireflies will be held Tuesday, Feb. 17, at the Friendsville Elementary School. The club members will be doing their public speaking at the February meeting. Anyone interested in joining is asked to call Alice Long at 301-746-8924 or Lu Friend at 301-746-5616.

Doors will open at 11 a.m., and a total of 25 guns will be raffled off, one every 15 minutes, starting at noon. There will also be separate raffles all day long, and food and beverages will be provided. Only those persons with a ticket will be admitted. Tickets can also be purchased at the door, if available.

WING NIGHT

Wing Night is held every Friday evening from 6 to 9 p.m. at the Friendsville fire hall.

ELECTION NEWS

The town of Friendsville will hold its municipal election next Tuesday, Feb. 10, from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. at the town hall. Each member of the town council is elected to a 2-year term. Hold-over council members who have a year to serve are Jane Fox, Wayne Friend, and a vacant seat to be filled in March. Voters will have the opportunity to vote for three new council members.

Candidates running in this election are Herschel Allen, Tom Fike, Frances Friend, Hobe Griffith, Robert Sines, and Maureen Stewart. Spencer Schlosnagle and Terry Spear are running for mayor.

Hobart (Hobe) Griffith is running for a seat on the town council. Hobe was born and raised in Friendsville. He is a past member of the town council and said he has always enjoyed trying to help improve the town. Even as a non-member of the council, Hobe occasionally attends town meetings to keep in touch with what is going on.

"A member of the council has to stay on the ball and when the need arises, action needs to be taken quickly" he said, in reference to getting grants for the town. "If I am elected, I will work for the town as a whole and not the individual."

Robert Sines is also running for a seat on the town council. Robert was born and raised in Friendsville and is the father of five children. He is an active member of Woodmen of the World Lodge 45 and has also served on the WOW board. He previously served six years on the town council and during that time he helped work on the town park. He said he is also proud of his role in trying to keep the voice of the people being heard and carried out. "I have always tried to do as good a job as can be done," said Robert, "and would like to serve the residents of Friendsville."

Spencer R. Schlosnagle is running for mayor, and if re-elected, it will make his 19th year. Spencer is the son of the Alta and the late Raymond Schlosnagle. He was born and raised in Friendsville and says he has always felt a "very strong pride" for the community. At the young age of 19 he took enough interest in his town to run for town council and be accepted by voters to a 2-year term. He has been mayor since the age of 21 and has seen and been a part of many changes.

"So much has been accomplished because of the strong working relationship that we as a community have," Spencer said. The citizens have worked toward many goals, such as numerous grants made possible with the help and support of residents who have pulled together when needed. The people have always come together as a whole for the betterment of the town."

Even though the town doesn't house many businesses, Spencer feels that Friendsville is very fortunate to have a river that brings in business to the town, a beautiful walkway at the town park that takes place along the river, a community center, a health center, and some unique non-commercial shops.

"I see great importance in revitalization for our town, which recently underwent a survey by the Community Legacy Task Force for which I represent Friendsville," stated Spencer, "Some of the things that we hope to achieve through the Community Legacy would be for grant money to help with streetscapes, signage for the town, and facelifts for some of the businesses. I would also like to see a business organization for the business owners to take part in to help promote each other with what they have to offer. Annexation is also a consideration to help expand the development of Friendsville. I feel that with the Community Legacy Task Force, a lot can happen to build prosperity in our town. This administration has worked through county, state, and federal offices to bring money into Friendsville. The general fund is the strongest it has been in years, and we will work to keep it sound. The recycling program that is spear-headed by Jane Fox is not only helping the environment, but is also helping to keep down the cost of the tipping fee for garbage pickup. Through programs like these, we hope to be able to continue to offer the residents of Friendsville free trash pickup in the future also."

When questioned about his residency, which through the week is spent outside of Friendsville due to his job, Spencer responded that his permanent residence is in Friendsville, where he receives all of his mail, including his paychecks and bills, and does all of his banking. Since he only stays at his place of employment during his work days, Spencer also noted that other mayors in Garrett and Allegany counties also do this sort of thing.

"This question came up a number of times over the last few years," he said "and I can totally assure everyone that it has been researched through the Maryland Municipal League and was found to be totally legal. Even though I am not always in Friendsville, I keep in close contact with the council and can be reached at all times. My work schedule is very flexible and even allows me to be able to attend various meetings throughout the county and state for fundings that will benefit the town. My bosses are very cooperative, even when an emergency arises in town that requires by immediate attention. Throughout the years as mayor I have missed only one meeting, and that was due to car trouble. I enjoy serving the people of Friendsville and will continue to work hard to get the various funding and support that will help us to continue to grow."

Terry Spear is a candidate for the position of mayor of Friendsville. Terry is a lifelong resident of Friendsville whose entire working career has been in the field of public service, as an employee of the Garrett County Sheriff's Office, deputy director of Garrett County Emergency Management, director of traffic and safety for Garrett County Roads, and presently a business owner in Friendsville. His volunteer activities include 31 years of active service with Northern Garrett Rescue Squad and 30½ years of active service with the Friendsville Volunteer Fire and Rescue Department.

Terry decided to file for election to the office of mayor after being a member of the town council for 4 years. "While the duties of the mayor are to follow through with the decisions made by the Town Council, I firmly believe that the mayor must be available to the citizens of Friendsville on a regular, almost daily, basis to listen to their concerns and comments regarding town issues," stated Terry. "I have the time to devote to the job, be a full-time mayor, and spend the amount of time representing the best interests of the town. I feel that the ceremonial aspects of the job are a part of the job; however, they should not consume the office. I would represent every citizen, businesses, large or small, as a big investment in Friendsville's future."

Terry's first goal would be to create better public relations between the town council and the citizens of Friendsville, not just in relationships throughout the community insofar as being a mayor to everyone. "It's keeping everyone's best interests in mind, not just a select few," continued Terry. "Another of my goals is to promote economic planning and development, with the assistance of the town council, to direct and implement a plan of action and bring it to fruition. With proper direction and planning, Friendsville will be a place that can attract residents as well as visitors. While serving as a member of the town council, I have directed projects that have further developed our town park, which includes a new Little League field, renovation of restroom facilities, new lighting at the ballfield, and new paving projects. I would continue to seek out and obtain any funding available to benefit the town. I am a devoted person who holds the interests of the general public with great respect, and will do my best to serve them."

The comments of candidates Tom Fike, Maureen Stewart, Herschel Allen, and Frances Friend were featured in last week's Republican.

FRIENDSVILLE MAYOR MEETS WITH STATE OFFICIALS – Friendsville mayor Spencer R. Schosnagle recently attended the Mountain Maryland PACE (Positive Attitudes Change Everything) reception and breakfast in Annapolis. He met with various state officials, lobbying for funds to upgrade the town's sewer system, which is currently under a moratorium. The mayor also met with Maryland Department of Housing & Community Development officials. The town has received numerous grants through this agency, Schosnagle noted, such as those for the Friendsville Head Start Center, the Friendsville Community/Senior Center, various water and wastewater projects, and most recently for Phase I and II of the Bear Creek Stream Bank Restoration Project. Pictured, left to right, are Cindy Stone, Gordon Outlaw, and Nancy Palmer, all of Housing & Community Development, and Schlosnagle at the PACE reception.

FRIENDSVILLE

Curbside recycling is going very well, and will continue this Friday, Feb. 6, beginning at 9 a.m., reported Mayor Spencer Schlosnagle. Town officials ask that residents separate their newspapers, all glass by colors, and aluminum cans.

The Friendsville branch of the Ruth Enlow Library recently received several additional tables and stands from the old Grantsville library. The Friendsville staff has also announced that the branch has new hours of operation, which went into effect on Feb. 1. The library is open Monday and Wednesday from 2 until 8 p.m., Tuesday and Thursday from noon until 5:30 p.m., and Saturday from 9 a.m. until 2 p.m. The library is closed on Friday and Sunday.

The Garrett County commissioners recently met with the mayor and town council to discuss issues of mutual concern. In lieu of a tax differential for the town, paving was done on Water Street by the county.

Mayor Schlosnagle recently attended the Mountain Maryland PACE (Positive Attitudes Change Everything) reception and legislative breakfast. While in Annapolis, he lobbied for funding for the Garrett County Sanitary District's Friendsville facility to upgrade the sewer system, which is currently under a moratorium. He also met with various state and other local officials from throughout the region.

Franchise agreements with Somerfield Cable Company is under review and is being considered by the town council.

The local Community Legacy board met recently and is working to beautify and "spruce up" the town in the upcoming months. The board was just informed that grant money is available for streetscape development, and businesses can receive matching funds for new building façades and upgrades to their businesses. In conjunction with these grants, Friendsville officials are also looking into purchasing new trash containers and planters, which will be placed throughout the town.

Residents are reminded that municipal elections for 2-year positions will be held Tuesday, Feb. 10, from 11 a.m. until 7 p.m. The following persons have filed petitions for office with the Friendsville clerk/treasurer: mayor (vote for only one candidate) – Spencer R. Schlosnagle and Terry E. Spear; and council members (vote for no more than three) – Herschel H. Allen III, Thomas L. Fike, Frances E. Friend; Harry Hobart, Griffith, Robert G. Sines, and Maureen Stewart. A total of three council members will be elected.

ACCIDENT

The town convention was held on Tuesday, Feb. 3. Paul Hook and incumbent Edward Golden were nominated to be placed on the ballot for the March 2 election. The polls will be open from 4 until 8 p.m. at the Accident Town Hall.

The February town meeting was held on Tuesday, Feb. 3, at the Accident Town Hall.

•Clay Riley from Thrasher Engineering was present to talk with the council about the upcoming sewer project. Thrasher expects to open up the project to bids in March, and start construction this spring.

•The council adopted the updated Subdivision Ordinance. The Planning Commission reviewed and approved the new ordinance.

•There will be a Zoning Appeals Board meeting on Thursday, Feb. 5, concerning the request to rezone the old IGA property.

•There will be a Strategic Planning meeting on Tuesday, Feb. 10, at 6:30 p.m. at the Accident Town Hall. Consultant Terrell Ellis will talk with those present about the current and future development of Accident and give her recommendations.

The next meeting will be held on Thursday, March 4, at 7:30 p.m. The Garrett County commissioners are scheduled to attend this meeting.

March Madness Raffle Tickets Still Available

March Madness is the name that has been given to a special cooperative fund-raising effort between the Oakland Elks Lodge and the Southern Garrett Band Boosters.

Members of those organizations are now selling "cash bash" raffle tickets ($25 each), the holders of which will be eligible to win cash on every day of March. The winners will be determined by the daily Maryland Pick-Three lottery numbers that are drawn. Prizes will range from $400 to a grand prize of $5,000.

The proceeds of the fund-raiser will be split between the Elks National Foundation — a scholarship program supported by Oakland Lodge #2481 — and the SG Band Boosters, to be earmarked for their new uniform fund. The boosters are raising funds to purchase new band member uniforms that will replace the 17-year-old uniforms currently being used.

Tickets may be purchased at the Oakland Elks Lodge, from any member of either organization, or by telephoning Susan Smith at 301-387-2615.

4-H Club News

by Shanna Holliday

The February meeting was called to order by club president Jackie Skeweris. The roll call question was, What kind of car would your horse be?

The bylaws were reviewed, and it was decided that no changes were needed at this time. Record books were turned into our leaders, Brenda Wotring and Sue Skeweris.

We made up our yearly activity calendar. We decided to participate in the ninth annual Walk for Hospice in April. We also discussed possible fund-raisers for our club. We searched Maryland 4-H on our computers and "surfed the web."

New club officers elected at the January meeting are: Jackie Skeweris, president; Stephanie Gordon, vice president; Devyn Bender, secretary; Ashley Vansickle, treasurer; and Jessica Simson and Shanna Holliday, club reporters. New members of the club are Lauren Adams, Devyn Bender, Vivian Geroski, Laura Schad, Jeffery Simson, Joey Simson, Kaylee Sisler, Sean Sisler, and Ashley Vansickle.

The next meeting of the Saddle Tramps will be Monday, March 1, 7 p.m., at the Extension office.

On Dean's List

Audrey Shipe, a 2001 graduate of Southern High School, was recently named to the dean's list at Frostburg State University for the fall 2003 semester.

In addition, she received the distinction of a 4.0 grade point average. This is the fifth consecutive semester Shipe has been on the dean's list. She is also a member of the FSU swimming and diving team.

To be eligible for the dean's list, a student must complete a minimum of 12 credit hours and earn a cumulative semester grade point average of at least 3.4 on a 4.0 scale.

She is the daughter of Jim and Mary Ann Shipe, Oakland.

GC Financial Aid Office Reps. To Visit Southern High

Garrett College Financial Aid Office representatives will be visiting Southern High School on three separate occasions this month to provide assistance to SHS seniors and their parents in completing federal financial aid forms and to answer general questions concerning financial aid.

The representatives will be available from 4 to 6 p.m. on Tuesday, Feb. 10, in the school's media center; from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. on Thursday, Feb. 19, in the guidance office; and from 4 to 6 p.m. on Wednesday, Feb. 25, in the media center.

Families who are not able to meet on these dates can visit the GC Financial Aid Office for assistance, and may call the office at 301-387-3083 to schedule an appointment.

Nature Connection

by Liz McDowell & Ron Boyer

Crossing the old field, you wind your way down to the woods along the stream. The change is dramatic as you slip from the sunny, snow-covered slope with its clumps of straw-colored broomsedge into the dark hemlock-beech forest. The sun barely penetrates the canopy here, and deep greens, browns, and grays surround you as you move between clumps of rhododendron. But closer to the stream you spy a color that seems out of place. A large cream-colored mass seems to encircle a tree, spilling onto the surrounding ground. You know it can only be one thing – a sign that the American beaver, Castor canadensis, is active in the area.

The beaver is currently the largest rodent in North America, and second largest in the world behind the capybara of South America. However, during the Pleistocene an extinct relative of the beaver roamed North America that was the size of a black bear! A mature beaver typically weighs 35 to 65 pounds, but the largest on record was an incredible 110 pounds when it was trapped in Wisconsin. Like all members of the order Rodentia, or "gnawing mammals," the beaver has ever-growing incisors. To keep these teeth from growing back into its skull the beaver must constantly gnaw. Trees and shrubs along the banks of streams and ponds inhabited by beaver provide plenty of gnawing material. Its favorite foods include aspen, alder, birch, maple, and willow, but hemlock and beech are also taken. Beaver eat the bark, cambium, twigs, and leaves of woody plants, and herbaceous plants such as waterlily.

This "engineer of the animal world" constructs dams, lodges, and canals, making its environment "beaver-friendly." Underwater entrances protect its lodge or bank burrow from intruders, and deep water close to its food supply provides quick escape cover. A beaver pond also provides habitat for an incredible variety of plants and animals, thereby enhancing the biodiversity of an area, at the same time that it helps slow flood waters, recharge groundwater, and reduce downstream sedimentation. The beaver moves easily through its aquatic environment, thanks to a variety of physical adaptations: large webbed hind feet that act like flippers, valvular nose and ears that close as it dives, clear eye-membranes for protected underwater vision, and lips that shut behind its large incisors, allowing it to gnaw under water. In addition, a set of anal glands produces oil that helps maintain its fur, keeping it waterproof.

Probably the most unique physical characteristic of the beaver is its large, flat tail that is covered with leathery scales. The tail, which is up to 16" long and 7" wide, acts as an oar in the water, a balance on land, a storage place for fat, and a regulator for temperature. However, contrary to folklore, the beaver does not carry mud on its tail or use it as a trowel when working on its dam. Thanks to its scaly tail, the beaver was classified as a fish by Roman Catholic clergy, allowing parishioners to enjoy a tasty treat even on Fridays. In addition to man, reported predators on beaver (especially the young, called kits) include bear, fisher, coyote, bobcat, otter, and large hawks and owls.

Beaver pelts were as good as gold to early explorers and Native Americans. In fact, much of North America was explored by trappers searching for riches in the form of pelts from beaver and other furbearers. The pelt was not the only part of the beaver considered valuable. Castoreum, a yellow oil produced by glands near the base of its tail, is used by the beaver to mark its territory. Trappers prized it as a lure for attracting additional beaver to their snares, Native Americans for a medicine, and perfume manufacturers for its musky fragrance. Trapping pressure was so intense that the beaver was extirpated from much of the East by the early 1900s. Luckily, thanks to reintroductions by man and natural migrations, the beaver is once again a major component of our fauna.

Reports from the Field

Connie Skipper of Oakland observed a light phase rough-legged hawk near Rock Lodge Road recently.

Elaine Raesly of south Finzel saw a sharp-shinned hawk perched close to her front door with its eye on the bird feeder.

COME ROCK AND BEE-BOP AT BROAD FORD – Broad Ford Elementary School is inviting the public to come and rock and bee-bop to the sounds of the '50s and 60s at a Valentine's Family Dance on Saturday, Feb. 14, from 6 until 10 p.m. Live music will be provided by a popular local band, Blue Existence, which for this special occasion will be known as "Kim and the Kupids," and will feature musicians Jim Jones, Kim Weimer, Jana Brown, and Charles Walch, pictured above. Dancers will dine on hot dogs, french fries, milk shakes, ice cream sundaes, and popcorn. The Bobcat Team at Broad Ford, which is sponsoring the dance, will give a prize to the dancers with the best '50s costumes. Dancers can also try their luck at hula-hoop and bubble-gum blowing contests. The team will raffle off a dinner for two, a massage by local massage therapist Kathleen Gibbs, and a Valentine gift basket. Tickets are $10 per family or $6 per person.

ROMANCE IN D*, WITH DINNER – Our Town Theatre in Oakland will present several performances of Romance in D, written by James Sherman, in mid-February, and will include a "romantic evening out" dinner theatre option for some of the production dates. The story revolves around Charles (played by Matt Eary) and Isabel (Sue Lisantti), middle-aged loners whose single parents are overwhelming forces in their lives. Charles lives alone with his music and books. Isabel, a poet newly separated from her husband, moves in next door. When Isabel's doting father arrives for a visit, he meets Charles's mother and their friendship quickly turns into a romance. This leaves the door open for the younger couple to make their own romantic connections. "All in all, the play is a comic illustration of love's ability to blossom under unlikely circumstances," said Jane Avery, director. The cast is pictured. Seated are Eary and Lisantti, and standing are Bruce Steele and Judy Bertsch. The show will run Feb. 12, 13, 14, 19, 20, and 21, with all shows at 8 p.m., and on the 15th at 2 p.m. The dinner theatre option will be offered for each evening show, and will be available for 20 people each night. (Dinner for Feb. 14 is sold out, but plenty of seats remain for the play on that day, Avery noted.) It will include a buffet dinner for $25, pre-paid. (Admission to the play alone is $5). The doors will open at 6 p.m. for dinner guests. When the meal is finished, these guests will be allowed their choice of seats before the rest of that evening's patrons are admitted at 7:30. Reservations for the dinner theatre guests must be paid for in advance and will not be refunded, the spokesperson said. For more information or to make a reservation, persons should call the theatre at 301-334-5640.

CONCERT SET AT MLP CHURCH – Pianist and missionary Don Stephens will present a free concert at 7 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 22, at the Faith Evangelical Free Church in Mtn. Lake Park. A Westernport native and graduate of West Virginia Wesleyan College in Buckhannon, Stephens has traveled the world working in the fields of youth ministry and professional music, and he is currently serving in a ministry to university students and young people in Sarajevo, Bosnia. Sunday evening's program will include a variety of piano arrangements, stories, sing-alongs, and an update on his work in Bosnia. The church is located at 1009 Maryland Highway. Freewill offerings will be accepted at the performance.

MountainMade To Host Presidents' Weekend Visits

MountainMade.com will host a variety of special events in Thomas, W.Va., during Presidents' weekend, beginning with a doll-making demonstration on Friday, Feb. 13. Frances Hall, one of the premier doll-makers in West Virginia, will demonstrate the processes involved in the creation of her bright, whimsical dolls. In addition to MountainMade, her work is featured at Tamarack and other West Virginia galleries and at shops in Arizona and Virginia. Her dolls are part of collections throughout the United States, Ireland, and Australia. Hall will be demonstrating from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the MountainMade Country Store along Front Street in Thomas.

Chef Mary Beth Gwyer will provide samples of specialty foods prepared by the Five Forks Market in Thomas on Saturday, Feb. 14. Five Forks specializes in products prepared with West Virginia farm-raised trout and other fish such as Arctic char. Product samples, which will include smoked trout chowder, trout artichoke dip, and smoked trout pate, will be available throughout the day at the Country Store.

Donna Cunningham of Appalachian Milk Soap in Parsons will also demonstrate her products at the Country Store on Saturday. She uses goats' milk for its non-allergenic and emollient properties to make her cream soaps, which are available in a variety of scents. She will be on hand throughout the day to demonstrate her handmade soaps and discuss this traditional craft.

Linda Xander of Candies by Linda in Buckhannon will demonstrate and explain the processes used in making her chocolate confections on Monday, Feb. 16. Truffles and seasonal chocolates are among her specialties. Xander will be at the Country Store from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. that day.

MountainMade staff also will be available throughout the weekend at both the Country Store and the MountainMade Gallery in Thomas to assist customers in creating a custom Valentine gift basket from a wide selection of West Virginia fine art and craft.

MountainMade.com is a program of the MountainMade Foundation, a non-profit organization designed to assist West Virginia artists with marketing and business education opportunities. For more information on Presidents' weekend events or other MountainMade programs, persons may call 304-463-3355 or, toll free, 1-877-686-6233.

Earns President's List Recognition

Garrett County resident Brianna Thayer has been named to the Columbus (Ohio) College of Art and Design (CCAD) president's list for the fall 2003 term. President's list recognition is given to students who earn a grade-point average of 3.4-4.0 while carrying a minimum of 15 credit hours.

A 2000 graduate of Southern High School, Thayer is in her senior year at CCAD, where she is majoring in illustration. She is the daughter of Colleen Mouyard and Jeremy Thayer of the Oakland area.

OTT Announces Cast List For The Spitfire Grill

Directors Jane Avery and Josh Elmlinger have announced the cast for Our Town Theatre's musical The Spitfire Grill, which is tentatively scheduled for March 22-28.

The cast members of the show are Connie Reams, Patty Brenneman, Liz Rees Gilbert, Tom Peterson, John Armstrong, and Carole Peracchio.

Ben Sincell is the scenery/lighting designer, and Erin Peacock is the stage manager.

Written by James Valcq and Fred Alley, The Spitfire Grill is about a parolee named Percy, who finds a job at a small-town diner, which has been for sale for several years, Avery said. Percy suggests to Hannah, the owner of the grill, that it be raffled off. Entry fees are $100, and the writer of the best essay on why he or she wants the grill wins.

This show is produced by special permission from Samuel French Incorporated and is sponsored in part by the Garrett County Arts Council and the Maryland State Arts Council. The theatre will start taking requests for reservations for The Spitfire Grill on March 1.

New Medicines For Bipolar Disorder

An estimated 2.5 million Americans have been diagnosed with bipolar disorder. This condition also is known as manic-depressive illness. Bipolar disorder is characterized by mood swings that at more severe than regular mood changes. These tend to alternate between intense elation or excitement and depression or despair. It is believed to be hereditary. Although bipolar disorder affects both sexes equally, women with the condition tend to have more depression while men report more frequent manic episodes. Although sometimes enjoyable, mania can lead to delusional thinking and dangerous risk-taking behavior.

The mainstay of treatment for bipolar disorder is lithium, which reduces the tendency toward mood swings in about 70% of persons affected. Antipsychotic drugs including olanzapine have been used successfully for those who need something more than lithium. Several new drugs have been recently approved by the government for use with bipolar disorder. Symbyax was recently approved for difficult-to-treat bipolar depression. This new drug is a combination of the two popular drugs olanzapine and fluoxetine. Risperidone is an antipsychotic that has a new indication for treating either manic or depressive episodes.

Romance in D is produced by special arrangement with Dramatist Play Service, Inc., and is funded in part by the Garrett County Arts Council and the Maryland State Arts Council.

For this play we offer a romantic DINNER THEATRE opportunity for 20 people (each show) on Feb. 12, 13, 19, 20, 21. Dinner and a show for $25 (or just the show for $5.00—please specify which).

GLAF 2004 SEASON SPONSOR NAMED – Coldwell Banker Deep Creek Realty will be one of the 2004 season sponsors for Garrett Lakes Arts Festival (GLAF). Scott Johnson and Ruth Seib, co-owners of Coldwell Banker Deep Creek Realty, are pictured above giving a $5,000 donation to Debra Ignat, GLAF administrative assistant, on the left. Other season sponsors include Deep Creek Mountain Resort and the Sprenger-Lang Foundation. The 2004 season will begin April 2 with the performance of Grand Dérangement. For further information regarding GLAF's performing arts and arts education offerings or information about making a tax-deductible contribution to the non-profit organization, persons are asked to call the GLAF office at 301-387-3082 Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Complete information is also available on the GLAF web site at www.artsandentertainment.org.

LEUCK'S PHOTOGRAPHY ON DISPLAY — The Garrett County Arts Council is currently displaying photographs by Deep Creek Lake photographer Roger Lueck at the Visitors Center in McHenry. Lueck's exhibit includes familiar Garrett County scenes as well as images captured abroad. "I have been very fortunate in my life to have traveled quite a bit," said the photographer. "On my travels I find myself constantly amazed at the contrast in other places and cultures as well as the sameness. My photos are an attempt to capture moments in life." The Garrett County Arts Council maintains rotating displays of art and photography at the Visitors Center as a public service. In these photographs, Lueck depicts the visual rhythms suggested by mountain railroad tracks and seaside waves. Additional information on Lueck's exhibit at the Visitors Center is available by calling 301-334-6580.

YOUNG WRITER PUBLISHED – Taryn Brenneman was recently chosen as a winner for a story she wrote titled "The Roll Away Pie," which is included in a publication by the Anthology of Short Stories & Poetry Inc. Taryn, who competed against other third grade students from the United States, was notified the summer of 2003 that her story was chosen, and the book was published and released in January of this year. According to a spokesperson, the Anthology of Short Stories & Poetry Inc. has one goal: to foster the development of creative expression in young people. Taryn is pictured above with her third grade teacher, Sharon Ashby, along with the anthology and a certificate noting the young writer's accomplishment. A fourth grader at Rt. 40 Elementary School, the student enjoys writing, snowboarding, basketball, and softball. She is the daughter of Terry and Debbie Brenneman.

EDUCATION COMMITTEE TO ASSIST GLAF – An education committee has been established to assist Garrett Lakes Arts Festival (GLAF) in bringing arts education to Garrett County. The mission of the committee is to support GLAF's specific goal of educational enrichment of children through exposure to the arts. This is accomplished through performances and seminars in the schools, workshops, and camps during the summer as well as through specific opportunities to showcase individual talent. Members of the committee are Mary Callis, chairperson (and GLAF board member); Lynn Bell, director of secondary education, Garrett County Board of Education; Don Forrester, director of elementary education, Garrett County Board of Education; Susan Savopoulos, representative of the Mountain Top Homeschool Association; Laura and Mark Stutzman, coordinators of the GLAF Summer Workshops and instructors for the Young Artists' Workshop; Mary Underwood, administrator and instructor of the Dance Arts Camp of Maryland; and Lucinda Williams, vice president of Artistic, Education and Community Programming of the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra (and GLAF board member). Pictured above, from the left, are Wayne Johnson (GLAF chair), Bell, Forrester, Underwood, Callis, Beth Johnson (GLAF executive director), and Savopoulos.

Lakers Succumb To AC Rally, Crush Germantown, Takoma

Despite winning two of three games this past week, the loss was a tough one for the members of the Garrett College men's basketball team, coaching staff, and fans, as the Lakers let a 16-point lead over nationally ranked Allegany College of Maryland slip away into a 60-54 defeat Friday evening in Cumberland.

The Lakers quickly regrouped, however, and went on to record a 72-50 trouncing of home-standing Montgomery-Germantown on Saturday and an 89-55 whipping of visiting Montgomery-Takoma Park on Monday.

The results left the Lakers with an overall record of 17-2, which they will put on the line this evening against Dundalk CC.

The win by Allegany over the Lakers on Friday avenged a 55-52 overtime victory by Garrett over the Trojans in last year's Region XX championship game. Allegany holds the longest winning streak in the nation right now (18) and is currently ranked fifth with a overall record of 20-1.

The Lakers were on fire in the early minutes of the game, hitting their first four shots and jumping out to a 10-5 lead. They were 7-for-9 a few minutes later, giving them a 19-11 advantage with 14:40 left in the first half.

The Trojans scored the next six points to cut Garrett's lead to 19-17, but the Lakers responded with a 14-0 run to give them their 16-point advantage at 33-17.

However, a three-point shot by Adam Morgan at the 7:57 mark would be the last Laker bucket of the first half.

The Trojans then scored the final 12 points of the half to cut the Laker lead to 33-29 by intermission.

Allegany maintained the momentum in the opening minutes of the second half, recording 11 unanswered points to take a 40-33 lead.

The Lakers battled back to cut Allegany's lead to one, 50-49, with 7:15 to play, after two long-rang buckets and a lay-up by Akeem Scott, but that would be as close as they could get.

Scott finished with 14 points and Darren Stackhouse netted 13 to pace the Lakers' scoring. James Jones was scoreless, but pulled down a team-high five rebounds.

Dwayne Shackleford finished with a game-high 17 points to lead the Trojans, while Sterling Ledbetter netted 14 and Mike Castro scored 11, all in the second half. Castro also grabbed 11 rebounds and blocked three shots.

The game was originally supposed to have been played December 6, but it was postponed at that time by Allegany coach Bob Kirk. It was reported at the time that the postponement was because some of Allegany's starters were sick with the flu.

The only comment made by Laker coach Dennis Gibson following the game was, "This game should have been played on Dec. 6, and that's all I'm going to say."

Stackhouse led the Lakers in scoring against Montgomery-Germantown on Saturday, finishing with 17 points, while Morgan hit 13 and Jon Mann chipped in with 10.

Stackhouse also dominated the boards with 15 rebounds, and Morgan blocked six shots.

The Lakers started slowly against their hosts, and trailed by as many as eight points midway through the first half. Stackhouse and Pat Carwile then keyed a run that put the Lakers up by eight, 26-18, by halftime.

Garrett dominated the second half, outscoring Germantown by a 46-32 margin to record the 22-point win.

Curtis Crews had a game-high 22 points for Germantown, and also led his team in rebounding with 12.

Lavonti Jeter had his best game in a Laker uniform in Tuesday's easy win over Montgomery-Takoma Park, as he scored 21 points and grabbed nine rebounds.

The Lakers seized control of the contest early and never looked back. They held a comfortable 41-20 lead at intermission.

Jeter was one of five Lakers who finished in double figures, as Morgan scored 14 points, Stackhouse had a double-double with 12 points and 12 rebounds, Antonio Alston followed suit with 10 points and 10 rebounds, and Darvus Gray netted 10 points.

Just missing double figures was Jon Mann, who recorded nine points and nine rebounds.

The Laker defense was unable to contain Takoma Park's Ronald Jackson, who ripped the nets for 37 points. Anthony King scored 11.

The Lakers will be busy for the next several days as they make up several contests that had to be postponed because of weather.

After tonight's contest at Dundalk, they are slated to host a tough Hagerstown squad on Friday, travel to Essex on Saturday, host Catonsville next Monday, and play at Baltimore next Thursday.

Friday's game with the Hawks will tip off at 7 p.m., while Monday's home game vs. Catonsville will begin at 5:30.

Lakers Cruise Past Baltimore, Cecil, Harford; To Host Howard

With blazing speed, the Garrett College women's basketball team rolled its record up to 14-2 this week with wins over a tough Baltimore City squad, Cecil, and Harford. The Lakers burned down their McHenry house Saturday in an 83-51 rout of arch-rival Baltimore, followed with an 88-71 win Sunday at Cecil, and turned last night's homecourt make-up game into a 111-57 runaway win over visiting Harford.

Another big showdown looms ahead tomorrow night, when the Lakers host Howard, the top squad in the JUCO. As of Monday, Howard stood atop the circuit with a 9-0 conference record and 13-3 overall mark.

"All ten women on our roster are starting-quality players," Lakers skipper Steve Willison commented of his stellar unit. "I honestly think if we were to lose three starters, we'd probably have the same record. Everybody on the team has a special talent, and we feel we haven't even tapped our full potential yet. We've only seen the tip of the iceberg."

That depth was in full evidence over the weekend, as five players hit for double figures Saturday, six Sunday, and eight last night.

Saturday's Baltimore City game began in a way befitting a battle between two top squads, as the combatants fought to a 20-all deadlock over the first seven minutes. The Lakers turned on the jets from there by going on an 18-8 run over the rest of the first half en route to a 38-28 halftime lead. Garrett exploded for a 45-23 run over the second half on the way to its 32-point win.

Baltimore lost three players to foul trouble over the second stanza, underscoring Willison's post-game analysis: "Our depth has just been wearing other teams down over second half play so far this year. If we can play a game like we did against Baltimore, we can step up and meet whatever the competition brings our way."

GC guard Jenna Bradford paced all scorers with 14 points, while teammate Tamika Duck netted 13 points and hauled in a dozen rebounds. Autumn Beavers also had 13 points, Denae Kennedy added 12, and Tiffany McFarland contributed 10. LaSha Anderson added six rebounds, four assists and two steals, Ashley Liller had six rebounds, four steals, and three assists, and Lovarsha Knox pulled down 11 rebounds.

Baltimore City was led by Tamika Noel and Shirley Tingley with nine points apiece. Noel and two other Red Devils had fouled out by game's end.

Although the Lakers defeated Cecil rather handily the following day, they had a tough time with the Hawks. The first half was a pitched battle that ended with Garrett up by seven, 38-31. GC went on a 50-40 run over the second half on the way to its 17-point victory.

Anderson and Knox shared Laker-high scoring honors with 16 points apiece, while Kennedy and Bradford each tallied 14. Liller netted 12 points, and Duck had 10. Kennedy also handed out six assists while grabbing two rebounds and three steals. Knox snagged 12 rebounds and Duck had seven.

Cecil's Sharanda Johnson led all scorers with 17 points.

The Lakers' wrecking ball started swinging early and hard against hapless Harford last night, as Garrett rolled up a 52-27 halftime lead on the way to a 54-point win. The contest was punctuated with long-range artillery on both sides, as the squads combined for an unheard-of tally of 17 successful three-point salvos.

Once again, Garrett's balance was in full evidence as eight Lakers hit for double figures. Interestingly, despite a 111-point tally, the squad did not have the game-high scorer for the second straight game. GC's deep roster chalked up these point productions: Anderson, 19; Liller 16; Bradford, 14; Kennedy and McFarland, 12 each; and Crowder, Knox, and Duck, 10 apiece. Anderson had a trio of three-pointers, Liller and Crowder had two each, and Kennedy had a solo three-point bucket. The Lakers hit 49 field goals to Harford's 18.

Harford's DuCroz netted 21 points (including five treys) in the losing effort.

"We've really been able to capitalize on our strengths so far this year," Willison observed. "We have four guards—Denea, Ashley, Jenna, and LaTonya—who are as fast as anyone in the league. Beyond their speed they each have great court sense, and just like all our unit, are very unselfish team players who are always looking for an open teammate to pass to as they push the ball up the floor."

The Lakers host Howard in a 6 p.m. match-up tomor-

NHS Girls Downed By Alco, Edged By Beall, Fall To BW

The Northern High School girls' basketball team dropped a Saturday homecourt contest to Allegany 47-36, then nearly pulled off a huge upset of visiting Beall Monday in a 45-41 loss to the visiting WMIL powerhouse. Last night the Huskies were hammered by Bishop Walsh 51-33 in Cumberland. NHS's record fell to 3-12 with the trio of defeats.

Throughout the first quarter of Saturday's contest with Alco, the Huskies were hot on the Campers' heels and were down by a slim 13-9 margin at the stanza's end. Allegany widened the gap to 30-19 by the halftime intermission, but NHS roared back with a 12-6 run over the third period to cut the margin to five at 36-21. The Allegany guests put the Huskies' fire out in the final quarter by outscoring Northern 11-5.

NHS senior guard Lyndsi Butler paced the Huskies with 15 points on five field goals, including one from three-point range, and a perfect 4-for-4 tally from the free-throw line. Alco's Erin Wilson scored 19 points, while teammate Casey Wilson added 18. The pair also combined for 14 steals for the Campers' (7-6) aggressive defense.

Northern dropped the junior varsity contest 37-22, as Alco's Leslie Crosten scored 17 points and NHS's Jessie Fratz scored 8.

The Huskies held their own in Monday's match-up with powerful Beall, and came very close to mounting what would have been the league's upset of the year.

The game got under way as one would have expected, as the Mounties put together twice the points their hosts did over a 14-7 first quarter. Northern rallied over the second stanza to cut the margin to three at the half, 22-19, and the Huskies continued playing aggressive basketball over the third quarter as they grabbed the lead 33-31. Beall rallied with a 14-8 run over the final eight minutes to take the game by four points. Northern was hampered by foul trouble in the stretch, as two Huskies fouled out.

Butler took game-high scoring honors with 20 points, a tally that included a pair of three-pointers and an 8-for-10 performance from the charity stripe. The senior also snagged seven rebounds and five steals, while Sarah Stewart hauled down a dozen rebounds. Amy Williams scored 18 points to lead Beall (10-5).

Last night's contest at Bishop Walsh got off to a 13-9 first-quarter start, with the host Spartans in the lead. BW increased the margin to 23-12 at the half, but a strong Northern rally over the third stanza cut the Huskies' deficit to nine, 32-23, as the fourth quarter opened.

Butler netted 17 points for NHS, including one bucket from three-point range. Stewart had a big game under the basket, grabbing eight rebounds and blocking five shots, and Miller snagged seven rebounds. Quinn Coulehan paced BW with 15 points and a dozen boards.

Northern's junior varsity dropped a hard-fought 34-27 contest despite a game-high 12 points tallied by Keri Bachtel. Kara Miller and Raleigh Loffert had 10 each for Bishop Walsh.

The Huskies host Salisbury tonight and Bishop Walsh Monday, with jayvee contests starting at 6 p.m. and the varsity showdowns tipping off at 7:30 p.m.

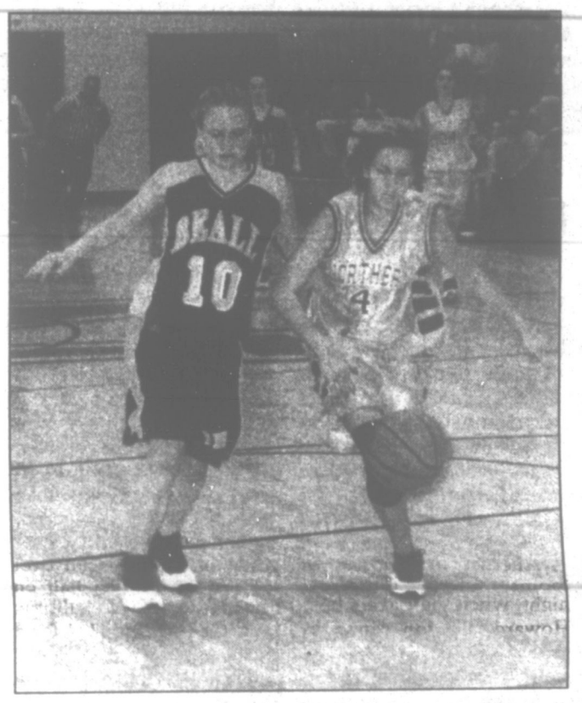
HUSKIES GIVE BEALL A BIG SCARE – The severely undermanned Northern High School girls' basketball squad played one of its best games of the year Monday night at the Cove against powerful Beall. Just two baskets separated the two squads as the Mounties edged the Huskies, 45-41. NHS junior Megan Shaffer (#12) is pictured making her move down the lane as center Lakin Weimer (#14) prepares to stonewall two Beall defenders with a pick. Sophomore Amy Shaffer (#4) is shown below in a fast-break footrace with a Mountie opponent as she heads in for a lay-up. The Huskies host Salisbury tonight in a 6 p.m. junior varsity game, and a 7:30 p.m. varsity match-up.



SHS Blasts Beall Last Night As Stemple Gets Win #400

Revenge was doubly sweet for the Southern High School girls' varsity basketball squad last night, as the Rams not only took a huge 24-point win over WMIL arch-rival Beall in payback for an earlier loss this season, they also notched career victory #400 for longtime SHS coach Don Stemple. The Ram guru's total career mark of 400-194 is a combination of a 327-147 record over 21 seasons as the girls' coach, and 73-47 in five earlier seasons as the boys' coach.

Last night's victory, which came in a week that had the Rams covering over 300 miles in the team bus, boosted their record to 12-4 (5-1 in the WMIL). On Friday SHS crushed Joppatown 74-29, before dropping a 73-63 contest at Hedgesville the following day. Southern stayed a little closer to home later in the week to take a 58-50 win at Allegany Monday, and last night in Cumberland the Rams rolled to a 75-51 win.

Southern started pouring in the points early at Joppatown, and had rolled up a 24-7 advantage after the first eight minutes and a 36-20 lead by the half. A 29-point Ram explosion in the third quarter was answered by just three Joppatown points, and the squads entered the fourth quarter with SHS up by a huge 57-23 margin.

Senior Ram guards Justine Pagenhardt and Robbin Gregg netted 18 points apiece, and classmate Becca Flanagan added 13 from her forward slot. Gregg grabbed eight rebounds and dished out five assists, while Pagenhardt snagged six steals on defense. Amy Towers had 14 points for the hosts.

SHS's junior varsity took a 49-35 victory, as Sarah Stephens paced the Rams with 17 points.

The following day's battle at Hedgesville was a totally different ballgame, as Southern found itself down by five points at the end of the first quarter, 23-18, and by 10 at the half, 40-30. The Rams rebounded with a 16-point third quarter to the hosts' 12 as they pulled to within six, 52-46. A 21-17 Hedgesville run over the final quarter resulted in the final 10-point difference.

Gregg turned in a fine all-around performance in the losing effort of 25 points, including a trio of three-pointers, five assists, and six steals. Flanagan hit for 20 points and hauled down eight rebounds, and Pagenhardt handed out five assists. The Eagles' Samantha Guell paced Hedgesville with 21 points, but the playmaker of the day was teammate Miranda Reed, who recorded a stunning 21 assists.

SHS's jayvee squad dropped a narrow 29-28 contest, despite a 12-point performance by Stephens.

The Rams got an early jump on their Allegany hosts Monday night as Southern took a 14-6 first quarter lead and never relinquished control. At the half SHS was up 25-17, and as the fourth quarter opened the Rams still held an eight-point advantage, 38-30.

Southern senior Sabrina Scheffel paced all scorers with 16 points as she was joined in the double-figure scoring column by teammates Gregg with 15, Pagenhardt with 12, and Flanagan with 11. Gregg's tally included two three-point buckets. Jessica Tichnell and Erin Wilson shared the Campers' scoring lead with 14 points apiece.

SHS was edged in the JV game in a 38-36 defeat. Sarah Cosner scored 13 for the Rams, and Kelsey Smith paced Alco with 16 points.

Flanagan was on fire last night at Beall, as she paced all scorers with 31 points on 13 field goals and a 5 for 8 tally from the charity stripe. The senior's fireworks helped Southern answer a 59-56 homecourt loss to the Mounties last month that ended the Rams' record-setting 36-game WMIL win streak.

The league showdown was all it was cooked up to be through the first quarter, which ended with Southern up by a slim 18-14 margin. The Rams began hitting their stride in the second stanza, racing out to a 34-25 halftime advantage and 52-35 lead as the fourth quarter opened.

Pagenhardt added 19 points, including a pair of three-pointers, to Flanagan's

Rams Win Thrillers Over Williamsport And Keyser

The varsity boys' team of Southern High School was able to squeeze in two games this past week, despite many missed days of school and game postponements because of severe weather conditions, and both of those encounters resulted in exciting victories.

The first was a big 50-47 defeat of visiting Williamsport on Saturday, and the second was a 35-33 win over Keyser last night, also in Oakland.

Saturday's win avenged an embarrassing 70-48 defeat by the Wildcats in December, and the game with Keyser was as exciting as the first meeting between the two schools last month, which was won by the Rams in overtime.

The score remained close from the opening tip-off against Williamsport, with the Rams trailing by three, 14-11, at the end of the first quarter, down by one at halftime, 26-25, and on top by one, 37-36, after three quarters were completed.

The Rams were ahead 47-45 with less than a minute to play. Cory Bosley then went to the line and hit both of his free throws to give Southern a 49-45 advantage.

Williamsport's Will Roney answered with two foul shots with 24 seconds remaining to cut the Rams' lead to two.

Andrew VanBogelen gave the Rams a three-point edge by hitting one of two free-throw opportunities with less than 10 seconds to play.

Williamsport went for a tie with a three-point shot at the buzzer, but it was no good.

Corey Tressler and VanBogelen were the scoring leaders for the Rams, finishing with 15 and 14 points, respectively, while teammate Evan Lantz had perhaps his best rebounding efforts in his career. Lantz grabbed a game-high nine rebounds.

Bosley dished out eight assists.

Leading Williamsport offensively was Roney, who scored 13 points. Ben Jordan also reached double figures with 11.

The loss evened the Wildcats' overall record at 7-7. It was their fourth straight loss.

The Southern junior varsity was also victorious in the preliminary game, 47-33, behind a 16-point performance by Bret DeWitt. Tyler Beard paced the jayvee Wildcats with 11 points.

After building what seemed to be a comfortable lead in last night's defensive battle with Keyser, the Ram varsity had to hang on for dear life in the fourth quarter to secure the two-point win.

The Golden Tornados held an 8-6 advantage at the end of the first quarter, but the Rams caught fire in the second stanza, scoring 18 of 24 points in the period, giving them a 24-14 halftime lead.

The margin was nine points, 38-24, at the end of the third quarter, but Keyser seized the momentum in the final period, outscoring the Rams by a 9-2 margin. Corey Tressler scored a pair of free throws with just 1:01 left in the game to account for the Rams' entire fourth-quarter scoring.

A Keyser basket by Brian Wilson with 42 seconds left cut the Rams' lead to 35-33. On the ensuing possession, the Rams ran the clock down to 14 seconds before Keyser fouled.

After missing the front end of a one-and-one, Keyser got the rebound, drove the length of the court, and was able to get three shots off before the buzzer sounded, but none of the three fell through.

Tressler, who finished with a game-high 18 points, scored 16 of his points in the first half to spark the Rams' second-quarter surge. His final two points were the crucial two free throws that gave the Rams what would be their margin of victory.

Tressler also grabbed eight rebounds. Cory Bosley finished with seven points and Evan Lantz pulled down seven rebounds.

Pacing the Golden Tornados (7-7) were Wilson and Matt Altobello with 12 points apiece.

The Southern junior varsity was edged in the first game, 33-30.

The varsity Rams, who have won their last four games, were scheduled to host Beall on Tuesday, but that contest was postponed until Feb. 21. They are slated to play at Tucker County this Friday and travel to Petersburg next Tuesday.

A HEAD-ON COLLISION was captured on film last night by staff photographer John McEwen, as Southern High School's Corey Tressler went airborne toward the hoop and right overtop (through?) a Keyser defender. The Rams held a comfortable lead after three quarters of play, but had to hold on for a 35-33 victory. Tressler, who finished with a game-high 18 points and eight rebounds, scored the only Ram points of the fourth quarter, a pair of free throws which meant the difference in the score. Also in the photo above is Southern's Evan Lantz (#32), who had seven rebounds. It was the fourth win in a row for the Rams, who upped their overall record to 9-7.

Oakland BB Lea. Results Noted

The Oakland Basketball League has reported the results of its action over the past weekend.

M Acres Boys followed Mike Fazenbaker's 23 points to an 82-47 win over Mettiki. Tobi Stoner added 20 for the victors, while Aaron Newcomb netted 19 for Mettiki.

Westvaco rolled over Quality Machine by an 80-46 tally, as Jimmy Reel recorded 19 points and Bill Braithwaite contributed 17 points. Quality Machine's Mike Harvey had 15 points.

Markwood Citgo tossed Fox's Pizza, 77-47, behind 17 points from Chris Ewing and a 16-point tally by Rick Selders. Doug Copeland had 23 points for the doughmen.

Oakland Basketball League match-ups scheduled for this Sunday will feature M Acres Boys vs. Quality Machine at 6 p.m., Markwood Citgo vs. Westvaco at 7 p.m., and Fox's Pizza vs. Mettiki in the 8 p.m. nightcap.

scoring flurry, and Gregg hit for 18 points. Southern's stifling defense held the Mounties to just one double-figure tally, 19 points by Kacey Kahl.

The Rams' JV also cruised to an easy win, as Stephens netted 17 points in a 42-29 victory. The Mounties' Chelsea Raley finished with eight points.

The Rams have a one-week layoff until Wednesday, when they visit Petersburg. The outing is another opportunity to atone for an earlier loss, as the Vikings downed Southern by 27 points on the Rams' home court in December. Petersburg also handed SHS two defeats last season.

Northern Boys Defeated By Allegany; SHS Game Moved

The Northern High School boys' varsity basketball squad fell to a powerful Allegany offense Saturday, 93-64, in the Huskies only outing of the week. (A Friday night contest at Southern was postponed and moved the Thursday, Feb. 12.) NHS's record is currently 6-9.

Northern held its own with the top-ranked Campers over the course of the first half Saturday, as the first two quarters ended with the Huskies down by fairly slim seven-point margins. Alco had gone up 27-20 after the first stanza, and 43-36 at the half, before running away over the third quarter with a 24-9 run. Going into the final eight minutes NHS was down by a 67-45 tally, and was outscored 26-19 over the fourth quarter.

Northern senior guard Jason Rice hit for a team-high 21 points, including four three-point buckets, while sophomores Brent Beachy and Chris Speicher tallied 18 and 12 points, respectively. The trio's combined 51 points was less than the 60 scored by Alco's Donavin Vinson and Ian Grady, who scored a respective 34 and 26 points, while Vinson snagged 14 rebounds.

Northern fell in the junior varsity contest by a 55-33 score. Tyler Southerly netted 10 points for NHS, while the Campers' Bryan Hansel led all scorers with 22.

The Huskies' published schedule shows a home-court battle with Salisbury tonight, followed by road trips to Union tomorrow and Fort Hill Tuesday.

Mt. Top B-Ball Results Noted

The Mt. Top Basketball League had three contests over the weekend, while a fourth was declared a forfeit.

In the opening game, Smiley's downed Plaza Hobby 70-63, as Rashaun Copeland poured in a day-high 27 points, and teammates Jon Price and Mike Harvey added 17 and 12 points, respectively. Plaza Hobby's Mike Fazenbaker had 24 points, and Brett Rice contributed 17.

Copeland's held on to second place by taking an 86-63 win over Scott Ford with a balanced offensive showing that placed five players in double figures. The victors' Jason Shreve netted 19 points, Jason Shank had 18, Bryson Paugh tallied 17, Tristan Largent had 15, and Doug Copeland and Ricky Reams recorded 10 apiece. Scott Ford's Nathan Haskiell scored 23 points, Brandon Rohrbaugh had 15, and Shaun Myers, 14.

Mt. Top Paving steamrolled Midas in an 85-51 win. No individual statistics were available for that contest.

ConDoerr took the day's forfeit win over First United.

The Mt. Top League's slate for this Sunday, Feb. 8, is: Smiley's vs. ConDoerr, 1 p.m.; Plaza Hobby vs. Copeland's, 2 p.m.; Midas vs. Scott Ford, 3 p.m.; and First United vs. Mt. Top Paving, 4 p.m. Respective scorekeepers are Plaza Hobby, Smiley's, Copeland's, and Scott Ford.

Ram Freshmen Whip Fort Hill

A 26-point performance by Erik Cussins led the Southern High School freshman boys' team to a convincing 56-33 victory over visiting Fort Hill on Monday.

It was the seventh win in nine starts for the Rams, who are coached by Jon Hegeman.

Sean McCreery finished with nine points for the Rams, while Brandon Roberson and Nick Hillen led the Southern defensive effort.

"Erik had a dominating game," Coach Hegeman said. "He has improved so much from the start of the year because he listens and works hard every day in practice."

Pacing the Sentinels (1-9) were Ryan Shewbridge and Zach Blank with 11 and 10 points, respectively.

The Rams are scheduled to entertain Beall this Saturday in a 2 p.m. game and host Petersburg next Thursday in a 7:30 p.m. contest.

Beall has lost only one game in 10 starts, that being a 45-42 defeat by Southern back on January 21. Cussins, McCreery, and Mike Edwards scored 13, 12, and 11 points, respectively, for the Rams in that contest.

Ram Grapplers End Beall Reign, Whip Huskies Again

It was a huge night on the wrestling mats at Cumberland's Fort Hill High School last night for the Southern High School Rams, who crushed previously undefeated Beall, 41-18, and flattened county rival Northern for the second time this season, 60-18.

The victories upped the Rams' overall record to 11-1.

Northern also wrestled host Fort Hill and was defeated, 42-28, while Beall topped Fort Hill, 42-12.

The Beall Mountaineers came into the match against Southern having won their last 24 regular-season matches, their last defeat being two years ago. They finished last season with a 14-0 mark and were 10-0 so far this season.

Rams earning pins against Beall were: Jeffrey Gregory in the 140-pound division, Scott Wildesen in the 152-pound clash, and Dan Goulart in the heavyweight class.

Freshman Daniel Carr had a huge night for the Rams, gaining a 8-5 decision over previously undefeated Travis Dixon in the 125-pound division.

Other Rams winning on points were: Josh Armstrong in the 103-pound division, Nathan Sines at 135 pounds, Jeremy Greogry at 145 pounds, Jason Weeks in the 171-pound division, Chris Bennett at 189 pounds (technical fall), and Justin Fitzwater in the 215-pound encounter.

The only Mountaineer pin was by Chris Lewis (130).

In the Ram victory over Northern, Southern pins were recorded by Justin Ratliff in the 119-pound division, Carr (125), Sines (135), Jeffrey Gregory (140), Jeremy Gregory (145), Wildesen (160), Weeks (171), and Goulart (275).

Gaining a technical fall win was Armstrong (103), while decisions were earned by Chris Tepper (152) and Bennett (189).

Recording victories for the Huskies were undefeated Casey Kamp in the 112-pound division, Eric Garlitz at 130 pounds, and Shane Snider in the 215-pound class, all via pins.

In Northern's match against Fort Hill, Huskies garnering pinfall victories were Jake Clark at 125 pounds and Brandon Opel in the 171-pound clash.

Kamp (103) and Brock Glotfelty (189) both recorded technical falls, while Garlitz (130) and Mike Moyer (135) were decision victors.

Fort Hill pins were recorded by Justin Nichols (112), Zach Huffman (119), YOUNGEST BEDFORD TOURNEY CHAMP — Northern High School's Casey Kamp earned the distinction of being the youngest champion ever in the highly competitive Thomas Chevrolet Wrestling Tournament, held recently in Bedford, Pa. Kamp, a freshman, recorded a major decision, 10-2, over Bedford freshman Jake Kendall in the championship round of the 103-pound division. Kamp earned a spot in the title round by pinning Philip Studley of Northern Bedford, pinning Kollin Bordner of Tri-Valley, and recording a 6-0 decision over Mike Boyer of North Star. Kamp's teammate, Brock Glotfelty, also a freshman, finished a respectable fourth place in the 189-pound division, winning one match via a technical fall and two more by decisions before being edged in the consolation round by Matt Stay of Beth-Center, 3-2. As a team, the Huskies amassed 71.5 points to place 17th. Photo courtesy of Del Carpenter.

A NICE CATCH this past week by Kristi Albright, Friedens, Pa., was this chain pickerel, weighing 2 pounds, 14 ounces, and measuring 23½ inches in length. Kristi entered the fish in the annual Garrett County Ice Fishing Contest, and earned a certificate for the biggest catch of the week for that species. Other weekly winners were Mike Riley, Olney, with a 1-pound, 12-ounce, 14.25-inch walleye, and Harry Riggleman, Cumberland, with a 1-pound, 12-ounce, 14-inch yellow perch. Weekly winners receive a certificate, and plaques are awarded for the ice fishing season's largest catches of bluegill, brown trout, chain pickerel, crappies, largemouth and smallmouth bass, northern pike, rainbow trout, walleye, and perch. To enter the contest, anglers must register their catch at Deep Creek Outfitters, Deep Creek Drive, McHenry. Contest fish must have been caught in Garrett County waters.

Southern Rescue Team Will Host Harlem Rockets

The Harlem Rockets, a team of talented, well-known players who excel in comedy basketball, will make a special appearance in Oakland next Monday, Feb. 9, where they will be challenged by a team called the 911 Outlaws, representing the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad. All proceeds from the game, slated to tip off in the Southern High School gymnasium at 7 p.m., will go to the squad.

The Harlem Rockets were formed in 1993 by Brig. General George Mitchell, who had worked for the Harlem Magicians for several years. Since their formation, the Rockets have amassed an unbelievable, undefeated record of approximately 1,600-0. The team, which has played coast to coast and on two overseas tours, is expected to play a record 175 games this year.

The Rockets have appeared on ABC television's "Good Morning, America," and have been featured several times on NESN-TV, as well as on a number of other TV and radio sports shows.

The present team consists of: Kevin "Showboat" Jackson, 7'1" Ricky "Rim Rocker" Lopes, Johnny "Magic" Dadzie, Donnie "Razzmatazz" Seale, Brenden "Grasshopper" Floyd, and Dwayne "Swoopes" Simpson. Most of the Rockets were Division I standouts and have played in various professional programs.

The Rockets are famous for their inclusion of the audience in their performance, and will call 20 to 30 children from the stands to participate in halftime fun. The children will test their basketball skills until there are two finalists, a boy and a girl, who will receive prizes for their efforts.

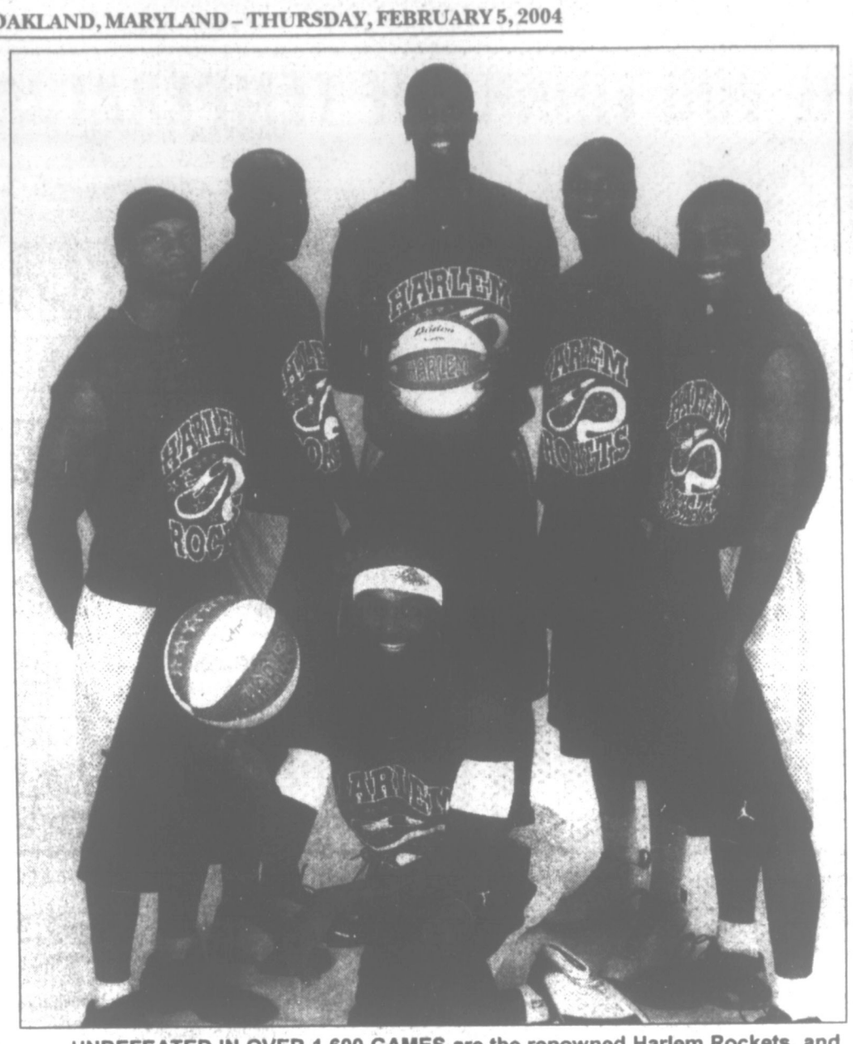
Advance tickets for the game, which cost $7 each, are available at Marvin's Men's Wear and Get 'N' Go in Oakland, and at Arrowhead Market, Deep Creek Lake. Tickets will cost $8 at the door.



UNDEFEATED IN OVER 1,600 GAMES are the renowned Harlem Rockets, and a local team of hoopsters will attempt to give the Rockets their first defeat (right!) on Monday evening at Southern High School. The Rockets and the 911 Outlaws will face each other in a 7 p.m. benefit game, the proceeds of which will go to the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad. The Rockets, who are known for involving the audience in their comedic antics on the basketball court, have performed throughout the United States and in many foreign countries. Pictured are: Johnny "Magic" Dadzie, front, and standing, from left: Donnie "Razzmatazz" Seale, Kevin "Showboat" Johnson, Ricky "7 Footer" Lopes, Dwayne "Swoop" Simpson, and Alex "Skywalker" Howard. would not annex any another property. "They didn't want to involve any other residents," he said.

Mountain Lake Park officials have also wanted to annex the two schools, as well as Yough Glades Elementary School and other residential areas west of the town. Southern Middle and Broad Ford Elementary schools are already within Mtn. Lake Park town limits.

"Our interest is in protecting the borders of our town," said Don Sincell, Mtn. Lake Park town council member. "It would be great if both towns butted up against each other so there wouldn't be any 'no-man's land.'"

Holliday was also concerned that the county would lose revenue if either town annexed Southern High and Dennett Road Elementary schools.

"I know four to six years out, the county tax differential enters into the picture," he said. "It's a negative impact on the county's budget because of the tax offset. It increases the assessed value of county property in the towns, which decreases the amount of county revenue."

Oakland officials have pointed out to the Board of Education and commissioners that they would save money if Oakland were to annex the schools. The BOE currently pays out-of-town rates to Oakland for Southern High's water and wastewater and Dennett Road Elementary's water. The sewer lines to Dennett Road Elementary belong to Mtn. Lake Park Park.

The Board of Education recently approved Oakland's plans to annex the schools. Gregg noted there would be no savings to the BOE if the schools were annexed into Mtn. Lake Park.

Director John Nelson, Garrett County Planning and Zoning, asked if it would be possible for Dennett Road Elementary to be annexed into Mtn. Lake Park and Southern High be annexed into Oakland. The Board of Education wants the schools to be contiguous if they are annexed, noted Gregg.

As part of its annexation plan, Mtn. Lake Park had also asked the commissioners for a zoning waiver last October. The board of commissioners denied the waiver because that town's zoning categories were not consistent with the county's.

Following the denial, Mtn. Lake Park officials withdrew their waiver request, but continued working on their zoning options, said Sincell.

Mtn. Lake Park officials will hold a public hearing on amending the town's zoning plan to provide for additional zoning classifications. The event will be held Tuesday, Feb. 24, at 6 p.m. at the town hall. If the amendments are approved, Mtn. Lake Park's zoning plan will be consistent with the county's. That town would not need a zoning waiver from the commissioners, and could then more easily annex the proposed areas.

LOST IN TRANSLATION

Rated R - Running Time: 1:45 - Released 10/3/03

In the world of the performing arts, there are some whose genius lies more in the creation than the delivery. For instance, neither Bob Dylan nor Carole King are very good singers, but they are well-known as two of the greatest songwriters in pop history. Perhaps the same disparity exists in Sofia Coppola, the daughter of legendary director Francis Ford Coppola, whose acting was one of the main liabilities of his The Godfather Part III. But whatever Ms. Coppola may lack in acting ability she more than makes up for in writing/directing talent. After her well-received 1999 directing debut The Virgin Suicides, she truly comes into her own with Lost In Translation, a thoughtful, touching, sad but somehow uplifting movie which gets to the heart of the American sense of pampered discontentment, of all the lonely people not wanting for anything but still wanting something, unfulfilled and frustrated, desperate for some meaning that can't be named. How could a 32-year old Hollywood heiress write so eloquently on this subject?

Set entirely in Japan, Lost In Translation tells the story of a pair of out-of-place Americans (Bill Murray, Scarlett Johansson) who find each other and make their week, and their lives, bearable, simply by being together. But more than simply the relationship between these two (who both give stunningly beautiful performances), the film shows us the most touching little moments of behavior, the most telling little bits of human nature, and somehow makes us feel as if we are living them ourselves. Coppola's camera floats, rises, sinks, gets to the core of each scene, with angles and movements that do not seem deliberate but rather just flow to the right moment, the right perspective, every time. Word has it the director achieved this style by traveling to Tokyo by herself and taking photographs, and then re-creating these pictures on film within the framework of her story. In addition to this interesting method of cinematic design, she also obviously knows what is needed to draw good performances out of her actors. Murray and Johansson are so comfortable, they are able to read her lines with effortless candor—although there was apparently a good deal of ad-libbed material between the two. As a result of Coppola's technique, and that of cinematographer Lance Accord (Adaptation), we are shown just what we need to see to understand, to feel these people, without any sense of overstatement.

Bob Harris (Murray) is a jaded, aging movie star just beyond his peak years, who is still famous enough to be recognized but not to be asked to do any more movies. Having long since traded his fast-paced Hollywood lifestyle for a wife and family, he's now in his 50's, and while still an attractive man, is reduced to doing commercials for a Japanese whiskey company to pay the bills, working with a director and production crew whose instructions he doesn't understand. When he arrives in Tokyo, he thinks he'll just be there for a few days, but he gets held over when a prestigious Japanese photographer offers to work with him, and his agent lets him know this is not an opportunity to pass up. Soon his stay is extended to a week, and even though his company has paid for his lodgings in the opulent Tokyo Ramada, he feels like a prisoner, suffering from insomnia, wishing to go home and yet ambivalent about his uneventful but comfortable life, where his most important duties include going to his kids' ballet recitals and birthday parties, and deciding what color carpet to put in his new den. Having once been the toast of Hollywood, Bob has finally settled into a weary sense of wistfulness regarding what his life is and could have been.

A few floors up, we have Charlotte (Johansson), a young woman in her 20's with a philosophy degree, who hoped this trip would help her with her conflicted feelings about religion, career, her place in the world, and her 2-year-old marriage. Her husband (Giovanni Ribisi) is a publicity photographer assigned to shoot a Tokyo band, and although he shows perfunctory affection for her, he doesn't seem to mind all the attention he gets from his clients, especially a sexy young American movie star (Anna Faris) who also happens to be in town. When he is called away for a few days to a remote location, Charlotte is stranded in the beautiful, huge high-rise hotel, another prisoner in paradise, with nothing to do but watch Japanese TV and listen to her self-help CD about how to search for one's soul.

So here are these two people, both American foreigners, both wishing they didn't have to be there, both lost not only in the city but in their lives, their professions, their understanding of purpose...and they see in each other what exists in their own souls. At first it's just a smile in the elevator or a few words in the bar, but when they keep running into each other, they strike up a friendship. She invites him to a party she doesn't really want to go to, they have lunch together, they sit up late and talk while watching badly dubbed movies, and what began as a simple friendly acquaintance evolves into a connection more meaningful than either of them could have expected. A kind of love emerges between two people who obviously have no future together; a bond solidifies with both parties knowing it must be broken in just a few days.

This movie doesn't even really have a story, so how can it be so moving, so indescribably profound? Although it follows our two characters around, together and apart, through Buddhist temples, strip bars, and even a bomb threat, it's really not so much about events as a mood, a feeling we get from watching them interact, with each other and with other people. Something exists here which can't be described, something is indeed lost in translation—Coppola somehow gets to the essence of human wanting with an amazing efficiency of style, and in so doing proves that her father's ability to create art on film has passed to her unblemished. Sofia Coppola is my new hero. I hereby apologize for everything I said about her after Godfather III. ★★★★★

HOUSE OF SAND AND FOG

Rated R - Running Time: 2:06 - Released 12/26/03

I get the feeling that writer/director Vadim Perelman didn't expect his first movie, House Of Sand And Fog, based on the novel by Andre DuBus III and co-written for the screen by Perelman with the help of Shawn Otto, to receive Academy Award-level scrutiny. Although its two leads, Ben Kingsley and Jennifer Connelly (both previous Oscar winners) give outstanding performances, and Kingsley has indeed been nominated for Best Actor, the film around them is not put together with the kind of care that normally goes into Oscar-nominated films. The result is a kind of embarrassing mixture of excellent acting and inept storytelling, with plot elements that contradict, characters that are difficult to like, and dialogue that is sometimes patently unrealistic. This is a story where nobody wins—including the audience, and the actors, who have labored hard over their parts but end up in a production that falls far below the level of their talents.

In what amounts to a story of petty vindictiveness that escalates to the point of near absurdity, we are introduced to Kathy (Connelly), a recovering alcoholic from San Francisco who has been sober for three years but who is deeply depressed after her husband left her eight months ago. She is also apparently jobless—at one point she says she is a "house cleaner," but she is never seen cleaning any house, least of all her own. After getting a call from her mother (whom she has not told about her marital split) announcing an impending visit, she is evicted from her home for non-payment of business taxes. Although this is obviously a clerical error (she has never owned a business), she is declared guilty because she has ignored repeated mailed warnings, which she admits never having opened. Before she can turn around, her house is auctioned off to an Iranian immigrant named Massoud Behrani (Kingsley), a former colonel who was loyal to the Shah but fled Iran when the Ayatollah took power. So Behrani moves in with his wife Nadi (Shohreh Aghdashloo, also nominated for Best Supporting Actress) and teenage son Esmail (Jonathan Ahdout), and immediately begins fixing it up so he can resell it for several times the amount he paid.

While Kathy tries to seek legal counsel, she is befriended by a sheriff's deputy named Lester Burdon (Ron Eldard), who himself is suffering in a bad marriage. Lester is so hot to get into Kathy's jeans (which he soon does) that he not only leaves his wife and kids, but begins harassing the Behranis to the point of criminality (not to mention convincing Kathy to hit the bottle again), and the whole who-really-owns-this-house conflict becomes much more heated than anyone could have expected.

The acting by the leads in this movie is generally superb. Kingsley has a difficult task in making us care about him, since his part starts off as a nasty Iranian villain who runs Americans down and has little sympathy for Connelly's character. Moreover, Kathy and Lester are both at first painted as "good guys" (she's a victim of the system and he's the thoughtful cop who helps her), but after they get together their behavior becomes so reprehensible that toward the end it is Behrani and his family who are the victims. But director Perelman continues to make us suspect Behrani, with ominous scenes of his scowling face and questions involving his background, spousal abuse, and the way other characters in his daily life interact with him. So who are we supposed to be rooting for here?

Besides the characterization issues among the leads, there are some terribly bad performances of supporting players—the family members Kathy speaks to on the phone sound unrealistic, both in their delivery and the content of what they're saying. In addition to this, there are several instances of simply bad dialogue—could a law enforcement officer actually say "dispatch yourself to my office"—and keep a straight face? Then there are some timeline issues that confused me. The script implies that all the events take place over a two-week period, but this seems impossible given all the stuff that goes on. The eviction, Kathy moving out, the auction, the Behranis moving in, the construction work, the lawyer meetings, the affair...all this stuff is supposed to happen within 14 days? I suppose it's possible, but I daresay two months would have made a lot more sense. A picky point, perhaps, but it proved a serious stumbling block to my ability to believe.

The actors involved in this production, at least the leading actors, are obviously serious about what they're doing. But in this case, they seem to be far overqualified for the script they're working with. ★★★

THE HOURS ★★★★½ (PG-13/1:54/3-20) Three stories, eight decades, nine nominations, all in just a few Hours.

TEARS OF THE SUN ★★★ (R/1:58/3-13) Misguided message movie: military muscle mines more misery.

THE PIANIST ★★★★★ (R/2:28/3-6) Polish musician survives Holocaust; director doesn't soft-pedal it.

OLD SCHOOL ★★ (R/1:30/NP) Ferrell and friends can sign their names, but haven't learned their lessons.

GODS AND GENERALS ★★★★ (PG-13/3:40/2-27) "Stonewall" story stiff, stodgy, stirring.

DAREDEVIL ★★★ (PG-13/1:40/2-20) Ben Affleck leaps blindly off into the superhero genre.

ADAPTATION ★★★★★ (R/1:54/2-13) Writer Kaufman is forced to adapt, adopt, & improve.

CHICAGO ★★★★½ (PG-13/1:53/2-6) Zellweger razzles, Gere dazzles, Zeta-Jones delivers all that jazz.

CONFESSIONS OF A DANGEROUS MIND ★★★ ★ (R/1:53/1-30) Barris gets his story in before the gong.

A GUY THING ★½ (PG-13/1:44/1-23) This is the kind of Thing that makes Guys ashamed of their Things.

FRIDA ★★★★★ (R/1:58/1-16) Salma Hayek proves she's not just another hot tamale.

THE EMPEROR'S CLUB ★★★½ (PG-13/2:19/1-9) Kevin Kline's classics course crafts conscientious kids.

by the Garrett County Health Department

Dental decay is the most common chronic disease found in children – five times more common than asthma. Each year, more than 51 million school hours are lost due to dental related problems. Poor oral health can lead to low self-esteem in children caused by problems speaking, eating, and concentrating.

The state of Maryland has three times the national average of untreated tooth decay. A survey of Maryland's school children found that 53% of children in kindergarten and 3rd grade had untreated decay in their primary teeth. More disturbing, the study showed that minority children and children of lower socio-economic backgrounds were more likely to have untreated dental decay.

Dental decay can be prevented. "The key to avoiding cavities is establishing good oral hygiene habits early in your child's routine and assuring that parents are equipped with the proper facts," said Cindy Heselbach. "Many parents are not aware that their child should see a dentist by their first birthday."

The first dental visit is important not only for identifying possible problems, but because it is a good opportunity for parents to learn more about promoting good oral hygiene for their child. A dentist can instruct parents on topics such as: proper brushing techniques,

If you are a parent or caretaker, you may have questions about your child's dental health. Since February is Children's Dental Health Month, the Garrett County Health Department encourages you to speak to your child's dentist or contact the Garrett County Health Department at 301-334-7660 to learn more about proper oral hygiene.

Tips for preventing dental decay in children:

Use a wet cloth to wipe your baby's gums after each feeding. Use a soft brush or cotton swab to clean your baby's teeth daily. Do not put your baby to bed with a bottle filled with sugary liquids or dip your baby's pacifier in soda or sugary drinks.

Schedule your child's first dental visit by their first birthday. Provide your child with healthy snacks like fruit, vegetables, nuts and cheese. Give them juice only at meal times, not throughout the day. Assist your child with brushing and flossing until they are 6 or 7 years of age, using a pea-sized amount of toothpaste.

Encourage them to spit out the toothpaste instead of swallowing. Make the routine fun for your child. Ask your child's dentist about the use of fluoride supplements. Ask about dental sealants when your child's permanent teeth come in.

On Dean's List

Brandon Hoover of Grantsville was named to the dean's list at Frostburg State University for outstanding academic achievement for the fall 2003 semester. Hoover earned a 4.0 grade point average.

To be eligible for the dean's list a student must complete a minimum of 12 credit hours and earn a cumulative semester grade point average of at least 3.4 on a 4.0 scale.

Hoover is completing a triple major in political science, sociology, and law and society, and he plans to graduate in May 2005. He is the son of Oliver Hoover and Marla Reams, both of Grantsville.

"Cora "Granny" Friend
Feb. 5, 1913 - Nov. 23, 2003

I pray that, risen from the dead
I may in glory stand
A crown, perhaps, upon my head
But with a needle in my hand.

I've never learned to sing or play
So let no harp be mine
From birth to my dying day
Plain sewing's been my line

Therefore, accustomed to the end
To plying useful stitches
I'll be content, if asked to mend
The little angel's britches!

Greatly missed and lovingly remembered by family and friends.

Sweitzer, Carr Exchange Vows In September Wedding Nuptials

Heather Michelle Sweitzer and Carnie Carr III exchanged vows at the Garrett County Historical Society's gazebo in Oakland on Saturday, Sept. 20, 2003, with the Rev. Ivan Ackerman officiating..

The bride arrived with her father, Steve R. Sweitzer, and Angie King, matron of honor and friend of the bride, in a horse-drawn carriage, owned and driven by Ray Miller of Pleasant Valley.

The bride is the daughter of Steven R. and Debra A. Sweitzer, Swanton. The groom is the son of Carnie Carr Jr., Mt. Storm, W.Va., and Jeanie Browning, Oakland. The best man duties were performed by Josha Carr, brother of the groom, Elk Garden, W.Va.

Each of the guests received a small bell, which they rang as the couple were pronounced husband and wife.

Musical entertainment was provided by pianist Kendra Biser and DJ Dave Zimmerman. BumBle Q's prepared the meal, and Little Sandy's provided the pies.

Photography was done by Debbie King, and Steve Sweitzer and Lisa Murphy were videographers. Jan Florist prepared all the flowers.

Whib and Carolyn Mellinger held a reception for the couple at the VFW, Deer Park.

The couple honeymooned in South Carolina.

Marriage Permits Recently Issued

Two couples recently applied for their marriage licenses, according to David Martin, clerk of the Garrett County Circuit Court. One couple requested that their names not be published.

Roger Harold Jarrell Jr., 35, and Loretta Elaine Fazenbaker, 34, both of Accident.

Rushes To Celebrate 60th Wedding Anniversary

Deane and Grace Rush will celebrate their 60th wedding anniversary on Feb. 12. The couple were married by Rev. Minor Sprague at St. Paul's Methodist Church, Oakland, in 1944.

The couple are the parents of five children: Mack, Barry, Sharon Broadwater, Rick, and Dana. They also have 18 grandchildren and 12 great grandchildren.

The Rushes reside at 2155 Friendsville Road, Friendsville.

Special Events

A son was born January 21 at Garrett County Memorial Hospital to David J. and Nicole K. Dilley Butina, Oakland.

Joseph and Amy (Shawley) Maust of Coal Run, Meyersdale, Pa., announced the birth of a daughter, Grace Elizabeth, on Tuesday, Jan. 27, at Memorial Hospital in Cumberland. The paternal grandparents are Leroy and Eleanor Maust, Salisbury, Pa., and maternal grandparents are George and Sharron Shawley, Swanton. The maternal great-grandmother is Betty Broadwater, Grantsville.

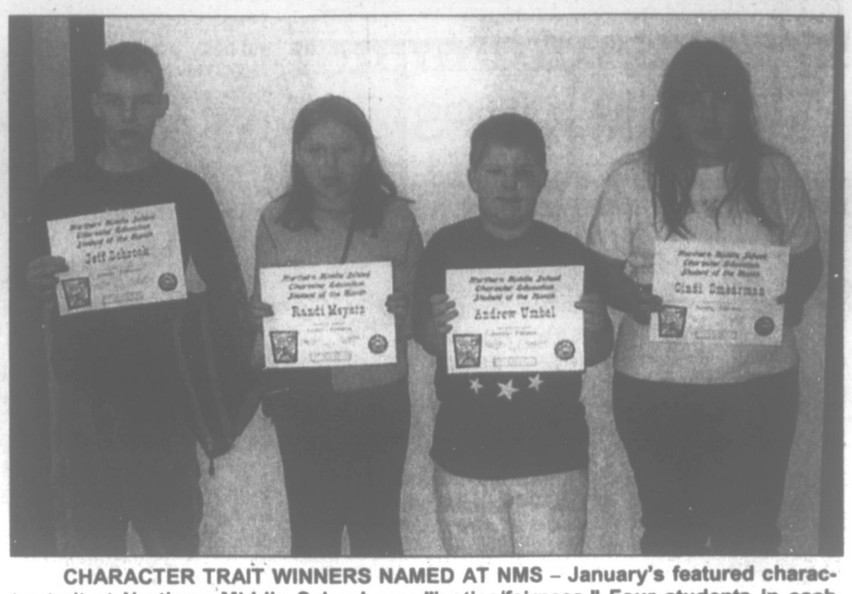
missioners have pledged an annual $500 in membership dues to the organization, and Commissioner David Beard observed that the nine miles of the highway that traverse the county have an economic impact on the area.

Garrett County Chamber of Commerce tourism and marketing director Deb Clatterbuck said she will pursue the possibility of Scenic Byway designation for the highway.

Local businessman David Moe will chair a Regional Liaison Committee charged with coordinating the association's efforts with other highway improvement projects in the region, including Corridor H. Committees addressing transportation needs and a congressional lobbying have also been established.

"This growth is just in its infancy," said Mineral County commissioner Jack Bowers. "If we don't get a road through this area that will serve the people, we are in a heap of trouble."



CHARACTER TRAIT WINNERS NAMED AT NMS – January's featured character trait at Northern Middle School was "justice/fairness." Four students in each grade were recognized for their exemplary and consistent display of justice and fairness throughout the entire month. Sixth grade teachers recognized that their winning students "treat all people in the same great, fair way." Seventh grade teachers made note of the fact that their winning students not only "displayed compassion by looking out for the well-being of others and seeking fairness for them, but also act to keep the peace." The award-winning eighth grade students consistently respected the rights of others, were concerned with fairness both in the classroom and in sports, and always did their fair share (or more) of the work, said the teachers. The sixth grade winners are pictured above. They are, from the left, Jeff Schrock, Randi Meyers, Andrew Umbel, and Cindi Smearman. Pictured below are the seventh grade recipients. They are Troy Hall, Grace Herpel, Breanna Siegmeyer, and Corey Sebold. Pictured at bottom are the eighth grade honorees. They are Johanna Winter, Amy Lander, Brian Williams, and Kory Kamp.

TRANSMISSION OF SIGNALS

Q. How are the radio waves to control the spacecraft on Mars sent?

A. To send command signals, the very first thing you must do is digitize the signal you want to send, so that it is entirely represented by a string of "ones" and "zeros." That is the only way to be confident that the information will travel over a gigantic distance without being garbled due to noise. This is the same principle that explains why a compact disk has so much higher quality sound than a phonograph record.

Broadcasting a signal of a certain frequency goes on all the time on earth: cell phones, TV signals, e-mail messages, radio stations, etc. Different frequency ranges are assigned to different purposes. In the case of the Mars rovers, NASA uses three different frequency bands.

It is quite simple to send a "one" or a "zero": transmit an electromagnetic wave at some frequency. Just for example, pick the value 98,765,432,100 cycles per second. That's about 100 billion cycles per seconds (98.7 billion, to be exact) or 100 billion Hertz, which means a wave that is changing from + to - to + about 100 billion times per second. When that frequency is transmitting, you call it a "one" - and by mutual agreement (that is, you build the equipment this way) the receiver at the other end also interprets this frequency as a "one."

Next, at a later time, transmit a different frequency, such as 98,712,345,600. The difference in frequency is only a tiny percentage; but your equipment can detect that difference, and interprets this frequency as a "zero." At a still later time, you transmit either the first frequency mentioned or the second frequency, and thus you have sent either a "one" or a "zero" again. By changing frequency again and again, you can transmit a very long string of ones and zeros.

The neat thing is that the phrase "at a later time" is much shorter than the twinkling of an eye. Standard equipment can easily switch frequencies about 10 million times a second, which means that "at a later time" means one ten-millionth of a second later. If you do the switching that fast, you can transmit 10 million different ones or zeros in a second. That's a mighty long string of data.

Each zero or one is called a bit, and a group of eight bits is called a byte. When discussing the rates of transmitting data, we usually speak of kilobytes per second. A typical modem for a home computer transmits less than 56 kB/sec. The Mars rovers send most of their pictures back at 128 kB/sec.

Receiving electronics on the rovers on Mars have the ability to interpret incoming data – they have software just as on any computer – and turn the information string into commands. Electric and mechanical hardware on the devices accept these commands and then point the camera or move the rover.

What if the waves run into something along the way? Well. they do run into things – dust and gas in the interplanetary space. The electromagnetic signal will become a little weaker because of that junk in the way, but fortunately the frequency of the wave will not change. So the receiving end might get a very weak signal, but it will still arrive at the same frequency and will therefore still be interpreted correctly as either a one or a zero. The only thing the waves have to do is get there, to carry the string of ones and zeros.

The "Pioneer" spacecraft that NASA developed 25+ years ago have left the solar system by now, billions of miles away. After all that time, their power supplies have run down. Otherwise, they would still be able to correctly interpret commands at those incredible distances.

Kitzmiller Man Sentenced For DUI Charge

A Kitzmiller man pleaded guilty in Garrett County Circuit Court last week to driving under the influence of alcohol. Related charges against Timothy Daniel DeWilt, 39, were dismissed upon his plea.

Judge Jim Sherbin sentenced Wilt to one year in the Garrett County Jail, suspending 10 months of that sentence. Upon his release, Wilt will be on supervised probation.

He was charged last June after sheriff's deputies driving on Maryland Highway observed Wilt driving across the centerline and on the shoulder of the road. After additional observations and testing, Wilt was arrested.

SOLD

To whom it may concern:
Ms. Arlene Murray executed the sale of my condo in September 2003. From our incipient interview to the final settlement, she robustly demonstrated her professionalism, i.e., her encyclopedic knowledge of real estate . . . procedures, her excellent sense of marketing and pricing, and her painstaking courtesy of keeping me informed of the various vicissitudes along the way towards the very end. In short she transformed the bumpy and nerve-racking process of selling property into a smooth ride with minimal anxiety on my part. She is a true asset to her profession and without a scintilla of hesitation, I would wholeheartedly recommend her to anyone I know who is interested in selling or buying real estate at Deep Creek Maryland.

Arlene Murray

Bankers Say Maryland Auto Loan Delinquencies Twice National Rate

by Hazel Feigenblatt
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON – Zero down-payment. Zero percent financing. Specialists in bad credit, no problem with bankruptcy, all applications accepted – the gimmicks that car dealers use to attract buyers might also explain the state's relatively high rate of car loan delinquencies.

But dealers concede that that's only a guess. They said they were surprised by recent numbers from the American Bankers Association that show Maryland's loan delinquency rates are more than double the national rate, and the dealers cannot say for sure why that is.

"I can't imagine why we have a higher rate than the national," said Steve Moss, sales manager of Penn Pontiac-GMC in Baltimore. He said he had nothing in his financial records to indicate that the problem is worse, or why it might be.

"We have no concrete answer to explain why," said Travis Martz, director of communications of the Maryland New Car and Truck Dealers Association.

The ABA reported that delinquencies for cars financed through dealerships reached 3.76 percent in Maryland in the last quarter of 2003, compared to 1.8 percent nationally. The national rate was also 1.8 percent in the second quarter of 2003, when Maryland's rate was 4.26 percent.

Despite the disparity, area car dealers said there is no cause for alarm.

Frank Santone, finance director of Sheehy Chevrolet in Upper Marlboro, said that any delinquency under 4 percent is acceptable. Other dealers said that, according to what they see in their own finances, loan delinquency is not that bad at the moment.

A debt is considered delinquent by the ABA when payment is 30 days past-due or after two billing cycles without payment.

Santone said a possible explanation for the higher delinquency rates is that offering no down-payment, zero percent financing, and other promotions may attract people who cannot really afford the payments.

Another possibility is that dealers are willing to risk more and are not as selective as in other parts of the country – or as selective as they are expected to be.

Chan Khoun, finance director of Herb Gordon Subaru in Silver Spring, agreed with Santone that there are some risk-taking dealers around, but he said dealers generally look to a buyer's credit record when deciding whether to approve small or large down-payments – or not to approve at all.

"We do business in a way that is going to help us," he said.

Martz said business has been "relatively good" in the state in recent years, but that changes in the economy, such as the loss of jobs, could be driving up credit delinquencies.

By contrast, auto loans made by banks had lower delinquency rates in 2003 than loans made through dealers in Maryland, and the state banks' delinquency rates were lower than the nation's in all quarters of the year. In the last quarter, for example, banks' car loans were delinquent 2.19 percent of the time in Maryland, compared to 2.45 percent of the time nationally. Martz said the dealers association cannot explain that difference, because dealers work with banks to obtain the best possible conditions for their clients.

Keith Leggett, an ABA economist, said another possible explanation is that the delinquency rates could include delinquency experienced by Maryland dealers, but caused by buyers from neighbor states. But, while he defended the ABA's numbers, he, too, conceded that he could not explain them.

Swanton Youth Profiled In Natl. Girls' Magazine

Swanton resident Jordan Schwinabart is profiled in the current issue of Discovery Girls magazine, a national publication designed for girls ages 8-12. She is one of a dozen Maryland girls chosen to appear in the magazine's February/March 2004 issue.

Schwinabart and the other girls met with the magazine's photographer, editor, stylists, and other staff members in Baltimore for an October photo shoot. The girls posed for the camera, modeled new clothes, and shared their thoughts on what should be featured in the magazine, "in effect, acting as an editorial board," a spokesperson said. The California-based publication won a Parents' Choice silver award last year.

"I like that I am an individual," said the 12-year-old, who is quoted in the magazine's "profiles" pictorial section. "I don't try to look and act exactly like other people I admire. The best thing you can do is just be yourself."

Schwinabart is the daughter of Tim and Vicki Schwinabart of Swanton.

Named to CCAD President's List

Local resident Matthew W. Burner has been named to the president's list for the fall 2003 term at the Columbus College of Art and Design (CCAD), located in Ohio. The recognition is given to students who earn a grade-point average of 3.4-4.0 in 15 or more credit hours.

The 2002 Southern High School graduate is a sophomore at CCAD, where he is majoring in illustration. He is the son of Brenda L. and Ronald W. Burner of Oakland.

COMMENTARY

Do NASCAR's fixes go TOO FAR?

The sport threatens to alienate fans with its new points system.

By ALAN TAYS
Cox News Service

West Palm Beach, Fla.

There's one thing you can say about NASCAR's new "Chase for the Championship." It's better than a sharp stick in the eye.

Other than that . . .

In limiting its Nextel Cup title chase to the top 10 drivers plus anyone within 400 points of the lead with 10 races to go, NASCAR has fixed something that wasn't broken. Remind me never to take my car to these guys for service. You know how it works — you go in for an oil change and they say you need a new transmission.

In fairness, the plan does have some winners:

One is Homestead-Miami Speedway, which now has a better chance of hosting a competitive race for the championship instead of an anticlimactic coronation. Yup, Homestead's a winner . . . unless, of course, NASCAR someday decides that Daytona would be a better place to end the season.

The Bristol, California and Richmond tracks should be happy, too, because now they're the last three places for drivers to qualify for the "Chase for the Championship," not merely midseason races.

Ditto for New Hampshire, Dover, Talladega, Kansas, Charlotte, Martinsville, Atlanta, Phoenix, Darlington and Homestead-Miami, whose fall races take on added championship implications.

So it's all good, no?

No.

NASCAR doesn't need a "playoff" (a term it doesn't care for) or "Chase" or anything like it. What it did need, I believe, was a bigger reward for race winners. The folks at NASCAR felt this way, too, and gave winners a five-point bump.

Five whole points. Hey, don't spend it all in one place.

Shoulda been more. Isn't winning what competitive sports are all about? It's all well and good that NASCAR rewards consistency, but it should reward winning even more.

So why did NASCAR, in addition to addressing the points question, go for this whole "Chase" deal?

In talking about the new arrangement, NASCAR spokesman Jim Hunter brought up the F-word.

Football.

NASCAR wants to stop losing media attention to football in the fall.

Note that I said "media attention," not "fan attention." Racing fans — the real, hard-core gearheads — don't defect to football. It offends them that NASCAR wants to be more like the so-called stick-and-ball sports.

As for the media — let's limit this to the general-interest segment of the newspaper, magazine and TV businesses — pro football still is the most popular sport in this country.

In a way, though, this benefits NASCAR. Many larger newspapers publish separate NFL and sports sections on Mondays. So pro football gets a section front and NASCAR race stories almost always run on the front of the sports section.

A second sports section is also common on Sundays for college football. Because it competes with the NFL in the Sunday sports section, NASCAR doesn't always make the front, but its odds are still better than in the old one-section-for-everything days.

So what has NASCAR accomplished? Let's count:

1. Alienating fans: "How much of this new system is show and how much for the good of the sport, or was that even considered?" asks Cathy Parramore, a fan from Wellington, Fla. "Maybe what was considered most important was how much money could be pulled in those final 10 races, and let's just forget about the fans, the networks and most of all the drivers, who, by the way, are out there risking their necks for our entertainment every week."

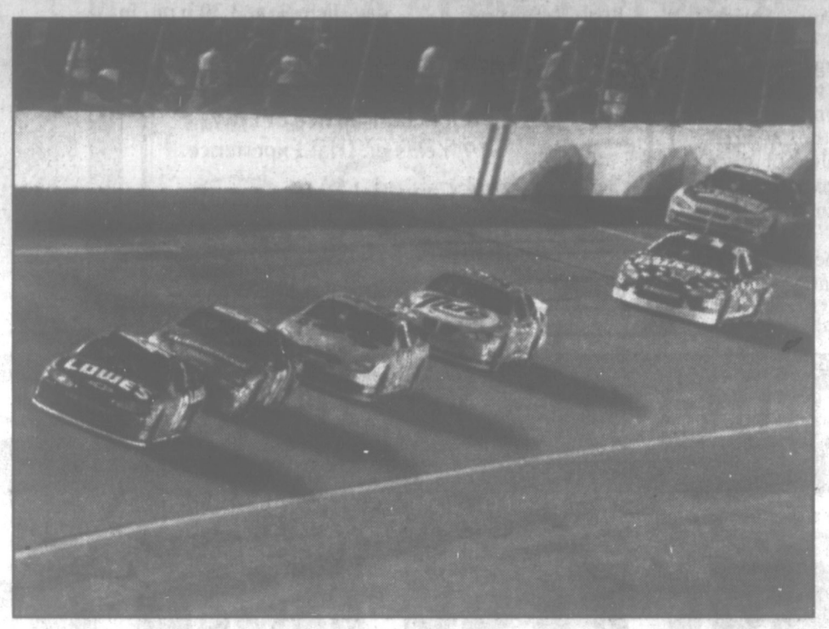
2. Alienating drivers: "Honestly," says defending points champion Matt Kenseth, "it's worse than I thought." Kenseth's main beef is that a driver who finishes 26 races with a big points lead will see all but five points of it vanish, while drivers as far in arrears as 400 points suddenly will find themselves no more than 50 points back.

(Not every driver opposes the new system. Michael Waltrip loves it. But almost everyone else who has expressed an opinion has been negative.)

3. It will likely make it tougher for some teams to secure adequate sponsorship: "I'm sure there are going to be some sponsorships and companies that will write 26-race contracts," says Ernie Saxton, publisher of Motorsports Sponsorship Marketing News. "Maybe not specifically 26 races, but it would be 26 races at one rate and maybe the final 10 races, if you're not in the top 10, at another rate."

Life, however, will go on. NASCAR has survived unpopular reaction to other changes, and it will ride out this storm, too. The question is, how many of its core fans will go along for the ride?

Alan Tays writes about auto racing for The Palm Beach Post.



Daytona International Speedway

Jimmie Johnson (48) leads the Budweiser Shootout field through the tri-oval in last year's race, which was held under the lights for the first time. Dale Earnhardt Jr. will look to defend his title in the 2004 event on Saturday.

And away we go . . .

Saturday's Bud Shootout kicks off 2004 competition

NASCAR fans have plenty to get excited about this week as racing competition begins Saturday with the annual Budweiser Shootout.

The 70-lap, 175-mile Nextel Cup all-star event will again be held under the lights at Daytona International Speedway. The race will be televised live at 7:30 p.m. EST Saturday on TNT. The non-points event has jump-started NASCAR's premier series since 1979.

Dale Earnhardt Jr. was the winner of the 2003 race.

DID YOU KNOW?
The late Dale Earnhardt leads all drivers with six victories in Budweiser Shootout events. Jeff Gordon, Dale Jarrett, Ken Schrader, Tony Stewart and the late Neil Bonnett have two wins each.

2004 QUALIFIERS

The Budweiser Shootout features drivers who earned a Bud Pole Award in 2003 and includes past champions of the Bud Shootout who finished in the top 50 in the previous season's standings. Here is a list of those qualified for the 2004 Bud Shootout, followed by the number of poles won in 2003 or the year of the previous Bud Pole championship:

- Ryan Newman, 11
- Bobby Labonte, 4
- Jeff Gordon, 4; 1994, 1997 winner
- Steve Park, 2
- Elliott Sadler, 2
- Jimmie Johnson, 2
- Jeff Green, 1
- Dave Blaney, 1
- Jeremy Mayfield, 1
- Terry Labonte, 1; 1985 winner
- Boris Said, 1
- Tony Stewart, 1; 2001, 2002 winner
- Kevin Harvick, 1
- Mike Skinner, 1
- Jamie McMurray, 1
- Dale Earnhardt Jr., 2003 winner
- Dale Jarrett, 1996, 2000 winner
- Mark Martin, 1999 winner
- Rusty Wallace, 1998 winner
- Geoffrey Bodine, 1992 winner
- Ken Schrader, 1989, 1990 winner
- Bill Elliott, 1987 winner

NEWS & NOTES

Earnhardt team executive resigns

By RICK MINTER
Cox News Service

Atlanta

Dale Earnhardt Inc., one of NASCAR's most powerful race teams, is undergoing a management shake-up with the unexpected resignation of longtime executive vice president Ty Norris.

Norris, who went to work at DEI in 1996 and has helped lead the NASCAR powerhouse since the death of founder Dale Earnhardt, left the company last week, according to team spokesman J.R. Rhodes.

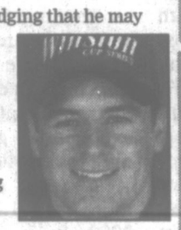
DEI is owned by Earnhardt's widow, Teresa, and fields the Chevrolets driven by Dale Earnhardt Jr. and Michael Waltrip.

Norris was also a spotter for Earnhardt Jr.'s car.

Richie Gilmore, who has been the team's head engine builder, is expected to take over Norris' duties.

Nadeau downsizes

Jerry Nadeau, acknowledging that he may never fully recover from head injuries from last year's crash at Richmond, said that he has sold his home north of Charlotte, N.C., and moved into a more modest residence.



NADEAU

"That's an expensive, big house and I could afford it while I was racing," he said. "Now that I'm not racing, I've got to take a different approach on how I want to live the rest of my life."

Musgrave still bitter

From listening to Ted Musgrave talk during the recent Lowe's Motor Speedway media tour, it would seem that the 2003 Busch season had just ended.

Musgrave lost the championship after he was penalized for jumping a restart late in the final race of the season at Homestead, Fla.

The normally cool Musgrave was extremely upset in November, and evidently ill feelings linger.

"I've taken it for the past 25 years, and I'm going to start dishing it back out right now," he said.

Despite finishing second once and third twice in the points standings the past three years, he said the bitterness of the most recent defeat has taken away much of his desire to be a part of the points race.

"After what happened last year with the championship deal, it doesn't mean anything to me," he said. "I'm just going to go out there and race hard and show them what I can do."

Irvan in sprint cars

Former NASCAR driver Ernie Irvan has taken an ownership position with the United Sprint Car Series, which was founded by ex-sprinter Pete Walton.

Walton said that he and Irvan have taken over the North Carolina-based American Outlaw Action Series.

"The two series will immediately merge our management teams and our efforts to continue the growth of sprint car racing for drivers and teams based in the southeastern United States," Walton said, adding that Irvan will concentrate on marketing efforts on behalf of the series.

Sensors making sense

Atlanta Motor Speedway has a timing and scoring system to accommodate a "freezing" of the field during NASCAR caution periods.

The system, which consists of eight sensors around the 1.54-mile oval, was created by updating the network previously used during Indy Racing League events at the track.

The system is seen as a way to keep drivers in their positions when the caution flag is displayed.

This is especially important since racing to the yellow flag is no longer permitted.

Preseason test sessions answer questions on tires, aerodynamics

While most of the buzz in recent weeks has been about NASCAR's new "Chase for the Championship" points system overhaul, drivers and crew chiefs are equally interested in how the new competition rules will affect the outcome of races this season.

Goodyear is offering a softer racing tire and NASCAR has trimmed the rear spoilers on the cars by three-quarters of an inch.

Most racing insiders say the main difference fans will see is that the boring fuel-mileage races are a thing of the past. The softer tires should wear out about the same time a tank of gas empties, which means teams won't be nearly as tempted to stay on the track during caution periods or grab the lead by only putting in gas on pit stops.

"Every time you pit, you're going to want four tires," said veteran driver Rusty Wallace, who watched his teammate Ryan Newman win several races last year using a fuel-mileage strategy.

John Darby, director of the Nextel Cup Series, said the spoiler change is just the first of several steps that NASCAR will take to make mechanical adjustments and driver ability more important than aerodynamics in determining how fast a car runs.

"This is the first of multiple cuts to come, but we want to approach this in a slow manner," he said.

Forty-five drivers — 32 from the Nextel Cup Series and 13 from the Busch circuit — tested Goodyear's softer tires last week during testing at Las Vegas Motor Speedway.

Most drivers agreed with driver Jimmie Johnson's assessment that speeds will be higher once new tires are put on a car but will soon fall considerably because the softer tires wear out more quickly than the harder ones used in recent seasons.

Daytona Beach, Fla.

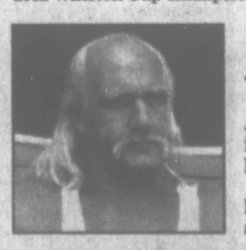
A broken suspension piece in the final hour cost NASCAR stars Tony Stewart and Dale Earnhardt Jr. and four-time Rolex 24 winner Andy Wallace an almost certain victory in last weekend's Rolex 24 sports car endurance race at Daytona International Speedway.

Stewart was at the wheel of the No. 2 Howard-Boss Motorsports Chevrolet/Crawford when the left rear tire pulled off the rim and sent the 2002 Winston Cup champion spinning to a stop on the backstretch, just missing the concrete wall.

"I told the team I wanted hazard pay for driving on two wheels," Stewart said.

Andy Pilgrim of Delray Beach, Fla., then drove the No. 54 Bell Motorsports Pontiac/Doran Daytona Prototype into the lead with 15 minutes remaining, passing Stewart and the car that had led since late in the seventh hour Saturday night.

The No 54 car, also driven by Terry Borcheller and Christian Fittipaldi, went on to claim the overall title for team owner Forest Barber in the race, which ended 1 p.m. Sunday.



'Hulk-a-Mania' comes to NASCAR

Professional wrestling superstar Hulk Hogan (left) will serve as grand marshal and give the famous command, "Drivers, start your engines," for the inaugural night-time running of the Florida Dodge Dealers 250 Craftsman Truck Series race on Feb. 13.

Joining Hogan in the pre-race ceremonies will be his daughter, Brooke Hogan, who will sing the national anthem.

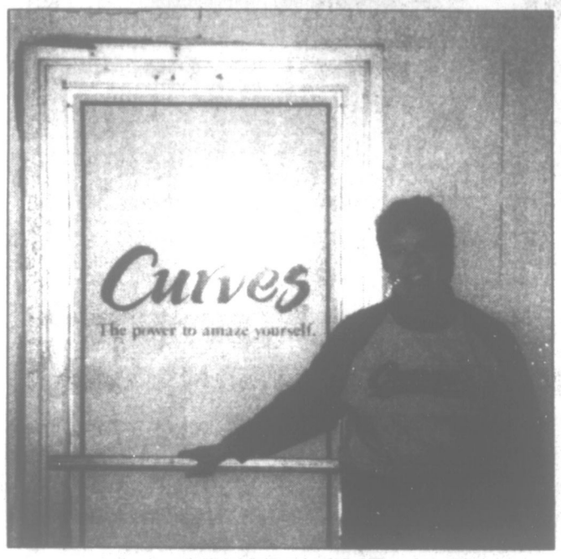
Curves



SUZANNE NICOLAS
LOCAL CURVE FRANCHISE OWNER

Waco-based Curves International Inc., the world's largest fitness center franchise, recently announced the opening of its newest Curves location in Oakland's Garrett Square, right next to Denny's.

This is Garrett County's first Curves center, bringing to residents a supportive environment offering 30-minute fitness solution with a common sense weight loss program that helps break the weight loss cycle. To celebrate the location's opening, the center will host a special grand opening promotion the week of Feb. 9.

"We are excited to become part of the Garrett community," said Suzanne Nicolas, local franchise owner. "Curves offers a comfortable, welcoming place where real women work out. Our facility is designed so women can encourage and support one another while moving around the circuit. We look forward to helping women in this community reach amazing results, both physical and emotional, through our Curves Workout program and support network."

"With the average person gaining three pounds a year, a reasonable workout regime that can fit into today's busy lifestyle of work and family is critical to help combat diabetes, osteoporosis, hypertension, and other health risks that women can face," Nicolas said. The Curves Workout program, designed by Gary Heavin and his wife and co-founder Diane, is utilized in all Curves locations.

The system allows women of all ages and fitness levels to perform all five of the components of a complete fitness program, combining strength and cardiovascular training through hydraulic resistance. The experienced instructors at Curves offer one-on-one training, while members talk and inspire one another during the workout. Also, the comfortable, welcoming atmosphere has helped women of all fitness levels commit to an ongoing fitness program and achieve results.

Since the first Curves franchise opened in 1995, the organization has seen exponential growth, beginning with 44 locations in 1996 and expanding to more than 1,250 centers in 2000. In Entrepreneur Magazine's 2003 list of the top 500 franchises, Curves was named the fastest growing franchise of any kind in the world, as well as the No. 2 overall best franchise. Today, Curves continues to establish itself among the premiere franchises and currently has more than 2 million members in more than 6,000 locations within the United States, Canada, Spain, Mexico, and the United Kingdom, , according to a spokesperson. A Curves center opens every four hours on average, and has grown from just one franchise in 1995 to having one location for every two McDonald's in America.

"Helping say goodbye to unhealthy lifestyles, unattainable diet resolutions, and unreasonable fitness regimens gives women a new outlook on exercise and feeding their body properly," said Nicolas. "We look forward to providing women in this community a complete workout in only 30 minutes that will ensure they can stick to the program and sustain a healthy weight."

For more information about Curves, persons can visit www.curvesinternational.com or call Nicolas at 301-533-0331.

Nicolas, who is originally from Indiana and most recently from the eastern panhandle of West Virginia, relocated to Mtn. Lake Park with her husband Bill in September.

Nicolas will be assisted by two employees, Sue Griffith and Rebecca Swartzentruber.

TV PIPELINE

'DreamKeeper' actress has roots in theater

By Taylor Michaels
© Zap2it

Sheila Tousey

Q: I loved ABC's "DreamKeeper." What can you tell me about Sheila Tousey and where could I write to her? She brought me near to tears! –Mary in Anchorage, Alaska.

A: Born in Keshena, Wis., Tousey – who played Janine in the recent ABC TV movie – is a Menominee and Stockbridge-Munsee American Indian, and grew up on both the Menominee and Stockbridge-Munsee reservations. She began Indian dancing as a child, but didn't perform on stage until she attended the University of New Mexico, where she initially planned to specialize in federal contracts and Indian law.

During the course of her education, she began taking theater arts courses and eventually changed her career paths. Upon graduation, she moved to New York to continue polishing her craft on stage. After directing her in his play "The Late Henry Moss," actor-playwright Sam Shepard declared Tousey "a great actress with a lot of guts."

Tousey, who has appeared as Judge Danielle Larsen in several episodes of "Law & Order: Special Victims Unit," reprises her role as Emma Leaphorn in "A Thief of Time," an upcoming entry in PBS' "American Mysteries" series.

We never make any promises where fan mail is concerned in these security-conscious days, but try writing to Tousey at "DreamKeeper," c/o ABC, 500 S. Buena Vista St., Burbank, CA 91521-4551. Good luck!

Q: I would like to know more about Sela Ward's foundation to establish group homes for orphans and children who have been taken from their homes. I would love to help in any way possible. –Margaret D. Gronfeldt, Los Angeles.

A: Ward opened Hope Village in Meridian, Miss., on Jan. 2, 2002. Donations may be mailed to Hope Village, P.O. Box 26, Meridian, MS 39301 or made online at the foundation Web site: http://www.hopevillagems.org.

Q: Every episode of "South Park" ends with a short commercial for Braniff Airlines. How can that be? Braniff went out of business several years ago. Is it a joke and I'm just not getting it? –Albert Frankovich, Lenexa, Kan.

A: I don't know whether it qualifies as a joke or just a silly non sequitur, but according to a South Park Studios Web site, when creators Trey Parker and Matt Stone delivered the series pilot to Comedy Central, they didn't have an official "bumper" (that's the distinctive little logo or slide at the end of a show that identifies the production company).

They tossed in the defunct Braniff logo, thinking it would be a harmless, vaguely surreal goof, only to receive a notice from another company that still owned the rights to the Braniff name and logo. Parker and Stone hammered out a deal with the other company that allows them to continue using the logo exclusively on "South Park" episodes but not on any other future projects the team may do.

In Focus

Rosa Parks, the unassuming lady who refused to give her bus seat to a white man, sparked the civil-rights movement. She is honored in the HBO special "Mighty Times: The Legacy of Rosa Parks" wednesday, Feb. 11.

The documentary features interviews with participants of the 1955 Montgomery, Ala., bus boycott. It brilliantly brings history to life by showing clips from the days of segregation, and explains how Parks first had an ugly incident on a bus in 1943.

RAM Notes

LEADERSHIP ACADEMY

The Leadership Academy offers these suggestions to live by: Feb. 2-6, "Show pride in yourself"; and Feb. 9-13, "Respect yourself."

FEBRUARY RAM BUSINESS PARTNER OF THE MONTH

Six years ago Oakland was introduced to Our Town Theatre. Since that time, Garrett County has been witness to over 300 performances involving countless members of the community, from students to adults. The Board of Directors of OTT has worked tirelessly since its inception to create a community theatre where Garrett County citizens can enjoy the tremendous array of artistic talent available locally.

In addition to vibrant plays and productions, which involve not only actors and actresses but also stage and lighting crews, costume designers, and many other volunteers, OTT also lends itself to a diverse array of other activities. These include adult and teen coffeehouses, improvisation nights, recitals, meetings, parties, dances, and creative dramatics camps. Classes for children, middle-school students, and senior citizens, are also offered.

OTT exposes students and children of the community to diverse cultures, develops their sense of presentation, raises their self-esteem, and cultivates friendships. Students of the community are encouraged to participate in the productions as actors, technical crewmembers, costume designers, and concession participants.

The theatre operates as a non-profit organization. Therefore, donations are needed to keep the theatre supplied with its many necessities, such as costumes, lighting, props, and programs.

Our Town Theatre has become one of the most vital parts of the Garrett County community since its founding. This culturally in-tune organization has helped to open the community to various socially stimulating activities, the opportunity to grow, learn, and meet new people, and the open-mindedness to take on new challenges and accept diversity. With the support of the community, Our Town Theatre is here to stay. Thank you Our Town Theatre. Your support is appreciated.

Students interested should sign up in guidance. This session preps for the March 27th SAT testing date.

ARNETT NAMED FEBRUARY RAM STUDENT

Senior Brandi Arnett was chosen as the Perkins Random Acts of Maturity Student of the Month for February. Arnett has volunteered many hours during the school year helping with a variety of activities supporting the school. Her willingness to come in early and stay late to make signs for High School Assessments and assist with the daily attendance bulletin has been invaluable to the school administration. Her great dedication to the cheerleading squad continues to make the Rams the most spirited school in Western Maryland. Thanks to Brandi for being such a well-rounded young lady who exhibits the maturity befitting a Southern student.

RAM STUDENT OF THE MONTH NAMED – Senior Brandi Arnett was recently chosen as the Perkins Random Acts of Maturity Student of the Month for February at Southern Garrett High School. Arnett has volunteered many hours during the school year helping with a variety of activities supporting the school. Her willingness to come in early and stay late to make signs for High School Assessments and assist with the daily attendance bulletin has been invaluable to the school administration, said a school spokesperson. "Her great dedication to the cheerleading squad continues to make the Rams the most spirited school in western Maryland. Thanks to Brandi for being such a well-rounded young lady who exhibits the maturity befitting a Southern student," said Tom Woods, principal. Pictured above are Arnett, on the left, and Woods.

WINTER SPORTS HOMECOMING COURT NAMED

The Winter Sports Homecoming court was recently named for the 2003-04 school year. Freshman Anet Dishmon will be escorted by Mark Bittinger. Sophomore Caitlyn Brown will be escorted by Brandon Manko. Junior Jasmine Scheffel will be escorted by Aaron Louden. MONEY!! When we have it, how shall we spend it? When we lack for it, how shall we accumulate it? We spend most of our waking hours earning it...then lie awake fretting about it. At times, our very lives appear to be centered around money.

Try centering your life around God. Try praying to Him concerning your needs. When those prayers are joined with your God-given intelligence, strength, patience, and faith, He shall provide in His own manner and in His own time... "For your Father knows what you need before you ask Him." (Matthew 6:8)

In fact, the answer to your needs is printed on all legal tender...bills and coins alike. It reads... "In God We Trust."

It's What's on the Inside That Counts

One of the first real jobs I had as a young man was working on the railroad. In the middle of one particular day, I recall the track foreman telling all the new workers to go to the railroad doctor for a physical examination. At the time, we were all quite dirty and sweaty from working, and I apologized to the doctor because we didn't get a chance to clean up before seeing him. Surprisingly, the doctor didn't seem to mind, and he remarked that the dirt on the outside didn't matter; he was more interested in what was on the inside of the workers. Our Heavenly Father is also like the doctor–he is more interested in what is in our hearts than in our exterior, outward appearance. The Bible tells us that God alone knows the hearts of men and He will deal with each person as they deserve. However, sometimes we may put more importance on a person's exterior than we should. Although it is probably only human nature to be more friendly to an attractive, well-groomed person than to someone who is unkempt, a person with a kind and gentle heart may prove to be a more reliable friend, regardless of their appearance. Our Lord never looks at a person's outward appearance. He is only concerned with what is inside our hearts.

Truly God is good to the upright, To those who are pure in heart.

R.S.V. Psalm 73:1

Herbs And Supplements Used For Improving Sleep

Many people turn to herbs and dietary supplements to help improve a variety of sleep problems. Valerian has been used for several decades for sleep disorders. Valerian is also known to improve mood and decrease early awakening. Lavender, an herb commonly used in scented oils and sleep pillows, has shown to have sedative and antianxiety effects. Passionflower has been described as a calmative and sedative agent in trials, but liver and pancreas toxicity limit its use. Melatonin is widely used for sleep cycle complications including jet lag and appears to be safe for short-term use.

While research suggests that chamomile has significant anxiety reducing properties, study results are conflicting as to its ability to promote sleep. Hops, a commonly known flavoring in beer and a medicinal herb, has a long history of sedative use despite a lack of scientific research on humans. Lemon balm, a common component of sedative teas, has been shown to improve sleep quality, especially when combined with valerian.

Strange BUT TRUE

By Samantha Weaver

• Having a brewski after a hard day's work is hardly a new idea, but you might be surprised to discover how old it really is. The first beer was brewed in 2000 B.C. — in what's now known as Ireland, of course!

• Those who are interested in such things conducted a study to determine if the weather affects people's tipping behavior. The study took place during breakfast in a hotel in Atlantic City, where the patrons had no view outside. When the diners were told that the weather was sunny outside, the average tip was 29 percent of the bill, while those who heard that it was raining tipped only 19 percent. Somewhere in the middle were those who were told that it was cloudy (at 24 percent) and those who heard that it was partly sunny (26 percent).

• It's been reported that first lady Abigail Adams hung clothes to dry in the East Room of the White House.

• In 42 B.C., the emperor of Rome commanded one of his subjects, Caecina Paetus, to kill himself. Shamed by his hesitation to obey the emperor, Paetus' wife, Arria, grabbed her husband's dagger and plunged it into her own breast. As she collapsed upon withdrawing the knife, she returned the dagger, saying, "It doesn't hurt, Paetus."

• It was Sigmund Freud who observed, "One is very crazy when in love."

• Canon, the Japanese company best-known for manufacturing cameras, was originally named "Seiki-Kogaku Kenkyusho," which, when translated, means "Precision Optical Instruments Laboratory."

• Queen Elizabeth I of England was somewhat superstitious — she had her astrologer, "Doctor Dee," choose a propitious day for her coronation.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Feb. 14, 1779, Captain James Cook, the great English explorer and navigator, is killed by natives of Hawaii during his third visit to the Pacific island group.

• On Feb. 9, 1900, the solid silver trophy known today as the Davis Cup is first put up for competition when American collegian Dwight Filley Davis challenges British tennis players to come across the Atlantic and compete against his Harvard team.

• On Feb. 10, 1941, the first highway post office service is established along the route between Washington, D.C., and Harrisonburg, Va. Mail was transported in buses equipped with facilities for the sorting, handling and dispatch of mail.

• On Feb. 15, 1942, in one of the greatest defeats in British military history, Britain's supposedly impregnable Singapore fortress surrenders to Japanese forces after a weeklong siege. More than 60,000 British, Australian and Indian soldiers were taken prisoner.

• On Feb. 11, 1960, Jack Paar, host of NBC's "The Tonight Show," walks off the program to protest censorship. Infuriated when censors cut a joke about a "water closet," claiming it was in poor taste, Paar stormed off the set and did not return to the show for a month.

• On Feb. 13, 1991, Sotheby's announces the discovery of a long-lost manuscript of "Huckleberry Finn" by Mark Twain. The first half of Twain's original manuscript, heavily corrected in his own handwriting, had been missing for more than a century.

• On Feb. 12, 1999, the five-week impeachment trial of President Bill Clinton comes to an end, with the Senate voting to acquit the president on both articles of impeachment: perjury and obstruction of justice.

Beatlemania

Q: I have a Beatles magazine published in 1964 and two Dave Clark Five fan publications from about the same period. Do they have any value? — Judy, Boomer, N.C.

A: A quick check of the Internet revealed numerous Beatles items being offered, including sheet music in the $25-$40 range; a Yellow Submarine ballpoint pen, $30; an assortment of stickpins for about $5 each; and a large "I Love the Beatles" pennant sold during their American tour, $300. Judging from these prices, it is a fair assumption to say that most memorabilia connected to the Fab Four is, indeed, desirable.

One of the better groups for collectors is the Working Class Beatles Club, 3311 Niagara St., Pittsburgh, PA 15213. For rock collectibles in general, you might want to contact dealer Gary Hein, P.O. Box 179, Little River, NJ 07739. Beatlefan is a bi-monthly magazine for fans. The address is P.O. Box 33515, Decatur, GA 30033.

Q: I have an old uniform that attendants wore during the 1950s at Esso gasoline stations. It must be worth something to someone. — Erma, Ormond Beach, Fla.

A: Three collectors who might be interested include Lee Fox, 1715 S.H. 45, Mellica Hill, NJ 08062; Ed Natale Jr., P.O. Box 222, Wyckoff, NJ 07480; and Jeffrey Herman, 333 N. Carson St., Carson City, NV 89706. An excellent magazine for collectors is Check the Oil, published by the International Petroliana Collectors, 30 W. Olentangy St., Powell, OH 43065.

Housetraining a Puppy

Q: I just got a new dachshund for Christmas! She was born in mid-November, and I need to know the best way to housetrain her. I was told that if she goes in the house, to rub her nose in it and spank her, but I think that is mean. I was also told to put her in a pet cage when we're not at home, and if it is small enough she will "hold it" until we get home. Is that true? — Randy B., Decatur, Ill.

A: Congratulations! I can see that you're very excited about having a dog and want to bring her up right.

You're right to be wary about rubbing your puppy's nose in her own mess. This method often sends mixed messages to the dog, confusing her. Instead, establish a regular "go" schedule and learn to read the signs of a puppy with a full bladder.

Using a small crate to train your puppy may work, because dogs do not like to soil their living spaces. However, it should be used as a training tool in combination with taking her out regularly. Your dog should urinate each time she goes out; if she doesn't, put her in the crate for 15 minutes, then take her out again. Try giving her a cool bowl of chicken soup to speed things along. When she goes, give generous praise and stay outside a few minutes longer so she can romp around a bit.

Dr. Nicholas Dodman, in his book "Dogs Behaving Badly," points out that puppies need to be taken outside as often as seven times a day. "A simple rule of thumb is that they can hold urine for the number of hours corresponding to their age in months, plus one," he says.

But most importantly, establish a routine. She'll love you for it.

Local Student On FSU Dean's List

Jennifer Hickman, Mtn. Lake Park, has been named to the dean's list at Frostburg State University for outstanding academic achievement for the fall 2003 semester. In addition, she received the distinction of a 4.0 grade-point average.

To be eligible for the dean's list, a student must complete a minimum of 12 credit hours and earn a cumulative semester grade-point average of at least 3.4 on a 4.0 scale.

A 2002 graduate of Southern High School, Jennifer is the daughter of Mark and Karen Hickman.

Summer Food Service Program Funds Available

The Maryland State Department of Education (MSDE) announces that federal money is available to help pay for meals and snacks served at summer programs in low-income areas statewide.

The Summer Food Service Program (SFSP) provides good nutrition for approximately 48,000 Maryland children who might otherwise go hungry during the summer when they do not have access to school lunch or breakfast.

State Superintendent of Schools Nancy S. Grasmick said there is a real need to increase the number of organizations that offer this valuable program for children.

"At this point, fewer than 20% of the children who take advantage of free or reduced-price school meals participate in the Summer Food Service Program," Dr. Grasmick said. "What happens to the other 80%? We want those children to have access to the program so they can begin school next fall well nourished and ready to do their best work."

MSDE encourages county recreation and parks groups, faith-based organizations, summer camps, migrant communities, and others to consider operating the SFSP. The program offers federal reimbursement for meals served to children from low-income areas and to low-income children attending camps and other programs.

SFSP sponsors may include public school systems or private nonprofit, units of local, municipal, county, state, or federal governments and public or private nonprofit residential summer camps. Private nonprofit organizations may also sponsor the SFSP, with some restrictions.

Reimbursement is available to sponsors in areas where at least 50% of the children qualify for free or reduced price meals under the National School Lunch Program or when 50% of children enrolled in a program qualify. The SFSP is open to children age 18 or younger and to people over 18 who are mentally or physically disabled. It is an equal opportunity program serving all children regardless of race, color, age, national origin, sex, or disability.

Most sponsors may be reimbursed for up to two meals/snacks a day. Those serving primarily migrant children may be reimbursed for up to three meals a day (or two meals and a snack). Camps also may serve up to three meals a day; however, camps will only be reimbursed for meals that are served to children who are eligible for free or reduced meals under the National School Lunch Program.

Organizations interested in becoming sponsors should contact the Maryland State Department of Education, School and Community Nutrition Programs Branch, at 410-767-0214 for more information. The deadline for applications is May 3, 2004.

The SFSP is administered in Maryland by MSDE and by the U.S. Department of Agriculture at the federal level.

RYAN'S GLADE
by Katelyn Gnegy

The monthly meeting was held January 23, at which time we held our club achievement night. Following a covered-dish supper, new officers were installed. They are: Andrea Steyer, president; Brandon Manko, vice president; Tara Marple, secretary; Jessica Steyer, treasurer; Katelyn Gnegy, reporter; Aaron Lantz, historian; and J.B. Gnegy, game leader.

Awards were given for attendance, club activities, fund-raisers, regional and state participation, teen leadership and leader recognition, plus outstanding members and friends. A report was given by Katelyn Gnegy on the officer training meeting.

Record books were due for the year 2003, and Andrea Steyer gave a demonstration on hers. The club voted for a sled riding party and selling of Joe Corbi pizzas. Pizza order forms will be given out at the sled riding event and pizza delivery date is set for March 6.

The club is planning a trip to Washington, D.C., and a meeting followed the program for those interested in going. Possible sites to visit are the National Zoo, Smithsonian museums, National Monument, and the Vietnam Wall.

Our next meeting will be held February 17 at the Ryan's Glade Community Center.

FROSTBURG BUSINESSES, APARTMENTS DESTROYED — Firefighters from Garrett County were among many who were summoned to battle a four-alarm blaze in downtown Frostburg early Sunday. The fire, apparently caused by a coal-fired boiler in the basement, was reported at 6:19 a.m. Garrett County departments that sent personnel and equipment were Eastern Garrett, Grantsville, Friendsville, and Oakland. Some 100 firefighters battled the blaze, which destroyed Gandalf's Restaurant and Bar, and Warehouse War, a retail clothing store, along with nine apartment units on the second and third floors above the restaurant. All 14 residents of the apartments escaped uninjured, and there were no injuries reported among the firefighting and rescue personnel. The building, which is listed on the National Register of Historic Places, was built in 1846 and opened as the Lyric Opera House. It has housed a variety of businesses in its 158 years of existence.

GC 9-1-1 Office Releases Call Report For 2003

The Garrett County Office of Emergency Management has released its call report for the year 2003. The office handled a total of 23,693 calls last year, 17,504 of which were actual emergencies, according to Director Brad Frantz.

He told the Garrett County commissioners recently that the number was a "bit" higher than 2002. In that year, a total of 23,178 calls were made, 16,970 of which were emergencies. In previous years, the totals were less than 22,000.

One of the reasons for the increase this year is cell phones. Of the 10,705 calls to 9-1-1, nearly half were made from cell phones. Whenever an accident happens on a local highway, the office may receive numerous calls from motorists with cell phones about the same incident.

Though cell phones are valuable during emergency situations, Emergency Management is currently unable to automatically identify the location of the callers who are using them. Unlike calls made from other phones, no caller ID will appear for dispatchers.

The office, however, is working on Phase I and Phase II of a wireless identification project. Once completed, Emergency Management will be able to locate a cell phone user who is calling 9-1-1. New equipment installed in Phase II of the project will give the longitude and latitude of cell phone callers, Frantz noted.

The weather is another reason for the increase in the number of calls to the department. Frantz noted that 2003 was an "extreme" year, with record levels of snow during the Presidents' Day weekend, ice in April, and heavy fog prior to the Memorial Day weekend.

The fog contributed to an 80-car pile up with two deaths on I-68 near Finzel. Frantz said a national study shows that Garrett County has more fog days than any other area in the eastern U.S., including Allegany County.

The director also noted there were 542 hang-ups and 314 wrong-number calls to 9-1-1 last year. In October alone, the department received 32 hang ups.

Frantz said some of the hang ups are not intentional. But, nonetheless, they can cause a lot of wasted man hours. The office is mandated by law to call the party back to make sure that no actual emergency is taking place. If no one responds, the department has to send someone out to the residence to check on the situation.

The department tries to educate the public about hang ups to 9-1-1, Frantz said. Persons who inadvertently dial 9-1-1 should stay on the line until the dispatcher answers the call and learns that there is not an emergency taking place.

Local fire departments and rescue squads were also busy in 2003. There were 2,127 fire and 2,964 EMS calls to Emergency Management. Of those, Deep Creek Volunteer Fire Department received a total of 498 calls last year, with 193 of them medical emergencies. The Oakland VFD had 417 calls last year, 4 of which were medical emergencies.

The other fire departments' totals are as follows: Deer Park, 278; Accident, 118, Grantsville, 168; Kitzmiller, 91; Eastern Garrett, 137; Bittinger 136; Bloomington, 3; Friendsville, 210; and Gorman, 126.

The Southern Garrett Rescue Squad had 1,625 calls, and Northern Garrett Rescue Squads at Accident, Friendsville, and Grantsville had a total of 1,339 calls.

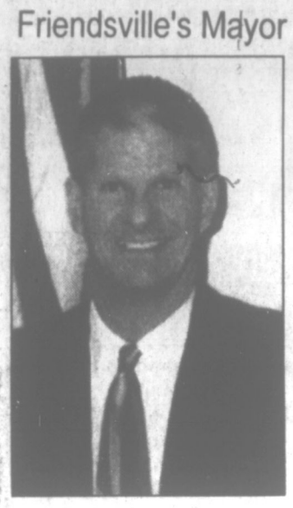
Schlosnagle Seeks Another Term As Friendsville's Mayor



Spencer R. Schlosnagle has announced that he is seeking another term as Friendsville's mayor. Schlosnagle, who was first elected at the age of 21, was the youngest mayor ever elected in Maryland.

"I would like to be re-elected as the mayor of the 'friendliest little town in Maryland,'" he said, noting his favorite motto for Friendsville.

During his career, Schlosnagle has served on numerous boards and committees. He is the past president of the Governor's Youth Advisory Council, has served as Garrett County's municipal representative on the Tri-County Council for Western Maryland Inc., and is a member of Grace Lutheran Church and past president of the church's council.

The mayor has also served on the American Red Cross board of directors, the American Heart Association, the Democratic Central Committee for Garrett County, and the Friendsville Town Council.

During his tenure as mayor, Schlosnagle said, numerous projects have been accomplished for the town. The mayor cited cooperation of the town council, local citizens, and various organizations, as well as county and state agencies, as a major component in achieving several of his many goals.

The local water and wastewater treatment plants, which were once owned and operated by the town, were improved and upgraded with more than $1 million worth of state and federal monies. This accomplishment would not have been possible without local letters of support and lobbying campaigns in Annapolis and Washington, said the mayor.

He noted that in the past several years, various state and federal grants have facilitated the development and construction of the Friendsville Head Start Center and the Friendsville Community Center. He was quick to add that a number of local senior citizens actually traveled to Annapolis to lobby legislators for support of the grant funding.

"We have one of the most beautiful community parks in the tri-state area, which was purchased and developed through Program Open Space funding, as well as a lot of volunteer labor," Schlosnagle said.

Last year, Friendsville was one of the 40 statewide recipients of more than $95,000 from the governor's Parks and Playgrounds Program. New lighting at the town's Little League field was installed, along with additional restrooms and new bleachers to enhance the community park.

The mayor also noted that a grant of more than $140,000 was received from the state Community Development Block Grant Program to assist with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers' stream bank stabilization project. This project repaired and enforced a portion of the bank along Bear Creek where flooding has occurred. The Corps contributed more than $240,000 for this project, which was completed last fall.

"Despite our relatively small size, the fact that our town has received these numerous grant monies should be a source of pride and accomplishment for all the citizens of Friendsville," stated Schlosnagle. "We are building hope and prosperity in our town, and as your mayor I promise to continue what we have begun."

He said the town of Friendsville has worked cooperatively during the past several years with the State Highway Administration officials during the $500,000 streetscape project along the state's right of way through the community. Storm drains, sidewalks, handicapped ramps, curbing, gutters, and roadway resurfacing were upgraded. A beautification enhancement to this area included the planting of more than 40 low-growing flowering trees along the length of the project area. Additionally, a small park was completed in the center of town.

Schlosnagle said his administration has worked diligently to bring medical services back into the community. Through a cooperative effort with the Garrett Medical Group, a nurse practitioner now has an active practice in Friendsville. Two doctors are also available when needed, the major added.

According to Schlosnagle, he has also worked on the town's behalf to bring the Friendship Heights Apartment complex to the area, which has increased Friendsville's population, making it the third larges municipality in Garrett County. This has facilitated the lowering of the local tax rate by 8 percent during the last several years, he noted.

"The town's general revenue fund is the strongest that it has ever been, and it is my goal to continue to work to keep our community fiscally sound," he said.

The town recently adopted a revised Comprehensive Development Plan and is currently working on the zoning ordinance with the assistance of the Maryland Department of Planning and the local planning commission.

Schlosnagle said that community pride is "evident" every day, and it reaches a high point during the annual "Clean Up, Paint Up" week that is sponsored by the mayor and town council each spring and fall.

"Conscientious of both the environment and public health concerns, the town contracts with a scrap metal recycler to collect old appliances and recyclable metal items at no cost to the local residents," Schlosnagle explained.

During the holiday season, the mayor said the town "sparkles" with nearly 40 recently purchased lighted decorations that adorn it. "Thanks, in large part, to generous donations by local residents, businesses, and organizations, the community again demonstrates its unity," he said.

The town is also working with the Department of Natural Resources on tree beautification projects. During the past several years, Friendsville has received the DNR's PLANT (People Loving and Nurturing Trees) Community Award. "This year, Friendsville has applied for the gold level PLANT Community Award, and we are hopeful of achieving this level," stated Schlosnagle.

"We have recently begun a curbside recycling program for our local residents, which not only will cut down on the tipping fees paid to the county landfill, but also serve to protect our environment," he said. "We are also looking at ways to encourage economic development in our area, and have been in contact with various local state officials to request assistance. Currently the town has over 30 businesses and organizations located here. Many are your basic stores, and some are quite unique. We still have room to grow."

This past summer the town held a series of strategic planning meetings on economic development that were funded through the county and state. "I am serving on our Community Legacy Task Force because I have wanted to see our town continue to grow," said Schlosnagle. He is also active with the Garrett County Mayors Association, which meets on a monthly basis.

"This administration from the very beginning has worked to build, strengthen, and unify our community," Schlosnagle said. "We are headed in the right direction for a bright future for all of our citizens. My desire is to follow through with my goals for the betterment of Friendsville."

GARRETT COVENANT HOUSE HAS OPEN HOUSE – The Garrett Covenant House, located in the old Accident Elementary School, was open to the public in an open house celebration on Sunday, with approximately 70 people in attendance. Guests learned about the services of Garrett Covenant House, which are for the elderly. While the facility is not yet officially open, organizers hope to begin regular hours soon. Hours of operation are to be Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. The program will provide transportation to and from the center and for medical appointments when possible; breakfast, lunch, and afternoon snack; the services of RNs, LPNs, and CNAs; and medical monitoring, treatments, and medication management. There will also be showers, shampoos, haircuts, nail care, and some laundry provided. Exercise and various activities, games, picnics, parties, entertainment, nurse/patient counseling and teaching, and advocacy are also involved in this program, a spokesperson said. The Covenant House is currently enrolling participants and may be contacted at 301-746-7404.

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

Very little is new in Bittinger this week. Today is Groundhog Day and, of course, he saw his shadow, which means that we are supposed to get six more weeks of winter. Surprise, Surprise. When is winter ever over here before mid-March, if by then?

I can remember two major snowstorms in late March or early April so we always get our three months of winter weather.

Not any groundhog could make an appearance this morning here in Bittinger, as the snow averages three feet of hard-packed, covering every acre. He would have to be one determined groundhog to make it to the surface and see his shadow. But today we have the best weather we have had for weeks, with no fresh snow overnight and very little wind, which is a real shock to me. I don't think the wind could move the heavy snow already on the ground.

But it was a different story last week and the weekend. Peat Moss Road was closed and Denny Buckel had to wade through about two feet of snow to get to his house He had a pretty rough walk, as it was cold and there were fierce winds. The county road department finally arrived on Sunday with their biggest machine to blast through the drifts.

Sad to say that the Pittsnogle pair of pastors have completed their move to Keith's parish in the Red House area. Their new phone number is 301-334-4321. I certainly will miss Pat's presence in Bittinger.

Emmanuel Lutheran Church will hold an all-day meeting to develop our new mission statement. It is easy to remember the date, as it is February 14, from 8:45 a.m. to 4 p.m. The day will include small-group discussions, worship, and lunch. As many members as possible are encouraged to participate, including our young ones, as they are our church's future. Perhaps it would be a good way to escape Valentine's Day misery for someone like me, who has no valentine of her own. This is the first Valentine's Day since I was 16 that I have no hope of a valentine. How sad, but unfortunately true.

After being snowbound and forced to stay home for more than a whole week, my mother finally hit the road as soon as possible to much better weather in Winchester to visit her friend, Betty Sacra. She got back just in time before the forcasted frozen rain or winter mix that was supposed to arrive Monday night. We already have plenty of ice, and little Rheann Dodge must be in heaven since she is crazy about icicles. Kevin recently took her to Swallow Falls to see the ultimate ice spectacular show on the rocks above Muddy Creek Falls. But if she just wants to see ordinary house icicles she could enjoy the view at my house. I had one really big one about the size of an elephant trunk, but it broke. Also, Brenneman's Store has quite a nice display of them.

I never saw my lane so icy as this winter, or the roads so icy, either. But so far, so good, as for the electric supply (knock on wood). Today I burned the last few drops of fuel oil in my tank to warm up my house if worse comes to worse tonight.

Tough week for Terps fans with two upsets at the hands of Maryland ACC rival teams, Clemson, North Carolina, and even Georgia Tech. But this year they have a very young team and it looks like they have a bright future. Not much consolation for our Huskies, either.

Unfortunately, Emmanuel's prayer list once again grows even longer. Last weekend Sharon Buckel's father, Harold Griffith from Friendsville, suffered a serious stroke. He is hospitalized at Garrett Memorial. Let's pray he is out of danger and soon on the road to recovery.

How is it possible that someone with a young heart is dead on this snowy day, February 3? I learned the sad news only one month after my old friend, Dennis Friend of Swanton, came home to Garrett County from Baltimore, not to die, but to get better. But he lost his final battle yesterday. I would rather remember him when the lilac bush he gave me from his mother's bush is in full bloom, if we ever reach spring after this never-ending winter. The little twig I planted soon after I was married now is a big 6-foot high bush, just as tall as Dennis was. As Claire told me before when another young loved one died, "He is happier now."

I doubt that many of my readers know Dennis. With a partner Bill, they had a very charming antique store in a little old church in Swanton, where they sold not just antiques, but also some special stained-glass kaliedoscopes. Mine is my favorite possession. Yes, he was different, but mainly because he was so special.

AND LOVE CAME TUMBLING DOWN, as 14-year-old Sarah Salmon donated 13 inches of her own hair recently to Locks of Love so another child can have hair. Anyone interested in donating at least 10 inches of hair may call Gwen at Heavenly Bodies Salon, Mtn. Lake Park, at 301-334-0902. Donation haircuts are free. Salmon is the daughter of Sherri Salmon of Grantsville.

Financial Aid Filing Assistance Offered At ACM

College Goal Sunday, an event that provides free professional assistance to persons interested in filing for college financial aid, is set for 2 p.m. this Sunday, Feb. 8, at Allegany College of Maryland in Cumberland. College bound students attending College Goal Sunday can receive help in completing the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA), the form required by all colleges in the country to qualify for scholarships, grants, and loans.

Students need to bring proof of 2003 income and benefits information, such as completed IRS federal income tax returns and W-2 forms, or proof of untaxed income, for the student and the parent(s). For further information, persons may call 866-GO2GOAL or consult the Web site www.GO-2GOAL.org.

The local event is one of 14 similar sessions taking place the same day across Maryland, Delaware, and Washington, D.C. College Goal Sunday, a non-profit campaign, is sponsored by the DE-DC-MD Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators, and is funded through grants provided by the Lumina Foundation for Education and USA Funds. The event is endorsed by the U.S. Department of Education, the Maryland Higher Education Commission, the Maryland State Department of Education, the Delaware Department of Education, and the Washington, D.C., public school system.

Crop Insurance Deadline Nearing For Md. Farmers

Maryland farmers are reminded that the final date to apply for crop insurance on most insurable spring-planted crops for the 2004 crop year is Monday, March 15, according to the Raleigh Regional Office of the USDA Risk Management Agency. Current policyholders likewise have until March 15 to make any changes to existing contracts.

Crop insurance provides protection against losses in crop production due to natural perils including drought, hail, frost, excessive moisture, and other adverse weather conditions.

New forage seedings will be insurable in Maryland for the first time this year. Other crops with a March 15 sales closing date include corn, fresh market sweet corn, fresh market tomatoes, grain sorghum, oats, potatoes, processing beans, processing sweet corn, processing tomatoes, soybeans, and tobacco.

Crop Revenue Coverage for corn, grain sorghum, and soybeans is also available to provide protection against a decline in market prices.

Producers are strongly urged to contact a local crop insurance agent as soon as possible for premium quotes and additional details. For a list of crop insurance agents in this area, farmers may contact the Garrett County Farm Service Agency office at 301-334-6954, or consult the Risk Management Agency's Web site at www-3.rma.usda.gov/tools/agents/.

Risk Management Workshop Slated For Md. Farmers

A "Risk Assessed Management" workshop for Maryland farmers will detail Crop Revenue Coverage (CRC) on Wednesday, Feb. 18, from 8:30 a.m. to 2:45 p.m. at the Mt. Airy Carnival Grounds in Montgomery County. Producers who are interested in these free workshops should make reservations as soon as possible.

The presenter will be Kansas State University professor Dr. Art Barnaby, author of the recently published Managing Risk Through Crop Insurance. Barnaby has been honored for his work by the American Agricultural Economics Association.

The workshop will provide participants with case studies in which they "manage" farms on paper using crop insurance and grain management tools. The workshops have been offered to farmers throughout the Midwest, and have been profiled extensively in agricultural publications such as Successful Farming magazine.

"Education is a powerful tool in keeping farming profitable, and I encourage farmers to participate in one of the sessions offered," said Maryland Secretary of Agriculture and Wicomico County farmer Lewis R. Riley. "A profitable agriculture industry is essential in Maryland and to support Governor Ehrlich's efforts to preserve farmland and sustain the state's rural economy."

The workshop is a collaborative project of the Maryland Department of Agriculture, the Delaware Department of Agriculture, the University of Delaware, the University of Maryland and the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Risk Management Agency. Identical sessions are also being offered on Maryland's Eastern Shore and in Delaware.

For more details and reservations for the Mt. Airy meeting, local farmers may contact Montgomery County Maryland Cooperative Extension agent Doug Tregoning at 301-590-2809.

CROP INSURANCE DEADLINE APPROACHING FOR WEST VIRGINIA FARMERS

West Virginia farmers are reminded that the final date to apply for crop insurance on insurable spring-planted crops for the 2004 crop year is March 15, according to the Raleigh Regional Office of the USDA Risk Management Agency. Current policyholders likewise have until March 15 to make any changes to existing contracts.

Crop insurance provides protection against losses in crop production due to natural perils, including drought, hail, frost, excessive moisture, and other adverse weather conditions. Crops with a sales closing date of March 15 include corn, oats, soybeans, and tobacco. USDA ANNOUNCES COMMODITY CREDIT CORPORATION LENDING RATES FOR FEBRUARY 2004

The interest rate for 1995 and prior crop year commodity loans disbursed by USDA's Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) during February 2004 is 1.250 percent, down from 1.375 percent in January 2004. For 1996 and subsequent crop year commodity and marketing assistance loans, the interest rate for loans disbursed during February 2004 is 2.250 percent, down from 2.375 in January 2004. The interest rate for farm storage facility loans approved in February 2004 is 3.750 percent, unchanged from January 2004. The interest rate for sugar storage facility loans is 4.750 percent for February 2004, down from 4.875 percent in January 2004.

Past monthly releases announcing interest rates charged by CCC on commodity and marketing assistance loans disbursed for that particular month reflected the interest rate charged the CCC by the U.S. Treasury for that month. This was the interest rate specified by the CCC since Jan. 1, 1982, but the process of establishing the interest rate was changed by a provision of the Federal Agriculture Improvement and Reform Act of 1996 (the Act), enacted on Apr. 4, 1996.

Section 163 of the Act requires that monthly interest rates applicable to commodity and marketing assistance loans are to be 100 basis points – or 1 percent – greater than the rate determined under the applicable interest rate formula in effect on Oct. 1, 1995. This formula resulted in a rate equivalent to the amount the U.S. Treasury charged the CCC for borrowing for the month.

The provisions of Section 163 of the Act are not retroactive. Accordingly, this and subsequent monthly interest rate announcements will carry two sets of rates: one for 1995 and prior crop year commodity loans, and one for 1996 and subsequent crop year commodity and marketing assistance loans.

Further program information is available from USDA Farm Service Agency's Financial Management Division at 703-305-1386.

The Only Thing Certain Is Change!

You know that there are no guarantees in life. Just when something is certain to happen, it doesn't. The expression "The only thing for certain is that there will always be change" sums it up well. Selling your home is one of those times you want some certain answers to important questions, questions like: "How soon will my home sell?" or "What is the right price?" Answers to those questions can be critical, yet, like real life, the answers may be elusive. Here's why. Buyers will decide to purchase your home based on comparisons they make against others currently for sale. Measuring factors like space, condition, and location of the home against the asking price, they make a value judgment based on their own value system, not yours. That decision is based partially on facts, figures and logic, and partially on emotion. The most appropriate question sellers should ask is, "How can we market our home to present the most positive impression possible to buyers?" The answer to that question can be certainly provided by a real estate professional.

Carefully choose an agent and enjoy the benefits of professional representation and an early sale at the best possible price. Through a detailed analysis of your home and its value, the agent will help you position your home to sell with a reasonable degree of certainty.

If you're planning to sell your home soon and would like information on its current value, give me a call today!

MTN. LAKE PARK WATER SYSTEM NOTICE OF VIOLATION

Surface Water Treatment Technique

The Garrett County Department of Public Utilities is providing the following notice regarding the Mtn. Lake Park Water System. The springs for the water system have been evaluated for protection against surface water influence as required by the Surface Water Treatment Rule (SWTR), as adopted in the Code of Maryland; COMAR 26.04.01, Quality of Drinking Water in Maryland. The spring was determined to be under the direct influence of surface water by the Maryland Department of the Environment. As a result, this source requires additional treatment, such as filtration, or replacement with a protected water source. Federal and state regulations require that the Mtn. Lake Park Water System install filtration.

What is the Department of Public Utilities doing?

The Mtn. Lake Park Water System disinfects the drinking water that is produced from the spring. The drinking water is tested monthly for coliform bacteria and results have met state and federal standards.

The Department of Public Utilities is in the process of testing the design for a new water treatment facility. After the pilot test is completed, design for the project will proceed.

What should I do?

People with severely compromised immune systems, infants, and some elderly may be at increased risk. These individuals should seek advice about drinking water from their health care providers. General guidelines on ways to lessen the risk of infection by microbes are available from EPA's Safe Drinking Water Act Hotline (800-426-4791). If you have specific health concerns, consult your physician.

What does this mean?

This is not an emergency. This notification is provided to advise Mtn. Lake Park Water customers of the treatment requirements for their water system. Any questions or concerns should be directed to Allen Festerman at 301-387-9141. Please share this information with others that may find it useful.

Date of Notice: February 2004

FRANKLIN UNIVERSITY
Your potential. Our promise.
201 S. Grant Ave. • Columbus, Ohio 43215-5399

Garrett College now offers Bachelor Degrees through Franklin University.

What is the Community College Alliance and how does it work?
The Garrett/Franklin Alliance is an agreement between Franklin University in Columbus, Ohio and Garrett College. Franklin accepts your entire associate's degree and then allows you to take bridge courses at Garrett that are especially designated for Franklin's bachelor degrees. At the same time, you can log on to the Internet to earn your degree from Franklin by taking online courses to complete the minimum 40 hours required for each major.

How does it work?
After receiving an associates degree from Garrett or any community college, go on to get a Bachelor's degree online from Franklin University.

You can get a degree in any of these majors.

- Accounting
- Applied Management
- Business Administration
- Computer Science
- Digital Communication
- Information Technology
- Health Care Management
- Management
- Management Information Sciences
- Public Safety Management

How does a degree online work?
Garrett personally advises you through the whole process. All classes are taught online and you can log-on and learn from home or come to our campus to use our facilities, including our library, computer labs and tutoring services.

How much does it cost?
This alliance saves students money by allowing the majority of the bachelors degree to be taken at Garrett. This means that for bridge courses, Garrett County residents pay $76 per credit hour, Out-of-County Maryland students pay $165 per credit hour and Out-of-State students pay $208 per credit hour. Franklin online courses tuition range from $224 - $280 per credit hour depending on your major.

How do I apply?
Applying is easy. All you have to do is contact Connie Meyers at the Student Assistance Center at Garrett College at 301-387-3044.

Is Financial Aid available?
Yes! You are eligible to apply for financial aid through FAFSA as long as you have a high school diploma, GED, or an associates degree.

Student Chosen As Ambassador To Australia, N.Z.

Ashley Musgrove, granddaughter of Gay and Virginia Roth of Thomas, recently interviewed and was accepted into the People to People Student Ambassador Program.

A junior at Bishop Wash School in Cumberland, Md., Ashley is one of 400 students who applied for the opportunity to travel to Australia and New Zealand from June 26 through July 17. After interviews on various subjects, the original number of students was narrowed down to the final 30, who will make the trip through the international exchange program.

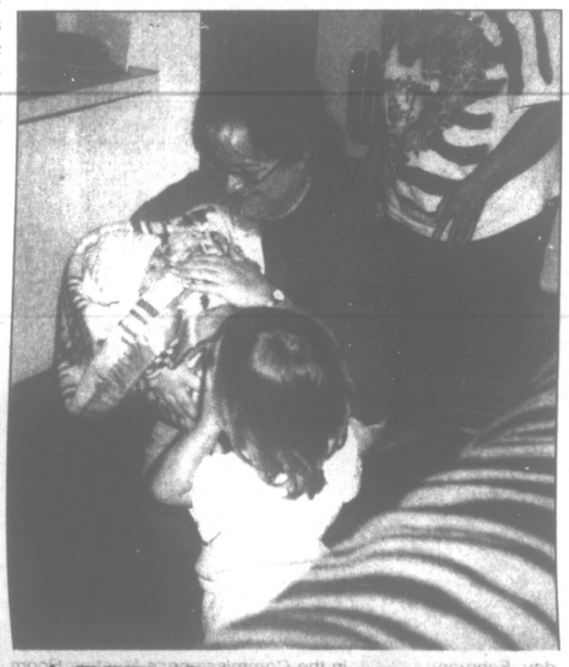
People to People Student Ambassadors, with whom Ashley will be traveling, was founded in 1956 by Dwight D. Eisenhower. He had a dream of uniting the countries of the world by forming cross-cultural relationships of youth. The program is still headed by his successors.

According to a program spokesperson, People to People provides opportunities for grade school, junior and senior high students to "enjoy and explore" domestic and foreign destinations, learning about the history, government, economy, and culture of the areas they visit.

Before the group leaves this June, Ashley will have to attend 12 hours of training with her travel companions and three group leaders. During these meetings she will become familiar with the places she will visit and some of the slang terms that are used in Australia and new Zealand.

The total cost of the program is more than $5,000, which will cover travel expenses, meals, and activities that are involved with the 22-day program of exchange. The money must be raised by May. Persons who would like to make a contribution of any size toward Ashley's trip may send it to People to People Student Ambassadors, c/o Ashley Musgrove, 15520 Run Rd. S.E., Cumberland, MD 21502.

FAMILY GIVES STORK PINS IN APPRECIATION – Scott and Lyvonne Harsh, Eglon, recently presented stork pins in appreciation to the Union Ambulance crew and family members who arrived at their home early one morning in September for the "very quick but calm" birth of their son, Evan Scott Harsh. According to grandmother Ellen Harsh, by the time she drove the three miles from her house the baby was born. Dr. Sotiere Savopoulos assisted via the telephone. Pictured above, in the front from the left, are Scott Harsh, father; Carolyn Harsh, grandmother, holding Evan; Ellen Harsh, grandmother, holding sister Megan; and Lyvonne Harsh, mother. In the back are Jeff Harsh, uncle; Cindy Harsh, aunt; Keith Douglas, Union Ambulance driver; Jenny Harsh, aide; Gary Feather, EMT; Stan Harsh; and Rose Ina Harsh, paramedic. Cindy Harsh, who assisted in the delivery, is pictured introducing Megan to her new brother. Megan quickly offered him her "binkie," according to grandmother Ellen Harsh.



AURORA/EGLON

Thurman Nair of Aurora is reportedly still very ill at Sacred Heart Hospital in Cumberland, but showing slight improvement.

Word was received from Lorraine Fike, mother of Melvin Fike of Polo, Ill., that Mel left Tuesday from his home for Chicago, from which point he was to fly to Switzerland via London. He will be receiving treatment this week. Many of those who have helped provide financial assistance for this trip will have received a "thank you" with a continued request to keep him in their prayers.

Mrs. Gladys Lockhart of Amboy apparently is critically ill at Preston Memorial Hospital, where she was admitted Jan. 27.

Mrs. Kathy Collins of Horse Shoe Run is recovering at Ruby Memorial Hospital from surgery for recent removal of a kidney.

Mrs. Helen Lipscomb, Aurora, returned home Friday after having both a pacemaker and defibrillator implanted on Thursday.

Robert Wotring of Aurora is also a surgical patient at Ruby Memorial Hospital. One portion of surgery was performed last week, and he is expecting to have a further procedure this week.

Weekend visitors in Aurora with Mrs. Marguerite Myers were her daughter and son-in-law, Mary and Alan Teets of Middletown, Del.

CORRESPONDENT'S NOTE

After nearly a week of constant and unrelenting wind, accompanied by a large amount of snow, respite of three days with sunshine seems a godsend. Through it all, most people have continued to be out and about, but the forecast of more snow this week, especially if atop an ice-coating, will make for dangerous conditions both at home and work.

Free Tax Return Help Available In Terra Alta

Taxpayers can obtain free assistance in preparing their tax returns every Thursday from 10 a.m. to noon, February 5 through April 15, at the Terra Alta town hall. There are no age or income restrictions.

The assistance is provided by VITA (Volunteer Income Tax Assistance) volunteers. They are trained by the Internal Revenue Service to insure full credits and refunds.

Taxpayers can expedite the process by bringing copies of their 2002 returns, as well as all information needed for 2003 returns.

The Town of Terra Alta supports the VITA program by providing space and duplicating services.

Spaghetti Dinner Set To Benefit Danny Savage

A spaghetti dinner to benefit Danny Savage will be held Saturday, Feb. 7, from 4 to 8 p.m. at the Mt. Storm VFW Post 6735. The snow date will be Feb. 14.

Dinner includes spaghetti with meat sauce, garlic bread, salad, dessert, and coffee or iced tea.

Cost is $5 for adults and $3 for children.

The dinner is sponsored by VFW Post 6735 and the Ladies Auxiliary.

SWANTON NEWS

OTTERBEIN CHURCH

Pastor Vickie Minnich will hold a quarterly ministry team meeting at the parsonage on Monday, Feb. 9, at 6 p.m., weather permitting.

Anyone interested in the puppet training may still call June McClosky at 301-387-2990 for more information. This training will take place on February 28, 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at Swanton Otterbein U.M. Church.

COMMUNITY

There will be a buckwheat cake/pancake dinner at the community center this Saturday, Feb. 7, beginning at 4 p.m.

The community is saddened by the death of John Fleming, and sympathy is also extended to Luella Baker following the loss of her sister-in-law, Beth Friend.

David and Lissa Bush arrived from Florida to be with Lissa's family following the death of her father, John Fleming. Also coming from Germany for her brother-in-law's funeral was Christie Riley.

David and Jancie Schofield, Hagerstown, were visiting family in the area, as was his brother, Richard Schofield, New York.

Rev. Meredith Ball, former pastor at Otterbein, and Mrs. Ball were in town to help with the funeral of John Fleming on Sunday afternoon.

Guests of Sandy Friend over the weekend were her daughter, Lori Robine, and family of Hedgesville, W.Va.

Shayna Sweitzer won the Elks National Hoop Shoot contest for the Western Region of Maryland at the competition held in Hagerstown on Saturday. Shayna made 17 out of 25 shots. She will go on to the state level on February 21 in Frederick.

GCCAC To Offer New Self Help Housing Program

The Garrett County Mutual Self Help Program, a new home construction program of the Garrett County Community Action Committee (GCCAC), will be detailed in an informational workshop set for Tuesday, Feb. 17, from 6 to 8 p.m. at the Mary Browning Senior Center in Oakland. Five single family bi-level and tri-level homes are planned for construction at the Overlook in Oakland as part of the new program's first project.

"Like Trading Places on television, five qualifying neighbors will work together in creating their own homes," explained GCCAC Housing Services director Cynthia A. Sharon. "This program is unique in that each of the neighbors will have as much as $20,000 or more in equity when they move into their newly built homes while only needing cash-on-hand of less than $500. The equity in their homes would have resulted from the work each neighbor has placed into constructing these homes."

Interfaith Housing of Western Maryland will be providing a construction site manager to assist the five neighbors with ongoing construction training and supervision.

Persons interested in attending the introductory session may register by calling Deb Swiger or Denise Householder at Garrett County Community Action at 301-334-9431 by Thursday, Feb. 12. The Mary Browning Senior Center is located at 104 East Center Street.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING
GARRETT COUNTY
WATER AND SEWER MASTER PLAN

Notice is hereby given that a public hearing of the County Commissioners of Garrett County is scheduled for Tuesday, February 17, 2004, at 11:00 a.m. in the Garrett County Commissioners' public meeting room, located at the Courthouse, Oakland, MD, to consider three amendments to the Garrett County Water and Sewer Master Plan.

The justification for these three amendments is listed below:

1. The Town of Grantsville intends to replace 2" galvanized water line in the Springs Road area with 1,200 ft. of 10" PVC, 3 fire hydrants and related apparatus. This project will provide adequate water supply for residential customers, serve as a water source for Grantsville Fire Department and provide fire protection for the service area.

2. In 2003, the Town of Oakland annexed properties in the Memorial Drive area. Oakland intends to provide water and sewer service to approximately twenty residential customers in this area.

3. The Town of Accident will rehabilitate 23,000 ft. of 6", 8", and 10" sewer line using high-density polyethylene deformed, reformed pipe liner. In addition customer service laterals will be reinstated, 77 manholes will be rehabilitated and wastewater treatment plant improvements will be made providing for an increase to 90,000 gallons per day from 50,000 gallons per day permissible discharge.

Interested persons will be heard at the public hearing on February 17, 2004, to determine if the amendments to the Garrett County Water and Sewer Master Plan are necessary for the public health, safety, and welfare of the residents of the current or proposed service areas and if the projects are feasible financially and from an engineering standpoint.

OAKLAND AR/T/A DEER PARK, MD 21550

Under a power of sale contained in a certain Deed of Trust from Gary Lee McGinnis, Henry E. Moore, Jr. and Tamara Moore, dated August 15, 2002, and recorded in Liber 912, Folio 184 among the Land Records of Garrett Co., MD, default having occurred under the terms thereof, the Sub. Trustees will sell at public auction at the Circuit Court for Garrett Co., at the Court House Door, Oakland, on

FEBRUARY 26, 2004, AT 2:00 PM

ALL THAT FEE-SIMPLE LOT OF GROUND, together with the buildings and improvements thereon situated in Garrett Co., MD, and more fully described in the aforesaid Deed of Trust.

The property, which is improved by a dwelling, will be sold in an "as is" condition and subject to conditions, restrictions and agreements of record affecting the same, if any, and with no warranty of any kind.

Terms of Sale: A deposit of $6,000 in the form of cash, certified check, or in any other form suitable to the Substitute Trustees in their sole discretion, shall be required at the time of sale, except no deposit shall be required of the secured party, its successors or assigns. Balance of the purchase price to be paid in cash within ten days of final ratification of sale by the Circuit Court for Garrett Co. If the purchaser fails to go to settlement, the deposit shall be forfeited and the property may be resold at the purchaser's risk and expense. The defaulting purchaser shall not be entitled to any surplus proceeds or profits resulting from any resale of the property. Interest to be paid on the unpaid purchase money at the rate pursuant to the Deed of Trust Note from the date of sale to the date funds are received in the office of the Sub. Trustees. In the event settlement is delayed for any reason, there shall be no abatement of interest. Taxes, ground rent, water rent, condominium fees and/or homeowner association dues, all public charges/assessments payable on an annual basis, including sanitary and/or metropolitan district charges, if applicable, to be adjusted for the current year to date of sale and assumed thereafter by the purchaser. The purchaser is responsible for any amount in excess of $500 of outstanding water bills, if any, incurred prior to date of sale. Cost of all documentary stamps, transfer taxes and settlement expenses shall be borne by the purchaser. Purchaser shall be responsible for obtaining physical possession of the property. Purchaser assumes the risk of loss or damage to the property from the date of sale forward. If the Sub. Trustees are unable to convey good and marketable title, the purchaser's sole remedy in law and equity shall be limited to a refund of the deposit. In the event the sale is not ratified for any reason, the purchaser's sole remedy, at law or equity, is the return of the deposit. Additional terms, if any, to be announced at sale. Purchaser agrees to pay $245.00 at settlement, to the Seller's attorney, for review of the settlement documents.

EMPLOYMENT

HELP WANTED – Garrett County Memorial Hospital has an immediate opening for a part-time certified physician assistant or nurse practitioner to work in our emergency department. Under the direct supervision of the emergency department physician, the PA-C or CRNP will work primarily weekends and holidays. This position requires a current Maryland license including the required credentials for granting prescriptive authority. At least 2 years' experience in primary, urgent or emergency care is preferred. Professional knowledge and skills for patient diagnosis and treatment in the emergency department setting are required. GCMH, a progressive rural community hospital, is nestled in the scenic mountains of beautiful western Maryland, a growing community with major businesses moving into the area, a four-season recreational area including Maryland's largest freshwater lake and the Wisp Ski Resort. Our ED provides over 18,000 ER visits per year to residents and visitors of Garrett County, Md., and the West Virginia counties of Preston, Tucker, Mineral and Grant. The hospital is currently in the midst of an $8 million renovation, which includes a new, larger emergency department. Qualified applicant may fax résumé to: Annette Livengood, Garrett County Memorial Hospital, 301-533-4328. EOE: H/V/M/F. 49-2.

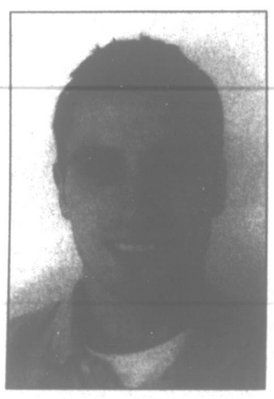
On Dean's List

Miriam R. Sincell, Oakland, was named to the dean's list at Bucknell University, Lewisburg, Pa., for the fall semester of 2003.

A student must earn a grade point average of 3.5 or higher on a 4.0 scale to receive dean's list recognition.

The student is a 2002 graduate of Southern High School and the daughter of Benjamin and Beverly Sincell, Spring Glade Road.

Local Student On Dean's List



Jarod Broadwater, a senior at the University of Maryland, College Park, has been notified that he is on the dean's list with a 3.83 grade-point average.

He recently returned from Italy, where he studied during the winter term. After graduation in May, he plans to attend graduate school at the University of Colorado at Boulder.

Broadwater works part time at the Charles P. Johnson engineering firm in Silver Spring. He is the son of Dale and Sharon Broadwater, Mtn. Lake Park.

Two Injured In Friendsville Rd. Crash Tuesday

A two-vehicle collision early Tuesday afternoon on Friendsville Road injured two persons in a mishap Maryland State Police troopers attributed to a snow-covered road surface. No charges were filed in the 12:24 p.m. crash.

Police said that a 2001 Ford (unspecified model) was traveling south when it crossed the center line near Kisner Road and struck an oncoming 1999 Ford Explorer in the rear of its driver's side. The operator of the first vehicle, Michael J. Stripling, 24, and his passenger, Robin Rotruck, age not reported, both of Friendsville, were taken to Garrett County Memorial Hospital by the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad. The Explorer's driver, David Conrad Bush, 41, Orlando, Fla., was not injured.

The Friendsville Volunteer Fire Department assisted at the accident scene.

Monthly Exercise, Nutrition Program Set In Friendsville

A free "Walk Ways" exercise and nutrition program will get under way at the Friendsville Senior Center beginning at 1 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 17. The program, which will meet once per month over four consecutive months, is sponsored by the Food Stamp Nutrition Education Program and the University of Maryland Cooperative Extension.

The first session will be presented by Dr. Jennifer Thorn Bentlejewski, a registered dietitian with the Extension Service, who will teach participants how to safely increase physical activity through walking. The program will also provide strategies and tips for healthier eating. Participants will receive a pedometer/step counter to track their physical activity during the four-month series.

Class space is limited, and registration must be made before Thursday, Feb. 12, by calling the local Extension Office at 301-334-6960.

COMMUNITY RESOURCE PUBLISHED – The Garrett County Chamber of Commerce 2004 Community Profile & Membership Directory has been published and will soon be available. The first part of this 184-page reference guide contains information on state and Garrett County governments, each of the eight municipalities, town parks, state parks, schools, health services, clubs and organizations, and more, according to a chamber spokesperson. The second part contains the directory of chamber member businesses grouped alphabetically and categorically. "We are very proud of this publication. It is an excellent resource for local history, economic statistics, and contact information for agencies and businesses," said chamber president Charlie Ross. The publications will be available free of charge at all branches of the Ruth Enlow Library system of Garrett County and at the Garrett County Visitors Center, McHenry. For information on delivery dates, persons may call the Visitors Center at 301-387-4386 or 301-245-4400.

YES, HE IS THAT TALL – Dwayne "Swoops" Simpson is in fact jumping up just a few inches in this photo, but even standing flat-footed, the 6-foot, 7-inch Harlem Rocket towered over almost everyone at Monday night's fund-raiser for the Southern Garrett Rescue Squad. However, teammate Ricky "7-Footer" Lopes, who stands at 7-feet, 2-inches, made even Swoops look short. The Rockets entertained a sold-out crowd as they played a wildly out-of-bounds basketball game with the 911 Outlaws, a team consisting of local law enforcement officers as well as rescue and medical professionals. The game was fraught with hilarious antics by the Rockets, who kept the Outlaws guessing and the crowd laughing. The squad raised somewhere between $2,500 and $3,000 through the event, and raised the spirits of all who attended. A squad spokesperson said it is hoped that the Rockets will return next year for another fun-filled evening, or maybe two, to accommodate what will surely be another sold-out crowd. Ehrlich's Budget Includes $5M For County Projects

Gov. Robert Ehrlich recently submitted his Fiscal Year 2005 capital budget of $847 million. Included in the budget is more than $5 million for Garrett County projects.

Slated to receive funding are Garrett College's Learning Resource Center, $2,842,000; Northern High School, $598,000; the Deep Creek Lake State Park wastewater facility, $555,000; Accident's wastewater system, $350,000; the Garrett County exhibit/trade center, $300,000; the Deer Park water system, $250,000; and the Keyser's Ridge sewer system, $150,00.

Also included in the budget are the Grantsville storm water system, $100,000; Program Open Space projects, $85,118; Maple Grove stream restoration, $29,000; and $5,000 for the waterway improvement fund.

The governor's press office said the capital budget emphasizes Ehrlich's pledge to support Maryland's education system through school construction, make significant contributions to the restoration of the Chesapeake Bay through wastewater treatment improvements, and prioritize public safety through the expansion of correctional institutions.

"The capital budget reflects my promises made to the citizens of Maryland by striking a balance between the projects that demand our attention today and those we look forward to in the future," Ehrlich said "Our resources will continue to be directed toward the safety and future of our children and the health of our environment."

The governor has allocated 53 percent of his budget for education, 17 percent for health and environment, 11 percent for public safety, 5 percent for commerce, and the remaining 14 percent for "other projects."

Budget funding sources include $655 million in gen-

100 YEARS AND STILL GOING STRONG – A casual visitor of Mr. Chauncey Friend would surely be stunned to realize that this healthy, finely alert man celebrated his 100th birthday this month. The retired school teacher of Friendsville was honored Saturday by friends and family at an open house, held at the Sand Spring Church of God Fellowship Hall. In this photograph, the centenarian is congratulated by former student and long-time friend Gene Sines, along with his wife Lois. See story on page A-5.

Accidental Fires Damage Houses, Injure Occupants

Two area houses were damaged and two occupants of one of them sustained burns from accidental fires that both occured last Friday.

The first alarm was sounded at 1:40 a.m., sending volunteers from the Oakland, Terra Alta, Deer Park, and Gorman fire departments to the Lisa Beckman residence at 806 Crellin Mine Road.

According to John Feather, chief of the Oakland VFD, Ms. Beckman's young son was apparently burning a candle in a second-floor room of the two-story, wood-frame structure. The candle ignited some combustible material.

The child and Ms. Beckman's unidentified boy friend both sustained second-degree burns to their hands.

The fire was quickly brought under control, Feaher said, and damage was primarily confined to one room. He estimated damages to be $5,000, and noted that the couple did not have any insurance on the property.

The boy friend and the child were both treated at Garrett County Memorial Hospital and released.

Also responding to the scene were the county air cascade vehicle from Deep Creek Fire Company, the Southern Rescue Squad, and an Allegheny Power

Changes Made To School Calendar Approved By BOE

The Garrett County Board of Education approved the recommendations by the school calendar committee for changes in the 2003-2004 school calendar as a result of having missed eight school days as of Feb. 6.

The first change to the calendar is that school will be in session on Monday, Feb. 16, Presidents' Day. According to Ervin Fink, director of finance/human resources, the committee felt very strongly that because of the number of days already missed it was necessary to have school on Presidents' Day. This will also allow completion of another day of instruction before some of the state testing.

School will also be in session on Easter Monday, April 12. School was in session last Easter Monday and had good attendance, Fink added. The committee said it felt that this instructional day is more effective in April than in June.

After much discussion, the committee recommended that school not be held on Election Day. Six schools are used as polling places, and the committee said it believed that traffic and parking concerns and safety issues might discourage some voters from going to the polls.

The committee added that the school system

MeadWestvaco To Eliminate 50 Jobs At Luke Mill

MeadWestvaco's Luke mill expects to eliminate approximately 50 bargaining unit positions during the next several months as part of a corporatewide productivity initiative.

The initiative, announced by MeadWestvaco in December 2003, calls for, among other items, the elimination of approximately 1,000 full-time positions throughout the corporation during 2004.

"These staffing reductions at the Luke mill are necessary in order to reduce our operating costs and to improve our competitive position," said Roger Dandridge, vice president of Luke operations. "While it's extremely difficult to see employees being laid off, these cost-reduction initiatives are being taken across the corporation to help MeadWestvaco offset the effects of a weak economy and other market-related challenges.

"No major pieces of equipment will be idled, and the Luke mill's total production capacity will not be affected by these staffing reduction," concluded Dandridge.

Current employment at the Luke mill is approximately 1,250.

Schlosnagle To Continue Serving As Town Mayor

By a better than 6-1 margin, Spencer Schlosnagle was re-elected mayor of Friendsville over Terry E. Spear in Tuesday's municipal election. Schlosnagle received 112 votes to Spear's 17.

The three councilpersons receiving the most votes were Thomas L. Fike with 87, Robert G. Sines with 76, and Harry H. Griffith with 58.

Also on the ballot were Herschel H. Allen III receiving 45 votes, Frances E. Friend with 52, and Maureen Stewart with 37.

According to Robin Sines, chairperson of the election board, 137 persons voted.

Slight Increase In Building Permits Issued Last Year

The Garrett County Office of Planning and Zoning has released its annual report on building permit totals for 2003. Jim Torrington, permits and inspector coordinator, presented the data to the Garrett County commissioners last week.

The total number of permits issued in 2003 increased less than 1 percent from the previous year, according to Torrington. In '03, 742 were issued, while 737 were issued the previous year. Overall, builder declared value also increased by 13.55 percent and total square footage by 17.17 percent.

Torrington noted that the total declared value of the permits was nearly $97 million for 2003. Planning and Zoning officials had thought the figure would top the $100 million mark for the year. The total square footage was 1,825,928.

Building at Deep Creek Lake, however, has slowed slightly. "There's a little bit of a change in single-family housing," Torrington said. The number of permits for single-family homes in the Deep Creek Lake area decreased from 186 in '02 to 178 last year.

The number of permits for single-family homes in the rest of the county, however, has increased. In '02, 107 were issued, compared to 138 in '03.

"It's a nice, equitable spread," said Commissioner Ernie Gregg, noting that building was starting to spread more evenly throughout the county. In 2003, about 56 percent of the permits for single-family homes were issued for the lake area, compared to nearly 64 percent the previous year.

Torrington noted that the number of commercial/institutional permits issued had increased by 74.07 percent from the previous year. In 2003, 47 of those permits were issued, while 27 were issued in 2002.

Gregg called the increase "significant," noting that it would be a driving force and have a rippling effect on the county's economy.

Under the newly formed Transient Vacation Rental (TVR) category, Torrington reported that 17 permits were issued last year. He said three or four TVR permit applications have come into his office so far this year.

The coordinator also compared 2003 percentages with those of 1999. "It's a better indication of where we are," he said. Compared to 1999, the total number of permits issued has increased 28 percent. Builder declared value also increased by 125 percent, and total square footage has increased by 84 percent.

Licensing Of Cats In County To Start July 1

Last week the Garrett County commissioners adopted the Garrett County Animal Ordinance, which will affect both cat and dog owners. All sections of the ordinance – including fees, fines, and enforcement – are now effective, with the exception of new licensing requirements for dogs and cats.

These revised provisions will become effective with the issuance of animal license tags for the upcoming fiscal year beginning on July 1. Dog tags that are valid until June 30, 2004, are currently available.

Additionally, existing kennels, catteries, and pet shops will be required to meet all new requirements in the ordinance by July 1. New applicants must also meet all provisions of the ordinance prior to the issuance of the permit.

The ordinance can be viewed online at garrettcounty.org. Persons with questions may call Brad Frantz, Office of Emergency Management, at 301-334-1929.

The commissioners' formal public notice on the ordinance is on page C-7 of this week's issue of The Republican.

Local Lawmakers Submit Variety Of Bills In Annapolis

Senator John Hafer and Minority Leader George Edwards have sponsored or co-sponsored more than 100 bills, covering a wide variety of issues, in the General Assembly this session. While committee hearings have been scheduled for some of the proposed documents, many have yet to be reviewed. The status of just a few of those bills is listed below.

The Environmental Matters Committee will hold a public hearing on Wednesday, Feb. 25, at 1 p.m. on proposed hunting legislation, HB 619, concerning the reporting of deer kills. Currently, hunters are prohibited from removing the head, hide, or any other part from any deer before it is checked at a designated checking station.

Introduced by Edwards, the proposed legislation still requires that hunters report to designated checking stations within 24 hours of killing a deer. Should the bill pass, however, hunters would have the option of bringing in the unskinned deer or just its fresh skin and head to the checking stations

Hafer and Edwards have also introduced legislation asking for the creation of a state debt of $500,000 for the Maryland Salem Children's Trust Inc. Located near Frostburg, the nonprofit corporation's main goal is to provide a Christian home and therapeutic environment for neglected and emotionally disturbed children, according to the trust's Web site.

The grant, which requires matching funding, would be used for the construction and capital equipping of a school building with classrooms, kitchen and dining room, media center, mobile computer lab, therapy room, art and music room, restrooms, and community room.

No committee hearings have been scheduled yet for the funding.

Hafer has also reintroduced legislation, SB 280, which would increase fines and points for drivers who fail to stop for a school vehicle with activated flashing red lights.

In the past two General Assembly sessions, the proposed legislation has failed in committee hearings. Hafer introduce the legislation following the December 2001 death of an 10-year old Garrett County boy who was struck by a motorist as he crossed Rt. 219 after exiting his school bus.

No hearing date has been set yet for this proposed legislation.

A full list of legislation introduced in this year's session can be found on the General Assembly Web site at http://mlis.state.md.us.

A CLOSE CALL – Maryland Highway at Ollie North Drive was shut down at several different times Wednesday afternoon in order to remove the logs from a tractor trailer that struck a 1989 Chevrolet Caprice causing both vehicles to hit the culvert on the westbound side of the road, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies. Ronald Wayne Warnick Jr., 33, Swanton, was charged with failure to reduce speed to avoid a collision. According to police, Warnick was blinded by the midday sun and failed to see the other vehicle, which was driven by Carl Lester Callis, 82, Oakland, that was slowed or stopped in the road attempting to turn into a private driveway. Both drivers refused any medical treatment by Southern Rescue Squad. Assisting at the scene were Deer Park firefighters, Sisler Lumber, Broadwater Heavy Towing, Hutton Towing, and the State Highway Administration. The units were on the scene for approximately four hours to remove the wreckage. Photo by John McEwen.

Hutzel Trucking Named Hauler Of The Year

Dale Hutzel, owner of Hutzel Trucking which provides the independent delivery service for the local 84 Lumber Store #0928, recently received formal notification from Mitch Feldman, delivery services director at the corporate office in Eighty Four, Pa., that Hutzel Trucking had been named the Hauler of the Year for 2003. Hutzel Trucking was selected from among over 450 stores located throughout the United States.

"This award is a very prestigious award," Feldman said. In order to win, the top hauler in the company is really placed under a microscope and evaluated."

Twice a year each store evaluates its hauler in 30 different categories, ranging from showing up on time to how they maintain their equipment. Each hauler also had the opportunity to evaluate his store's level of efficiency. If he made recommendations that could be used at his store, or stores company-wide, he received bonus points toward the 400 points possible.

NAMED HAULER OF YEAR — A local trucking company and its owner received a national honor this past week by being named Hauler of the Year by 84 Lumber Company. Dale Hutzel, owner of Hutzel Trucking, and his wife Millie were guests of honor at the company's 13th annual awards banquet, held last week at Nemacolin Woodlands Resort near Uniontown, Pa. Hutzel Trucking, which provides the independent delivery service for the Oakland 84 Lumber store, was selected from among haulers at over 450 84 Lumber stores nationwide by earning the top score in a rigorous competition. Pictured from left above are: Jarett Rasel, manager of the Oakland store; Hutzel; Mitch Feldman, delivery services director for 84 Lumber; Harry Straley, district manager; and Gary Trenary, former district manager and current manager of the Winchester, Va., store. See story for details.

A third part of the competition includes entrance into an exclusive club called Seven Heaven. Earning the highest number of points isn't enough to guarantee winning, for failure in any area renders the hauler ineligible.

"84 Lumber's goal is for our haulers to be 99.9999% perfect in servicing 84 Lumber and its customers," Feldman explained. In order to win this award, you really have to provide near perfect service. In 2003, none of our haulers came as close as you did, Dale. Your total of 398.5% was 99.6% perfection."

In addition to qualifying for the Seven Heaven Club, Hutzel Trucking was also nominated as the Hauler of the Third Quarter of 2003. Feldman said that the efforts of Dale Hutzel and Hutzel Trucking has helped Jarett Rasel, store manager, and his associates in achieving the success that has been shared in the Oakland 84 Lumber Store.

Hutzel, as well as several employees of 84 Lumber, were honored at the company's 13th annual awards banquet on February 2 at Nemacolin Woodlands Resort and Spa in Farmington, Pa., near Uniontown. The resort is owned by the founder and owner of 84 Lumber, Joe Hardy, and his daughter, Maggie Hardy Magerko. Hutzel was presented a trophy, a belt buckle designed by Jarett Rasel, and overnight accommodations for himself and his wife at Nemacolin. The presentation was made by Mitch Feldman on behalf of 84 Lumber.

In Hutzel's acceptance speech, he thanked the 84 Lumber executive personnel and made special mention that the honorary award "would have been impossible without the help and dedication of his own employees Kenny Paugh, John Nuzum, Lloyd Lamastus, Tim Upton, and Tim Rounds.

Pa. Man Pleads Guilty To Assault In Friendsville

A Fayette County, Pa., man pleaded guilty to a domestic-related assault charge that stemmed from a January incident in Friendsville, and was handed a nine-week jail term by Garrett County District Court Judge Ralph Burnett.

Carl Benny Scarlett, 21, Addison, was arrested by Maryland State Police troopers after he had struck his girlfriend at her apartment. During the altercation he head-butted her in the face, drawing blood from her nose, and pulled out several locks of her hair. Prior to the arrival of police, the intoxicated Scarlett drove away in the victim's car, then returned as troopers were interviewing her in the apartment.

Scarlett pleaded guilty to charges of second-degree assault and driving while under the influence, and was handed a total sentence of seven months, all but nine weeks of which was suspended, and was fined $700 and placed on two years of supervised probation. An additional charge of malicious destruction of property was not prosecuted by the State Attorney's Office.

In other District Court news, Morgan M. Wiseman, 22, a McHenry resident charged with marijuana possession after a search of his residence, pleaded guilty and was fined $100 and placed on one day of unsupervised probation. A second resident of the same home, Sean Kelsey O'Brien, 20, faced possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia charges, both of which were placed onto the stet docket. The men were arrested by Garrett County Narcotics Task Force detectives when an August search uncovered a smoking pipe bearing burnt marijuana residue.

A case was heard involving three 18-year-old men charged with drug possession following an Interstate 68 traffic stop. Their car was stopped for a traffic violation, and when an MSP trooper detected the odor of burnt marijuana, he told them he would have to search the vehicle. Before the search got under way, the men volunteered that they had marijuana in their possession and turned it over.

A passenger, Lucas John Seidel of Johnstown, Pa., pleaded guilty to possession of marijuana. He was handed a probation before judgment (PBJ) and a 30-day sentence, 28 days of which was suspended, and was fined $300, placed on one day of unsupervised probation, and ordered to complete 40 hours of community service. An additional charge of drug paraphernalia possession was not prosecuted.

The driver, Russell James Profazier, also of Johnstown, pleaded guilty to possession of drug paraphernalia and speeding, and received a PBJ, a $400 fine, one day of unsupervised probation, and 30 hours of community service. An additional charge of marijuana possession was not prosecuted.

Jamie Lynn Kusher of Morgantown, W.Va., the vehicle's third occupant, was not prosecuted on charges of possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia.

Two Harford County residents pleaded guilty to respective marijuana possession charges and each received a PBJ. State troopers who had stopped their car in August on I-68 noted the odor of burning marijuana, and discovered the drug during a search of the vehicle.

The driver, Adam Randolph Laye, 19, Bel Air, and his passenger, Adam Kenneth Dunaway, 19, Forest Hill, were both handed a 30-day sentence, all but two days of which was suspended, and were fined $200, placed on six months of supervised probation, and ordered to complete 30 hours of community service.

Michael Anthony Blade, 29, and Kelly Jean Bridwell, 23, both of Bluemont, Va., each faced drug charges filed by state troopers during an August traffic stop on I-68. The odor of burnt marijuana led to a search that uncovered the drug. Bridwell, the driver, pleaded guilty to possession of marijuana and was handed a PBJ, fined $100, and placed on one day of unsupervised probation, while Blade's charges of drug and paraphernalia possession were both placed onto the stet docket. Bridwell faced an additional charge of paraphernalia possession that was not prosecuted.

Timothy Harvey Uphold Jr., 21, Confluence, Pa., was handed a stet ruling on a marijuana possession charge filed after a September traffic stop on I-68. State troopers who had noted an odor of alcohol on his breath searched the vehicle and found the suspected contraband.

Franklin James Knox Jr., 41, Mtn. Lake Park, was not prosecuted on theft scheme charges filed by the Garrett Bureau of Investigation. Knox, who had been arrested in August by sheriff's deputies, had been accused of misuse of state pension benefits of a hospitalized family member while he held power of attorney over her affairs.

DUIs/DWIs

A number of driving while under the influence (DUI) and driving while impaired (DWI) cases were heard by Judge Burnett in traffic court recently.

Daniel Edward Eggleston, 33, Md., pleaded guilty to one charge each of DUI and DWI, and was handed a combined 12-month sentence, two months of which was suspended, fined $1,000, and placed on three years of supervised probation.

Brett Wayne Fratz, 24, Md., pleaded guilty to DUI and was handed a six-month sentence, four months of which was suspended, fined $400, and placed on two years of supervised probation.

Timothy Joe Beachy, 38, Md., pleaded guilty to DUI and was handed a six-month sentence, all but two weeks of which was suspended, fined $700, and placed on two years of supervised probation.

Roger Dale Latham, 34, Md., pleaded guilty to DUI and was handed a six-month sentence, all but one month of which was suspended, fined $755, and placed on two years of supervised probation.

James Edward Regan Jr., 25, Md., pleaded guilty to DWI and received a 60-day sentence, all but four days of which was suspended, fined $400, and placed on one year of supervised probation.

Wayne Albert Ellis, 48, Md., pleaded guilty to DUI and was handed a 60-day sentence, all but two days of which was suspended, fined $400, and placed on two years of supervised probation.

Rox Ann Wooden, 40, Md., pleaded guilty to DWI and was handed a 60-day sentence, all but two days of which was suspended, fined $400, and placed on six months' supervised probation.

Jeffery Deangelis, 42, Fla., pleaded guilty to DWI and received a $455 fine, a 30-day suspended sentence, one year of unsupervised probation, and 40 hours of community service.

Christopher Leo Smith, 42, W.Va., pleaded guilty to DWI and was handed a $455 fine, a 30-day suspended sentence, one year of supervised probation, and 40 hours of community service.

Benton Robert Kelly, 50, Md., pleaded guilty to DWI and received a $455 fine, a 30-day suspended sentence, and one year of supervised probation.

Harold Allen Hillery, 43, W.Va., pleaded guilty to DWI and was handed a $455 fine, a 30-day suspended sentence, and one year of unsupervised probation.

Jason Allan Pittsley, 25, N.Y., pleaded guilty to DWI and was handed a $455 fine, a 30-day suspended sentence, and one year of unsupervised probation.

Kenneth Wayne Burns, 36, W.Va., pleaded guilty to DWI and received a PBJ, a $400 fine, a 30-day suspended sentence, one year of supervised probation, and 40 hours of community service.

Charles William Pownall Jr., 58, Md., pleaded guilty to DUI and received a PBJ, a $400 fine, a 30-day suspended sentence, one year of supervised probation, and 30 hours of community service.

Christopher Kenneth Wilson, 21, Md., pleaded guilty to DWI and was handed a PBJ, a $400 fine, a 30-day suspended sentence, and one year of supervised probation.

Michael Torone Welch, 32, Md., pleaded guilty to DWI and received a PBJ, a $300 fine, a 30-day suspended sentence, one year of supervised probation, and 40 hours of community service.

Timothy James Storey, 43, Md., was handed a stet ruling on a DUI charge, with an order to complete 40 hours of community service.

Samuel Dewey Yoho, 44, W.Va., was handed a stet ruling on a DUI charge.

Finally, Carl Lewis Johnson, 55, of West Virginia, was deemed not guilty of a DWI charge.

NEITHER RAIN, NOR SLEET, NOR SNOW, nor a combination of all three, kept the employees of the Oakland Post Office from making their rounds Friday when flooding inside the mail sorting area threatened to make the day's mail delivery a wash. The problem stemmed from ice dams that had accumulated on the facility's roof, and as rainwater and melting water tried to find an escape route, it began seeping through the ceiling. Acting Oakland postmaster Eric Sanders and his supervisor, Jeff Beard, a member of the Bloomington Volunteer Fire Department, called upon the Oakland VFD for assistance and a crew of four volunteer firefighters put in more than two hours of early morning work that helped get the soggy office "shipshape." Among the remedies was the hanging of plastic sheeting that redirected dripping water to waiting buckets, visible to the left as downtown mail carrier Donny Whetzel cases his route in the background. "We couldn't have gotten the mail out without the help of the Oakland VFD and those volunteer firefighters," Sanders said. "There was minor damage to some newspaper bundles, but no first class mail was lost."

Home Business, Marketing Experts Will Speak At RDC Conference

BEVERLY WILLIAMS

C.J. EADES

Beverly Williams, founder and former president of the American Association of Home-Based Businesses Inc., will speak at the Rural Enterprises Conference, slated for Saturday, March 27, at Garrett College. Also on the agenda is C.J. Eades, owner of Marketek LLC, who will present information and lead discussions on marketing products and services.

A nationally known expert on home-based business issues, Williams has been interviewed for articles in Entrepreneur Magazine, The Wall Street Journal, and Ladies Home Journal. The Small Business Administration's Home Business Advocate of the Year in 2002, Williams co-authored The 30-Second Commute: The Ultimate Guide to Starting and Operating a Home-Based Business, which will be published by McGraw-Hill this spring.

Eades will bring 25 years of experience in sales, marketing, and business management to the podium at the Rural Enterprises Conference. In her seminar, "Grass Roots Marketing," she will explore the scope of marketing and explain how to target local customers and tourists. She will offer tips on developing a market plan and suggestions to help "get your marketing money's worth."

The one-day conference, coordinated by the Garrett-Preston Rural Development Coalition, will feature more than 20 experts on rural business opportunities. These men and women will address the economic challenges faced in rural communities and suggest creative responses, according to RDC board president David Moran.

"Home-based businesses are a viable alternative to employment outside the home for many people in our rural environment," he said. "That is why we dedicate sessions of our conference each year to learning more about such opportunities. We are really pleased to have Beverly Williams and C.J. Eades with us this year to share their expertise."

Formed in 2001, the RDC unites the efforts of residents of Garrett County, Maryland, and Preston County, West Virginia, to improve the economy while maintaining the rural heritage of the area.

"It is a mission of the RDC to help provide people with the tools, resources, and information to enhance their income-earning potential. Our annual conference provides an excellent forum for this," Moran explained.

The Rural Enterprises Conference is open to all, with advance tickets now available. For more information, persons may call Moran at 304-735-6413 or Cheryl DeBerry at 301-334-6960, or visit online at morefarmmoney.org

I-68 Traffic Stop Leads To Drug Arrests Sunday

Two men were arrested on drug charges in the wake of a Sunday evening traffic stop on Interstate 68, according to the Maryland State Police.

William Nathaniel Smith, 19, of St. Leonard, and Anthony Carr Alpy, 20, of Centreville, Va., were each charged with marijuana and drug paraphernalia possession. A search undertaken by a trooper who had detected an odor of marijuana led to the discovery of the suspected contraband.

McHenry Mishap Slightly Injures Swanton Woman

A Swanton woman was slightly injured Friday when she fell beneath her rolling vehicle in a McHenry parking lot, according to the McHenry barrack of the Maryland State Police.

At approximately 11:24 p.m., Mary Lou Rohrbaugh, 64, parked her vehicle in the parking lot in front of the Long and Foster Realtors office located along Garrett Highway. Police said Rohrbaugh had left the engine running while she carried some items inside the building, and when she came back out she observed her GMC Envoy rolling from its parking spot. Rohrbaugh ran to the vehicle in an attempt to get inside and stop it, but slipped as she approached and fell to the ground, where one of the SUV's front tires rolled over her right ankle.

Rohrbaugh was transported to Garrett County Memorial Hospital by the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad, which was assisted on the scene by personnel from the Northern Rescue Squad and the Deep Creek Volunteer Fire Department.

No charges were filed by the investigating state trooper.

New Jersey Trio Charged With Drug Possession

Three New Jersey residents were arrested on drug charges following a Monday evening traffic stop by Maryland State Police troopers.

Robert E. Betler, 20, and Shawn M. Green, 23, both of Mt. Holly, and Andrew L. Wright Jr., 22, of Lumberton, were detained by authorities as a result of the 6:58 p.m. stop. The trio were traveling on westbound Interstate 68 near Friendsville when their Honda Passport was pulled over for speeding.

The trooper, who detected the odor of suspected burnt marijuana, conducted a search that uncovered alleged marijuana and drug paraphernalia in the vehicle. Each of the occupants was arrested on charges of marijuana and drug paraphernalia possession.

Two Taken To Hospital After Vehicle Flips

Two passengers in a 2001 GMC truck were transported to the hospital Wednesday morning when the driver became disoriented for unknown reasons and struck a snow embankment causing the vehicle to flip and land on its roof, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

The driver, Gary C. Horsey, 69, Terra Alta, W.Va., was not injured, but his two passengers, Judy L. Horsey, 57, and Joseph E. Horsey, 48, both of Terra Alta, were transported to Garrett County Memorial Hospital by Southern Rescue Squad.

Oakland firefighters also responded to the incident, which occurred on Garrett Highway just north of Spring Glade Road.

Gary Horsey was not cited in the accident, police said.

Thanks, Janet?...

Could it be that entertainers Janet Jackson and Justin Timberlake may actually have done us all a favor?

Never in the history of television has there been such a viewer furor than since the Super Bowl breast-baring event less than two weeks ago. (Well, maybe the "Heidi Bowl.") There have been over 200,000 complaints filed with the Federal Communications Commission and elected officials over the incident, with demands that the FCC crack down on the networks that allow, or do not prevent, such lewd displays. A visitor from outer space observing the uproar would think that never, ever on United States public television has there been anything remotely as vulgar as that two-second exposure of an woman's entire breast.

And how hilarious — how ridiculous — is that supposition? It's fascinating that, on almost any Sunday afternoon broadcast of a professional football game, there are routinely several shots of the professional teams' cheerleading squads, which consist of gorgeous women who typically are wearing clothing that allows many body parts to almost, but not quite, fall completely out of that clothing. All kinds of suggestive gyrations by these ladies are the norm. No one complains, especially not those of us who happen to be male.

Regular network television is now loaded with partial nudity, unbelievably foul language, and sexual activity, both suggested and actual, every single evening. This is not limited to the shows that come on at or after 10 p.m. or just to those that air on extra-cost cable channels such as HBO. The sitcoms that begin airing at 8 p.m. on the major networks, with millions of very young viewers watching and listening, reek with such language and behavior. Even television commercials are chock full of scantily clad women and men and the aforementioned double entendres.

And violence? But that's another editorial.

Never before, though, has there been such an uproar, such extreme outrage, about what is broadcast on television. One breast bared, for all of two seconds.

Now something may actually be done to bring television back into the realm of some level of decency. Already some of the networks, just over the past 10 days, have either edited or "toned down" some of their material.

It's interesting to see how our elected officials react and really respond when hundreds of thousands of their constituents (voters) demand that they respond.

Maybe in the long run we really will owe Janet and Justin some appreciation for their inappropriate, stupid stunt.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

I was driving south on Rt. 219 about 9:45 this morning (Feb. 7) during the snow, and as luck would have it, I had to swerve off the highway because the driver in front of me braked suddenly to avoid people in front of her. I maneuvered to avoid her, but that put me into a snow bank in front of Glotfelty Enterprises. Having 4-wheel drive didn't help get me out (I was hung up on what by then had become frozen slush), but what did help was the great friendliness of two county snowplow drivers, who happened along right after the incident. Fortunately, I was not hurt, nor was there any damage to me or any other car. The drivers' names are Ken DeWitt and Larry Rodeheaver, who should be commended for lending a hand and putting a shoulder to the shovel (and to the back of my car, eventually) when it was sorely needed.

Two things I learned from this are to keep much farther back (I thought I had more than enough room, but...) and to keep a shovel in my car. Again, plaudits to the two drivers and to Marshall Stacy and another fellow whose name I didn't get who happened along. Thanks, guys.

To the Editor:

We would like to take this opportunity to express our appreciation to all who are participating in the Columbia Gas Heat Shares Fuel Fund by including a donation with their monthly gas bills. Your contributions are being matched dollar for dollar by Columbia Gas and have enabled us to help scores of people in our community who struggle to meet their gas utility bills.

In light of the fact that consumers are paying as much as 15 percent more this year to heat their homes with natural gas, there is an ever growing need for gas utility assistance here in Garrett County. Money from this fund has made it possible for us to help families who would have been without heat during these recent cold weeks. Because of your generosity, they were warm.

Thank you to everyone who has participated and to all who feel led in the future to include even one extra dollar with their payment. We wish you could be in our office to see the gratitude on the faces of the working poor who would not be able to give their children a warm home to sleep in or the elderly who won't have to wrap themselves in extra blankets to keep out the cold.

We appreciate your generosity so much and thank you for your willingness to share through the fuel fund.

For more information about contributing or to inquire about applying for assistance, contact Garrett County's fuel fund at 301-334-9431, extension 114.

Sincerely,
Linda Green
Director, C&E Services.

To the Editor:

To the person in charge of the fire and rescue dispatchers for Garrett County: Please explain to me and many others why you do not give the last name of the person needing assistance, whether it be because of fire or medical problems. You are probably going to say "we can't do that because of the possibilities of being sued, as that information is confidential and against the law." To that, I say "horse feathers."

I can understand if this were a metropolitan area where everything is a number, street, block, road, circle, etc., and a name does not mean much of anything, but this is rural America, people.

You will probably say that you can't reveal any information when we have an ambulance call to Joe Doe's for a medical emergency. Now, you tell me, what was revealed medically in that call?

The people working the rescue would know, 9 times out of 10, where to go immediately. These people work and live in the same area these calls come from, and I would almost bet they have lived here most of their lives.

Even if the dispatchers says to go to the Joe Doe residence for a heart problem, back pain, laceration, broken leg, general illness, etc., on Main Street in Grantsville, I'm almost 100% sure each one on the squad would know where to go. I beg you to find anything that reveals this patient's condition or how severe it is. Also, if you can explain to me how anyone can gain information from this, then perhaps I could understand why it is not done.

If the members of the fire and rescue squads would express their desires, I feel certain that they would prefer the dispatchers using the last names of the patients rather than a number that they are not familiar with, or a road that they have no idea where it may be.

I can find no problem with using the last name of a person at a residence, and would like to feel that I have made a suggestion. You tell me what medical knowledge can be gained from hearing "go to Joe Doe's residence for a medical emergency."

Respectfully submitted,
Sue M. Bowers
Grantsville

To the Editor:

This is in response to the letters from all the citizens of Garrett County who are furious with our state's attorney's office, our sheriff's office, court systems, and even probation officers. From what I have been reading, a lot of Garrett County citizens know how our system is: "Guilty because of who you are — Sentence is six months!" That's how it is.

Wonder why there is a GBI? I always thought "innocent before proven guilty." Oh, no, not in Garrett County. Our detectives don't even investigate anything. They just say you're guilty. Evidence does not exist anymore! If they want you, they got you!

Our sheriff's office wastes valuable time and effort on small marijuana possession charges. Yet crack, meth., and other highly dangerous drugs are being dealt to our kids every day. Local law officials turn their backs on these drugs, denying that they very much exist in this county.

And since when did Garrett County turn into "catch and release"? People with felony charges are let go to turn in small offenders. Why? You see, if they went straight for the "catch," so many cops would be out of work because other than drugs we have no real crime — except for those whom our state's attorney's office labels as "bad" just because they can.

And about these drug and alcohol classes for people who do not drink and have never been in trouble for drugs. Why should someone — myself — who was in trouble for a bad check be made to take these classes? Why? Money and control.

Don't let this happen to you. Push the right buttons, go higher than the local officials, write your congress or your governor. Our corrupt county only goes so far.

I wonder how many of our local law officials attend drug and alcohol classes? Oh, that's right. This is good old Garrett County — the law doesn't pertain to them.

So just be careful in Garrett County or you might get locked up. And trust me, they'll throw away the key. They'll lock you up for anything just because you're you! And once you're in the system, you'll always be their puppet.

These are real people's lives, and children, who these law officials are playing with. We are not game pieces and Garrett County is not their game board! And to all the real criminals who choose to stay in the system, grow up. Come on, people, let's hear from you — all of you.

Truthfully,
Mark and Jeannie Griffin

To the Editor:

Many years ago, when I was in the grips of a serious mental illness, my family thought that I would make a recovery and the illness would end. It did not, and they didn't understand that it would occur again and again. Out of patience and being misinformed, as many often are, they assumed that it was all my fault. This is not at all unusual. I've heard it quite often from the many family members and individuals with mental illness whom I've worked with over the years.

I often wished that somehow I could find a way to relate to them about my illness, so I would like for them, and family members of anyone with mental illness, to read this "Open Letter to Families."

My Dear Family,

This letter is a plea for your compassion, understanding, and patience. We have all just come through an episode of my mental illness. I have experienced it personally and you have tried to deal with its effects while continuing to take care of our family as a whole. It has not been easy, but I have done the best I know how and so have you. For this I thank you.

As a result of this episode, I am now exhausted. Maybe I look all right to you, but inside I'm wounded. Even the least stress, the least effort, is overwhelming to me. I need to just sit and pull myself together. I need to sleep a lot, and not do much at all. This may go on for quite some time.

It may be hard for you to see me this way. You may feel it's your duty to help me "snap out of it." You may be wondering if I'm using this as an excuse to be lazy. Please be gentle with me; let me heal.

If you want to do something for me, this is the thing that I would most appreciate: learn about my illness. This is an illness of the brain and body, just like any other disease. It also affects my ability to think, feel, and behave. Those effects may have been difficult for you to deal with. I'm sorry if the effects of my illness have made your life more difficult. Learning about the illness may help put these difficulties in perspective.

The National Alliance for the Mentally Ill of Garrett County is holding a Family-to-Family Education Course at the Grantsville Outreach Center. Its purpose is to help family members better understand and cope with their mentally ill relative or loved one. The course starts Friday, March 5, and lasts 12 weeks. The meeting time is 7 to 9:30 p.m. For more information, call Mary Ann at 301-895-5366.

To the Editor:

According to the 2002 Maryland Adolescent Survey, 41.8% of Garrett County 10th graders reported using alcohol (such as beer, wine, and wine coolers) in the past 30 days. This could be viewed as disturbing information, and I would agree. However, on a positive note, the encouraging news is that 58.2% of our 10th graders chose not to use alcohol. This, I believe, is what needs to be celebrated.

What can be done to build on this positive approach? This is the question that prompted the Combating Underage Drinking Committee and the Garrett County Health Department to begin to explore options to encourage this 58% to continue to make healthy choices and to demonstrate to all youth that having fun doesn't have to include alcohol.

A campaign was organized between the health department and the Wisp, identifying it as an area where youth hang out and are sometimes unsupervised. A logo contest was held at both local high schools, with the winner receiving a season pass at the Wisp Resort. The winning logo design "Play Hard. Live Clean." was the theme for the kick-off event, which was a free night of snow tubing compliments of the Wisp.

More than 300 students came together for a night of fun, food, and socializing. All students were asked to sign a pledge card that they would continue to make wise choices, including not using alcohol. At future "Play Hard. Live Clean." events, we would like to add Garrett County businesses as sponsors to the back of the pledge card. A sponsor would be a business that is willing to offer discounts to our youth if they present the pledge card.

We, at the health department, celebrate the youth in our county and would like to invite you to join the celebration. You may be asking yourself, "What can I do?" The Wisp stepped up to the plate and took the first swing when they sponsored the "Play Hard. Live Clean." campaign kick-off. I believe this is a reflection of a community that is protective of its youth. If you are a business owner and are interested in adding your name to the sponsor list on the back of the pledge card, give me a call. If you are a parent, find out more about Community Planning Groups that are located around the county and help plan activities for the youth in local communities.

Get involved. Call the Garrett County Health Department at 301-334-7730.

To the Editor:

I recently read about a program that the United States government is embarking on that gives schools and community colleges money for job training. The details of this program I am uncertain of, mainly because the article I read was rather vague in its description of the program. Although after reading the article I began thinking about exactly what job skills Garrett College would teach its students if they received any amount of money from the federal government.

It is no secret that many of the jobs that are available to the local people of this county are low-paying and

Babbling Brainstorms

CARTER'S FIRST "PET"

It was both sad and comical as I watched Carter, who is now 2½, stand at the open kitchen door sobbing and trying to catch his breath as he yelled for his ladybug that I set free. I had no idea he had grown so attached to this bug he had hovered over for the past 60 minutes. Between his sobs he yelled, "Ladybug, come back. Please, ladybug, come back to me." At that point, I realized he was far from having a "real" pet of his own.

He was amazingly gentle with the ladybug he simply named Ladybug. He would let her crawl up his finger and talk to her in a sweet little voice. His favorite thing to do was to let her (I assume for no apparent reason it was a girl) crawl up on a matchbox car and drive her around the house.

His first question was "Can she sleep with me in my bed?" that was followed by "Can we get her a cage?" I tried to explain to him that her family and friends were somewhere outside worried about where she was, and she didn't eat "people" food. So he started to get his boots on to head outside and find her some leaves. I told him he could keep her for a little while and then we agreed we would set her free.

While transporting her from room to room, he occasionally dropped her and stepped on her. He would immediately drop to his knees and start to cry. "She's not crawling. She's dead," he would cry. I told him she may just be traumatized and was resting. Sure enough, she would start moving again, probably trying to make a mad dash to somewhere safe.

After an hour, I told him it was time to say good-bye. I had no idea what waterworks would come after I put her outside. While sobbing he said he wanted to call "Boggie" (my mom) and tell her about his pet. She could barely understand him because he was still crying so hard. I don't remember ever seeing him cry that hard.

As he started to calm down I suggested we read about ladybugs on the internet. That seemed to make him feel better. Still at bedtime, he started to tear up when he talked about his "best friend."

I also told him that he would probably find another ladybug soon because of the time of year. Sure enough, Sunday he found himself another pet. This one wasn't lucky enough to make it out alive, but that didn't seem to bother him one bit this time around. Maybe this one's shorter life was because she had two boys fighting over her. They each wanted her to ride their matchbox car and climb on their finger. They kept yelling at each other because their turn was over. I kept thinking, What if this was a kitten or puppy? Poor animal.

I had set up their train, and they enjoyed putting the bug in the flat car and driving her around the track. Occasionally I would hear yells as they discovered she was trying to climb out of the car. They were worried she would get run over. I was thankful that at least they were not deliberately trying to tie her to the tracks and run her over.

Carter gave her a proper burial in the trash can and headed off to the window sills in search of another pet.

NOT 80, NOT 90 . . . Mr. Chauncey Friend, now an official centenarian, is pictured as he celebrates his 100th birthday Saturday. He was presented with a number of cards and well wishes, as well as the homemade crown he is wearing and a lap robe signed by numerous friends. The birthday cake at right, displaying the "three R's of education," was made by Norma Ringer of M&M Bakery in Hazelton, W.Va. Friend taught school for 47 years, beginning at age 16 in a one-room school house. See story.

Chauncey Friend's 100 Years Of Life Celebrated By Family, Friends

A rare event took place this week in Garrett County, as a Friendsville resident celebrated 100 years of living. An open house was held Saturday in honor of centenarian Chauncey Friend at the Sand Spring Church of God Fellowship Hall, with more than 150 friends, relatives, and former students in attendance.

Among the guests were three of his children, Janice Ross of Hazelton, W.Va., Bernard Friend of Friendsville, and Betty Humberson of Selbysport, Pa. Also taking part in the celebration were his grandchildren, great-grandchildren, and one great-great-grandchild.

Hannah and Patrick Sines, whose grandfathers Larry Meyers and Gene Sines were both former students of Chauncey at Northern High School, presented the honoree with a boutonniere. Hannah and Patrick's grandmother, Amanda Lowdermilk, was one of his students when he taught in a one-room school house in Trap Run in 1927.

Born in Keeler Glade in 1904, Chauncey is the eldest of five children born to the late Sherman and Ethel Kelley Friend, and is a descendent of John Friend, the original settler for whom the town of Friendsville was named. Chauncey earned his teaching certificate at the tender age of 16 and began his 47-year teaching career at a one-room school house in Mountain View, W.Va., located between Mountain Dale and Cuzzart.

One-room school houses were his domain until 1942, when he took a teaching position at Friendsville Elementary School. He transferred to Northern High 10 years later, where he taught math and crafts, and later moved to the metal shop. He retired in 1967 at the age of 63.

A devout family man, Chauncey was married to the late Olive Friend, with whom he had five children. He later married Thyra Jones and became the stepfather to her four children.

The centenarian once served as the mayor of Friendsville, and also held a seat on the town council. He remained an active resident of the town until 2002, when he relocated to the Goodwill Mennonite Nursing Home. He still occasionally attends the First Christian Church in the town, where he serves as elder.

The birthday party was opened with a prayer, presented by Nevin Umbel, and the Sand Spring choir sang "He Touched Me," one of Chauncey's favorite hymns. A display of memorabilia was arranged for all to view, and spontaneous talks were given by former students, as well as tributes from relatives. Many requests were made of the honoree to relate stories and sing songs that he once sang to entertain his students.

Chauncey received numerous birthday cards and well wishes, including recognition from President and Mrs. George W. Bush, a citation from the Maryland General Assembly, a plaque from the Woodmen of the World, a Century Award, and a life-long membership to the Friend Family Museum.

Guests signed a register book that was presented to Chauncey by Nevin and Carol Umbel, and a lap robe made by JoAnn Meyers was also signed by guests and given to him.

The cake, which was in the shape of three stacked school books with an apple on the top, was made by Norma Ringer of M&M Bakery in Hazelton, W.Va. The event and the refreshments were provided by the Sand Spring Church of God.

To what does the centenarian attribute his longevity?

"I never drank, never smoked, and never chased wild women," he said, grinning. "The dear Lord has granted me this long life, and consequently I have seen many changes, some good, and some not so good."

normally revolve around some sort of community or customer service. I would like for the politicians who govern this county to tell me of what value it is to even have this program available at Garrett College. Are they going to instruct the people how to better brush their teeth, thus getting a whiter smile, making a glowing sparkle for every tourist they serve at their job as waiter or waitress? Or maybe they would assist the students in choosing cologne, making their smell much more enticing for the guests of the hotel they are managing. Maybe the program would go as far as to teach the students how to dress and style their hair, and even have the popular Fab 5 from Queer Eye for the Straight Guy give a guest lesson on style, making sure that Garrett County, and no doubt the Wisp Resort, have the most stylish customer service experts on the planet.

Now I know I am being very sarcastic, but I really wonder just of what value this type of program would be if this "service job" approach is taken when Garrett College receives their federal cabbage.

The solution to this dilemma? Well, since I am not a politician (thank God) I can't give one that is really concrete, though I can offer some insight in the form of a guideline. Why not use the federal money to open a broadcasting and television program at the college that teaches people the ins and outs of broadcasting, screen writing, producing, and more that allows them to become active media developers? Give Garrett County a television network with real meat, real quality, run and produced by its own native and local people. Give this network premium ideas and programs – sports footage from the Wisp, a possible television show or series, a reporting and nightly news show, something we as locals can count on for information and entertainment and something the people of this county can count on for decent jobs that are actually enjoyable. Not only would this allow the people of this county to use some of the creative muscle that they have, it would also give them a chance to fill themselves with pride and dedicated satisfaction.

I am sorry if I think that you would receive more satisfaction from producing televised media than running around all night waiting on the incoming rush of weekend, out-of-town residents. The best part about all this, it would give Garrett County's people an educated job that actually pays enough money for them and their family to live comfortably – something that many of today's service jobs simply do not do.

I often make the statement that Garrett County has become a playground for the rich, and in my opinion, it has. Although when the rich get tired of playing they may want to curl up in front of their television sets and enjoy some premium entertainment. Why don't we as a county offer them that entertainment while at the same time offering our people decent jobs with decent pay and genuine satisfaction?

To the Editor:

While I'm not usually one to get involved in political issues, I must express my outrage at the Mountaintop Ministerial Association's plan to erect a 30-foot-tall cross next to the flag at the overlook in Oakland. Although the association claimed in its news release last week that the proposed monument would be "symbolic of the historic importance of Christianity in this community," I think it would say much more than that. It would stand as a "You're not welcome" sign to any non-Christian who looked upon it. Garrett County, with its beautiful scenery and strong arts community, has a history of attracting tourists (some of whom later become residents) of different nationalities, races, and religions. Do we really want a monument towering over Oakland that discourages this diversity? Is this the message we want to send to people who visit our town?

I can agree that Garrett County is strongly underpinned by the Christian faith, but the assumption on the part of the association that everyone would be in favor of this idea is, I'm afraid, another example of the selfish and all-too-common notion that "Everybody's a Christian." Well, everybody isn't. The proposed monument (which, according to the association, will cost $25,000 to build and maintain–money that could be spent on charitable causes!) is a subtle sign of religious intolerance, as if to say, "This town is for Christians only." I'm sure the members of Ministerial Association don't think they're saying this, or mean to be saying this, but that is how it would be interpreted by anyone who is not a follower of Christ, and I daresay if they thought about it, most fair-minded churchgoers would agree with me.

What would happen if the Jewish residents of this area (yes, there are Jews in Garrett County) erected a 30-foot Star of David next to the overlook flag? What if the local Muslims (yes, believe it or not, there are Muslims in Garrett County) put up a giant Islamic crescent? I'll tell you what would happen: People would freak out like nobody's business.

Religion is a private matter for each person to decide as he or she wishes. Everyone in this town, this county, and this country should be allowed to worship in his or her own way, or not worship if that is his choice, without fear of pressure or persecution from those who believe differently. That's what this country was founded on; it's what the flag means! Are the mayor, the zoning board, and the local citizens actually going to allow our town's most prominent national symbol to be adorned with a religious icon, towering over it like everyone in this country is a member of the same church?

I happen to live in downtown Oakland. If this monument goes up, I will not be able to look out my bedroom window without seeing an enormous sign saying, in effect, "You don't belong here." Furthermore, its proximity to the flag, which should stand for all U.S. citizens, will imply that to be a good and patriotic American, one must be a Christian.

I have been happy to consider myself a friend of Pastor Mel Menker for some time and hope I may continue to do so, but I can't agree with him on this matter. I am aware that he and the association have purchased a piece of land next to the overlook for this purpose, and therefore have the right (assuming the zoning board agrees) to do what they wish with it But I urge them and the town to rethink this matter. Don't let Oakland make this exclusionist religious statement. Let the overlook–and the flag–remain a non-denominational attraction, for all of us and our visitors to enjoy.

Sincerely,
John R. McEwen

Don't Skip A Step In Child Passenger Safety, Asks GC Health Department

Usually around Valentine's Day people are concentrating on expressing love to each other and to their children. Since this week is also designated as Child Passenger Safety Week, a good way to show love and commitment to children is by making sure they are as safe as possible on the highway.

The grim statistics show the importance of child passenger safety. Motor vehicle crashes are the number one killer of children ages 2 to 14. In 2002, 329 children age 4 through 7 and 1,209 children age 8 through 15 were killed in crashes while traveling in a vehicle. But the battle to protect our children on the road is getting a boost from two formidable allies: the Ad Council and national and local retailers.

CHILD PASSENGER SAFETY WEEK, Feb. 8-14, is currently being observed across the nation. In recognition of the event, the Garrett County Health Department is asking residents not to "skip a step in child passenger safety." Most children ages 4 to 8 need booster seats, but many parents "skip" this step when their toddlers become too big for safety seats, believing they can now use safety belts. "There are just too many kids out there who are at risk because they are not riding in booster seats," said Diane Lee, highway safety coordinator at the Health Department. "Skipping a step, or moving to the next step too fast, can cause injury or death." See story for details.

Many people believe that children who have outgrown child safety seats should use safety belts. This is not true. Safety belts, which are designed for adults, won't fully restrain many children in a crash. Those children need a booster seat, which raises the child up so the safety belt fits and protects them.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) recommends booster seats for children from about age 4 and 40 pounds to at least age 8, unless the child is 4 feet 9 inches tall. But NHTSA estimates that booster seats are used by only 10 to 20 percent of the children who should be in them.

So during Child Passenger Safety Week, NHTSA and the Ad Council are launching an unprecedented nationwide television, radio and print ad campaign to raise awareness about booster seats.

As always, the Garrett County Health Department is participating in Child Passenger Safety Week by scheduling individual child safety seat checks and making low-cost seats available through the Kids In Safety Seat loaner program. Interested persons may call the Health Department at 301-334-7730 or 301-895-3111 for an appointment or for answers to child safety seat questions.

There are just too many kids out there who are at risk because they are not riding in booster seats. Keeping kids safe needs to be a progression, from rear-facing seat, to forward-facing seat, to booster seat and finally to seat belt. Skipping a step, or moving to the next step too fast, can cause injury or death.

For more information about booster seats, persons may visit boosterseat.gov or contact the Health Department at the numbers listed above.

Bark 'n Bites Of Your Garrett County Forest Conservancy Board

By Paul Shogren
GC Forest Conservancy Board

With this article, we begin a monthly column on the actions of your Garrett County Forest Conservancy Board plus items of interest to forest landowners, wood producers, conservation educators, and interested citizens. Such boards are organized in all Maryland counties and have been assigned by state law to:

- promote forest management on private forest lands by assisting these landowners in tree planting, development of tree crops, and protection of these forests from fire, insects, and diseases;
- make available to such landowners forest management services and information;
- assist county assessors in forest land appraisals;
- disseminate forest conservation information to the general public;
- secure cooperation of various conservation agencies in conserving our county forest resources; and
- support and participate in the Maryland Forestry and Natural Resources Career Week currently held at the Hickory Environmental Education Center.

Perhaps at this point the term "conservation" needs defining. Gifford Pinchot, an early American forester and first chief of the United States Forest Service, defined conservation this way: "Conservation means the wise use of the earth and its resources for the lasting good of men. Conservation is the foresighted utilization, preservation, and/or renewal of forests, waters, lands, and minerals for the greatest good of the greatest number for the longest time."

At its February meeting at the Department of Natural Resources Mount Nebo office, the board took actions to:

- obtain red spruce seedlings and warm season grass seed for planting on school arboretums including the Hickory Center Arboretum;
- organize a Project Learning Tree experience for interested educators;
- obtain permanent tree tags for school arboretums;
- support and participate in the career week at the Hickory Center;
- assist future county envirothon training; and
- authorize a letter of support to establish an Appalachian Forest Heritage Area, which includes Garrett and Allegany Counties and sixteen West Virginia counties along the Allegheny Front and the Monongahela National Forest Area.

The Garrett County Forest Conservancy Board usually meets the first Monday of each month at the Mount Nebo DNR office at 9:30 a.m. The meetings are open to the public. Information about your county conservancy board and any of its programs may be obtained from board chairman Chuck Hoffeditz at 301-387-5144, secretary Ernie Metz at 301-334-3296, or myself at 301-334-1386.

DNR Schedules Loggers' Training In Cumberland

A training session titled "Erosion and Sediment Control for Timber Harvest Operations in Maryland" is scheduled for 1 p.m. on Thursday, Feb. 26, at Allegany College of Maryland. The three-hour Maryland Department of Natural Resources Forest Service training program, commonly known as the "Green Card Program," is required of all logging businesses that harvest timber in the state.

At least one person from each timber harvest operation must be certified as having completed this training. Persons who have already completed the training are not required to attend, but may choose to do so for refresher purposes.

Allegany College is located along Willowbrook Road, Cumberland, one mile south of Interstate 68. To register for the session, and for detailed directions, persons may call Phil Pannill of the Maryland DNR Forest Service at 301-791-4010.

ACCIDENT

ELEMENTARY SCHOOL

As a reminder to parents, 4th grade testing will begin Wednesday, Feb. 25. According to principal Sheila Miller, it is very important for students to attend if at all possible. Third and fifth graders will begin testing on March 1.

There will be school for students on Monday, Feb. 16. This was a previously scheduled holiday for students in observance of Presidents' Day, but school will be in session that day to make up one of the snow days missed this year.

NHS SPORTS

The Northern High School boys' basketball team will host Beall on Friday, Feb. 13. Senior Night will be Tuesday, Feb. 17, at NHS against Hancock. Seniors will honor their parents at halftime.

The girls' basketball teams will host Hancock on Monday, Feb. 23, at 6 and 7:30 p.m.

The wrestlers will compete at Westmar on Saturday, Feb. 21, in the Bi-County Tournament.

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

I would love to know who had the idea that midwinter in Garrett County would be a good time to have a semi-formal dance at Northern High School. My car refused to start and when it finally did it got stuck in the Glotfelty lane with my two lovely daughters in their spaghetti-strap chiffon dresses under their winter parkas with sweat pants and snow boots to complete their ensemble. A lot of the roads in our area were drifted shut, which was a perfect scenario for a stressful day. Their little sister was grouchy, as she was left behind. The only relief I will have is when I see Claire and Caitlin safe and sound. I imagine tomorrow's weather will be bad enough to force a cancellation of church service. It is not a hope that it happens, but is pretty much a sure thing. Thankfully Meredith is not scheduled to be an acolyte tomorrow.

The Garrett County Grapevine was in full operation last week as we commiserated about the passing of the old crowd. At the same time we got updates, with new babies, teenager growing pains, and, of course, the weather crisis, including problems with everyone's roofs and the inevitable winter car crashes. The update of the health crises of the 50 years or older group is an ongoing topic. I can't help remembering a great song by Smith and Roberts titled "Garrett County Grapevine." I touch base occasionally with some of those old pals.

Anyone who has an effective snow moving machine in Bittinger is a blessing. They feel it is their duty to clear out all their neighbors who are snowed in. When I talked to Gary Buckel about his father-in-law's death, he said, "It is kinda hectic trying to clear snow," and is especially rough when he has enough just dealing with his own family crisis. Hats off to him and Jack and Clint Beitzel and all the others like them, and also hats off to all the guys from Garrett County who stop and lend a helping hand to a motorist in trouble or stuck in a ditch. I don't think I ever broke down without some knight who stopped. That is not true of every place. Only in Garrett County or a place like it could this happen. It is a different world up here, Heaven Frozen Over.

I can't believe my eyes as it just past 8 p.m. and Jack Beitzel is busy clearing my lane. Lucky Joan to have such an excellent husband. I learned only today that Joan was among the first batch of lake kids. Her parents built a big cabin on Lake Shore Drive during the 1930s when the lake was new and they could row across it or even swim across the lake. A passing boat was reason enough to run out and look at it. That was the good ol' days on the lake.

Even when I was a teenager we mixed with the kids of Pittsburgh who were making the lake their second home. We skied and socialized with them and developed enduring friendships. Now those huge, million-dollar homes belong to the extremely rich, some of whom are possibly too good to mix with the locals. As one skier said to me recently, "Wisp belongs to us."

In the early years as a teenager we were pretty much the only skiers on the slopes. A big gang from Oakland and a handful from the northern part of the county mixed with the lake kids from D.C. or Pittsburgh as we shivered together in the lift line or as we faced the challenge of "The Face," and we became a close-knit crowd. We even shared the problems or tragic happenings in our young lives. The most vivid memory of my father's funeral was the sight of Nancy Geisler crying in one pew in church. We shared the grief over the death of loved ones.

Many of Wisp's crowd are still a part of my life. I don't think it is like that anymore. As the lake's economy grows, something is being lost, too. Anyway, Wisp doesn't hold the attraction of my daughters. Only 4-H ski day and blind skiers' day attract my kids and their cousins to Wisp.

In spite of my daughter's objection, I still would rather watch old movies on TV than any of the modern ones. This morning I saw for a second time a movie called Sister Kenney. It is about a rural nurse in the outback of Australia. She faced several cases of acute polio with a doctor, and she found a treatment that worked, something that the medical establishment was unable to accomplish. As a result, they froze her out and refused to listen to her, a mere nurse and woman. Also as a result hundreds of people, including FDR, were condemned to live in a wheelchair. But she wouldn't stop her work, so hundreds of children were able to walk.

I never saw anything as inspiring as that movie. Sometimes you need a fresh outlook to see what the truth really is. Even sometimes the best experts don't know that much. At least they are unable to speak the truth when the truth threatens their status grid which gives them power. You can look around and see some other examples. One I can see is that women are just naturally inferior to men and all black people are subhuman. Once I had a young man from Garrett County in one of my classes who announced that he was smarter than any _ _ _ _ _, in spite of the fact that he could not write a complete sentence while we were studying some outstanding literature by his "inferiors." In the same classroom there were three black students whom you could see were not only gifted physically, but also mentally. One now goes to the Pentagon almost daily, as his work as computer expert delivers the medical supplies to our armed services in Iraq. I don't know what became of the arrogant white student, but I doubt he has progressed as far as Jimmy Ragler did.

It would be a sad day if all African American kids would believe what many seem to think, that they can't achieve very much and only are fit for the most menial jobs. Or if I believe what the rest of my grad school class believed that I couldn't be from Garrett County, as if Garrett County never produced a gifted and accomplished student who happened to be first in their class. Like RFK said, "Ask not why." You should ask, "Why not."

At the time how could our lowly Laker basketball team beat the national powerhouse ACC? Our point guard, Jimmy, had a mind as fast as his hands, and knew he could steal a ball so effortlessly because he knew where the opposing player would go before he knew for sure. In fact, if Jimmy believed what everyone thinks they know, he would never get a fair chance in Garrett County, where a number of bigoted and narrow-minded people live. If everyone only used their own eyes and experiences to draw conclusions, the world would make faster progress. The most dangerous things in the modern world rely on labels: only a woman, only a nurse, only a Garrett County custodian, etc. Those labels only limit the possibilities.

Some people think News from Bittinger should be just a list of the social activities. No other local community writers give any mention about their personal viewpoint. After all, who needs to hear opinions of an isolated, disabled woman from Bittinger! What could she know about national and international issues? Well, you can draw your own conclusions about that.

Anyway, the only news in Bittinger is just more new snow. Life just goes on here! The kids are in athletic competitions, fund-raising drives, school activities, etc. Most times people only socialize with their own family or within their own church. So you probably know the social news without my even mentioning it. Of course, most of the Bittinger 4-H club handed in their record books in a timely manner. We have had a somewhat lower number of worshippers at church service the last few month, not because of indifferences, but because the depth of snow or sluggish car batteries. If you don't know that Sharon Griffith Buckel is going through tough times with her father's serious illness it is only because you don't know much about her life. Harold passed away last Saturday at Garrett Memorial Hospital.

A classmate of Rodney Glotfelty and Cindy Stanton is gravely ill. She has faced as many terrible crises and challenges as I did, and that is why I want to send her flowers today and not next week. If bad news turns into worse news, at least one little boy angel will be glad to see "Mommy" beyond the Pearly Gates! We will continue to pray for a miracle of healing for her. God does create many miracles, and this may be the one.

It doesn't matter that everyone will have to face death, but it is hard to see the silver lining in its clouds. But it was a beautiful sunrise this morning. I can't be the mother I want to be for my daughters, but I can at least point out the sunrise when they are looking out the window. Beautiful sunrises and sunsets are pretty routine here in Bittinger, but if you pay attention you see each one is different. Although our sunrises are rarely as colorful as our sunsets, I like sunrises much better because a day with light follows them, instead of, at least for me, another long, dark, lonely night.

I am pretty poor in terms of my bank account and credit rating, but I feel rich in terms of my life experiences, and in spirit. Anyway, I am much richer than another former Bittinger girl. Rumors have it that she soaked her blameless ex-husband for a million dollars. I would rather wear clothes from Goodwill than buy expensive clothes with money I got that way. I will get by with a little help from my friends, to quote another Beatles' song. If you know that song, the rest of it is also true about me and about what I need – not anything you could buy with money.

I do need a major car repair or else a new set of wheels because unfortunately my newish car has suffered engine failure. So I am grounded. That is when my cabin fever reaches a critical level. But really, I would rather not go anywhere until spring comes.

Adorable Adoptables

DOODLES, LOU, AND THEIR CREW ARE LOOKING FOR NEW HOMES – Doodles, a female longhaired gray/black tabby, and Lou, a longhaired orange tabby, need new, loving homes. Their previous owners had to give up the felines because they were moving. Lou is described as a very, very friendly indoors cat who is housebroken. Also available for adoption from the Garrett County Animal Shelter are three kittens who were found abandoned in a house. Two of them are pictured below. Their black sibling, however, was a little camera shy. "All three are precious," said a Humane Society spokesperson. Also looking for a new home is Julie, a female Lab/golden retriever mix. Her owners had to give her up because they were moving, too. "This dog is full of play, very nice, is housebroken, and good with kids," said the spokesperson. She reminds residents to report any animal neglect or abuse to the shelter or Humane Society. "This includes lack of food, water, shelter, and veterinary care," she stressed. For more information about adopting these or any other pets from the shelter, persons may call 301-334-3553.

Various Drugs Hold Key Alzheimer's Symptoms

Alzheimer's disease (AD) is a relentless loss of mental function that eventually progresses to dementia and senility. Although AD affects only 1% of those aged 60 to 64, in people over 85, roughly one-third have been diagnosed with this condition. The brain tissue and nerves actually degenerate, and their destruction reduces the responsiveness to chemical messengers and signal transmitters.

Although treatment with some over-the-counter anti-inflammatory drugs may help prevent the disease or slow its progression, the mainstay of therapy is prescription drugs. Daily use of over-the-counter products like ibuprofen or naproxen is thought to potentially prevent disease development by halting brain damage due to inflammation. Donepezil, rivastigmine, tacrine and galantamine all increase the levels of chemical messengers to help mental responsiveness. Recently, the FDA approved memantine for treatment of moderate to severe Alzheimer's symptoms. Unlike previous drugs, memantine has been shown to slow mental deterioration. Researchers indicate, however, that none of these medications actually stop progression of this condition.

ARMED SERVICES REVIEW

Kelly Stein, Grantsville, enlisted in the United States Navy in the delayed entry program during her senior year at Northern High School. She reported to active duty on Nov. 3 for eight weeks of basic training at Great Lakes, Ill., and graduated on Jan. 9. She also completed Airman Training at the Naval Air Station in Pensacola, Fla.

She is currently stationed at the Naval Air Station in Lemoore, Calif.

The Great Lakes recruit training command involves four mission areas: academic achievement, military drill, compartment readiness, and physical fitness. Divisions that perform above standards receive flags to be carried, representing that each sailor, as a team or an individual, met the standards in one or more of the area events.

The divisions that exceed the base requirements in the four areas, therefore designated a battle efficiency division, receive a battle flag. Stein was a seaman recruit in Division 056, which met these requirements.

She is the daughter of Gene Stein and Lucy Stein, the paternal granddaughter of Mary Johnson, and the maternal granddaughter of Clarence and Maxine Guthrie, all of Grantsville.

There was a total of 644 graduates in the local soldier's basic training class.

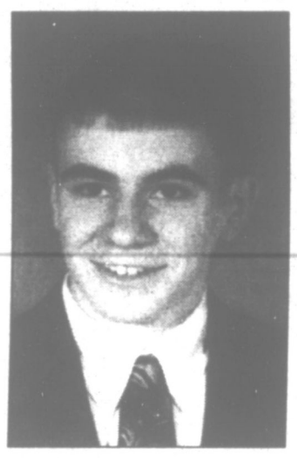
LOCAL BUSINESS SUPPORTS OVFD — Digital Mountain Technology, a local computer business, provided a financial boost to the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department last week. The company sponsored a promotion from which a percentage of money generated for service calls during a one-month period was dedicated to the OVFD. A check for over $400 was presented during the department's February meeting. Pictured from left above are: John Feather, OVFD chief; Curtis West and Kevin Pruner of Digital Mountain Technology; and Fred Callis, OVFD president. Not present for the photo was Rick Carter of DMT.

On Dean's List



Fairmont State College, W.Va., has announced that Michael Saturday, Oakland, has been named to the dean's list for outstanding academic achievement for the fall 2003 semester.

Those selected for this recognition must be full-time students who have attained a semester grade-point average of 3.4 or better.

A technology education major at Fairmont State, Saturday is a graduate of Southern High School and Garrett College. He is the son of Michael and Fayann Saturday.

Grants. Library Notes Hours

The hours of operation of the Ruth Enlow Library in Grantsville have been changed.

The library will open Monday from 11 a.m. until 8 p.m. The hours for Tuesday through Friday are 11 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. Saturday's hours are 9 a.m. until 1 p.m.

Oakland Slates Semimonthly Recycling Effort

Oakland will soon join other municipalities in Garrett County by offering residents the option of recycling certain materials. Beginning the first week of March, specified recyclables will be picked up on the first and third Fridays of each month. Newspapers (and thin glossy inserts) and cans (both ferrous and aluminum) will be collected for the effort.

The Oakland Town Council recently passed an ordinance for recycling newspapers and cans after research indicated that recycling in Oakland is feasible.

The program will be voluntary, but participants are urged to make note of certain requirements that will help the recycling effort go more smoothly, said a spokesperson for the town.

Newspapers and cans must be recycled in separate bags. Bags to be used must be clear (or translucent), strong enough to hold recyclables, and weigh no more than 25 pounds each when filled. Oakland residents may pick up enough bags for March at the town hall during regular business hours (8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. weekdays). Ideally the bags should be the 13-gallon size, if such bags can be found; if not, larger bags should not be filled to weigh more than 25 pounds.

Newspapers may include the thin glossy inserts that come with the publication, but not other paper such as magazines, catalogs, calendars, and personal mail. If the wrong types of paper are included the likely result will be that the bag will not be collected.

Cans may include both ferrous (steel and tin) and nonferrous (aluminum) mixed together; however, these cans must be rinsed out to comply with market standards, sanitary concerns, and to not attract flies, birds, and/or other animals.

Bags containing recyclables must be placed in the regular trash pick-up location by 7 a.m. on the first and third Fridays of each month. Bags are not to be placed in any type of holding bin, trash can, or dumpster, but in clear view for collection crews.

In case of inclement weather, an announcement will be made on a local radio station, or residents may expect the recyclables to be picked up the following week.

For further information on Oakland's recycling program, persons may contact Mayor Asa McCain at 301-334-2691.

On Dean's List

Kristen Rollman, a 2003 graduate of Southern High School, was recently named to the dean's list at Shenandoah University, Winchester, Va., for the fall 2003 semester.

She earned a 4.0 grade point average, and is pursuing a pre-pharmacy major.

She is the daughter of Bob and Nancy Rollman, Mtn. Lake Park.

Shenandoah University is a comprehensive Level VI university with an enrollment of approximately 2,9000 students in five schools.

TA Woman Charged After Vehicle Mishap

Carol Kelley, 31, Terra Alta, W.Va., driving 1990 Chevy Cavalier, was charged after she backed from a parked position at Glass Unlimited onto Old Bridge Road and was struck by a 2000 Ford F-150 Friday afternoon, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

The truck was driven by Clayton Arnold, 75, Oakland.

In other police news, Jason Wayne Lee, 20, Hyndman, Pa., was charged with drunk driving after deputies observed his vehicle swerving in and out of the southbound lane on Garrett Highway before turning onto Mayhew Inn Road and into the parking area of a closed business.

Lee was charged with driving while under the influence of alcohol (DWI), driving while impaired by alcohol (DUI), DWI per se, and failure to drive right of center.

In a separate incident, a vehicle operated by Robert Beckman, 29, Oakland, struck an electric pole after he used evasive action to avoid another vehicle that entered his lane on Garrett Highway approximately one mile south of George Washington Highway Monday afternoon.

Icy and snow covered roads as well as windy conditions played a factor in the accident, police said.

Assisting at the scene were the Southern Rescue Squad, Gorman fire department, Maryland State Highway Administration, and Allegheny Power.

Oakland Update
by Asa McCain

Winter snow removal: We are halfway through February. I would like to commend our street department personnel. The mixed temperatures have caused extensive problems with ice, flooding, and blowing snow, but our crews have worked faithfully to keep the roads open. They have also worked around the clock to remove snow from the downtown business area.

Water on tap: Our water department has done its share of cold weather work. They have worked through the night and into the early morning hours repairing leaks to keep Oakland water customers with uninterrupted water service. When we turn on the faucet, the water flows – we take this for granted.

Wastewater treatment keeping busy: The Oakland wastewater department has been responding to numerous calls regarding frozen sewer lines and flooding problems. It seems this always happens when the temperatures are extremely cold. In addition, they have been assisting the street department as needed.

Police officers ready to go: The town of Oakland has hired three new police officers over the last several months. The last officer will graduate from the police academy on Feb. 20. Our goal is to provide 24-hour, round-the-clock police protection.

Fish hatchery stocking schedule: Spring can't be too far away, because the Maryland Inland Fisheries Service has announced the stocking schedule for the winter and spring of 2004. It appears as though plenty of rainbow trout will be available in the ponds, streams, and rivers of Oakland. At the Glades Pond, we have fishing for youth under the age of 16. In addition, we have finalized the plan for the construction of a handicapped access for boats along the Youghiogheny River. It should be constructed in the spring.

Recycling: Please note a separate article regarding the "start-up" of recycling beginning the first Friday in March.

In Loving Memory of my Uncle,

Kenny Lucas

Dec. 14, 1962 - Feb. 14, 1999

Today my heart is heavy, my thoughts are all of you. This day comes with sad regret, it's a day I'll never forget. Little did I know that day the sorrow it would bring. The shock was so severe, I never thought your death was so near. No farewell words were spoken. No time to say goodbye. You were gone before I knew it, and only Jesus knows why. The calling on you was very hard for me. I still wonder why Jesus took you, but I know I shouldn't question him. For Jesus always has a meaning for things we don't understand. He knew you were sad and that the hills were hard to climb, so he took your hand and whispered, "Peace Be Thine."

He said your work was done and he wanted you with him. Jesus said you'll never suffer, your fears he'll erase. The pain you felt inside your heart will no longer leave a trace. For I know you found the Light on that dark night.

If I knew it'd be the last time I'd see you, I'd have given you a hug and told you how very much I loved you, instead of assuming that you knew. And if tomorrow never came I'd have no regrets about today.

In the dark of the night as I kneel by your grave, I pray for the strength to help me get through one more day. But I know after the darkness the daylight shines through. After the showers, the rainbow's in view.

And after life's heartaches there comes from above the peace and the comfort of Jesus' healing love. Even though we had to part, I think of you always and hold you in my heart. I know some day we'll meet again and it will be a new beginning, not the end.

So until that day comes, I want you to know I miss you so much and love you always.

Kaye

The Arts

Garrett Galaxy Event Is A Sure Way To "Beat The Winter Blues"

The Garrett County Arts Council will present "Garrett Galaxy," a free showcase of local performing artists, at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 21, at Garrett College. The program will offer family entertainment "guaranteed to beat the winter blues," according to a GCAC spokesperson.

"Garrett Galaxy is our annual tribute to local talent," said Steve Schlosnagle, executive director of the Garrett County Arts Council. "We invite the public to join us in appreciation of the performing talents of friends and neighbors."

The Galaxy program will feature a cappella four-part harmony by the Anchored Quartet (Glen Maust, Steve Beachy, Durell Orendorf, and Lamar Yoder), dulcimer music by the Glades Players (Catherine Smith, Kathy Michaels, Judy and Randy McLeod, Connie Skipper, Peggy Carr, June Opel, and Sonja Craver), folk music and traditional tunes by Allegheny (Richard Kusy and Susan Weisbrod), Dixieland jazz by the Mountain Top Dixieland Jazz Band (Larry Perez, Jeff Gilbert, Moe and Julie Turrentine, Dave Wheeler, Gino Mauricci, and Greg Was), Broadway show tunes and old standards by Adam Sincell, and live theatre from Our Town Theatre's production of Valley Song with actors Richard Hill and Chelsea Davis.

Though admission to Garrett Galaxy is free, "contributions are always much appreciated," said the council's spokesperson, "In the spirit of vaudeville, we'll be passing a big hat."

Additional information is available online at www.garrettarts.com or by calling the Arts Council at 301-334-6580.

AMONG THE GARRETT GALAXY'S STARS are Accident's Anchored Quartet, which will take to Garrett College stage during the upcoming showcase of the Garrett County Arts Council. The group's four-part a capella harmony blends the voices of (shown from the left) Durrell Orendorf, Glen Maust, Lamar Yoder, and Steve Beachy. Other performances will include the dulcimer music of the Glades Players, folk and traditional music by Allegheny, the swinging southern sounds of the Mountaintop Dixieland Jazz Band, show tunes and old standards by Adam Sincell, and selected scenes from Our Town Theatre's production of Valley Song performed by Richard Hill and Chelsea Davis. The lights will come up on the Garrett Galaxy in the free program set for 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 21. See story.

FSU Reschedules Comedy And Pet Theatre Program

Frostburg State University's Cultural Events Series has rescheduled the "Gregory Popovich's Comedy and Pet Theatre" performance to a new date of Sunday, Feb. 29, at 3 p.m. at FSU's Pealer Recital Hall. Tickets already issued for the original Friday, Feb. 6, performance, which was postponed because of inclement weather, will be honored at the Feb. 29 event.

Persons who previously purchased tickets should contact the Cultural Events Series Box Office no later than Monday, Feb. 23, at 301-687-3137, or toll free at 1-866-TIXX-CES to confirm their new reservation or request a refund. The box office is open weekdays from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Frostburg State Will Host Trio On February 21

The Frostburg State University Faculty/Guest Artist Series will present a concert featuring clarinetist Mark Gallagher, a member of FSU's music faculty; violist Kenneth Kwo, a performer in the Florida Orchestra; and pianist May Phang of DePauw University on Saturday, Feb. 21, at 8 p.m. in the Performing Arts Center Pealer Recital Hall. The trio will perform works by Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart, Robert Schumann, British composer Rebecca Clarke, and Hungarian composer Gyorgy Kurtag.

Gallagher made his New York recital debut performing with violinist Sylvia Rosenberg at Lincoln Center's Alice Tully Hall and is also a winner of the Artist International Competition in New York City, which resulted in a solo recital at Weill Hall. An active chamber musician, Gallagher has performed throughout the United States and Europe, including a recent concert tour of the Netherlands and a live national radio broadcast from the Concertgebouw. He has recorded with the Albany Records label and can be heard on the Eastman "American Music" Series. Gallagher is also an active teacher and clinician, lecturing on occupational health issues for musicians and the Alexander Technique. He is an adjunct professor of clarinet and music theory at FSU. During the summer, he is director of faculty and performs at the Semplice Harbor School of Music and Chamber Festival on Washington Island, Wis.

Kwo has been a member of the Tri-City Symphony of Iowa, the Northwood Orchestra, and the Colorado Philharmonic Orchestra. He has also performed at numerous summer festivals, including the Coronado Music Festival in Tucson, the Festival of the Lakes in northern Michigan, and with the Swannanoa Chamber Players in North Carolina. Currently he is a member of the Florida Orchestra, which performs in the tri-city area of Tampa, Clearwater, and St. Petersburg. In addition to his symphony schedule, Kwo is active as a teacher, freelancer, and chamber musician throughout the Tampa Bay area. During the summer, he is a chamber music coach at the Kinhaven Music School in Vermont.

Phang began piano studies in her native Singapore and recently completed a doctoral degree at Temple University in Philadelphia. She is an assistant professor of piano at DePauw University in Indiana. She has given numerous solo and chamber music recitals and concerts in Singapore, Canada, the United States, and Europe. She is a prizewinner of several competitions, including the Chopin Young Pianists' Competition in Buffalo, N.Y., the Canadian Music Competition, Concours d'orchestre symphonique de Montréal, and Pontoise International Young Artists Competition in France. FSU's Poet In Residence Sets Poetry Reading

Gerry LaFemina, Frostburg State University's award-winning poet in residence for the spring 2004 semester, will present a poetry reading at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Feb. 16, in Room 201 of the university's Lane Center.

LaFemina is the author of four collections of poetry, several short stories and four short collections of poetry known as "chapbooks." He has two more books slated for release this year, one of which received the Bordighera Prize for 2003 and will be published in both English and Italian. He has also co-translated Voice Lock Puppet, a collection of Turkish poems by Ali Yuce.

LaFemina published his first poems while he was still an undergraduate at Sarah Lawrence College. His first two books of poetry contain works that he wrote as a graduate student at Western Michigan University. He has been teaching for the past 10 years.

LaFemina's books include Graffiti Heart, winner of the Anthony Piccione Poetry Prize. Window Facing Winter will be published this spring, and The Parakeets of Brooklyn, winner of the Bordighera Prize, will be published this fall.

For more information about the poetry reading, persons may contact the FSU Department of English at 301-687-4221.

Young Readers Club To Discuss Newbery Winner

The Ruth Enlow Library Young Readers Club will meet at 4:15 p.m. on Thursday, March 4, in the Oakland library to discuss Pictures of Hollis Woods by Patricia Reilly Giff. The novel was selected as a 2003 Newbery Honor Book, one of the top honors bestowed by the American Library Association to a young readers' book.

"Giff [who also authored Lily's Crossing and All the Way Home] again introduces a carefully delineated and sympathetic heroine in this quiet contemporary novel," according to Publisher's Weekly.

"Hollis Woods has been in so many foster homes she can hardly remember them all. She even runs away from the Regans, the one family who offers her a home.

"When Hollis is sent to Josie, an elderly artist who is quirky and affectionate, she wants to stay. But Josie is growing more forgetful every day. If Social Services finds out, they'll take Hollis away and move Josie into a home. Well, Hollis Woods won't let anyone separate them. She's escaped the system before; this time, she plans to take Josie with her.

"Yet behind all her plans, Hollis longs for her life with the Regans, fixing each moment of her time with them in pictures she'll never forget." (From the publisher's description.)

Persons may stop by the Oakland library or call 301-334-3996 to reserve a copy of this month's selection.

Upcoming Young Readers Club book selections include Quit It by Marcia Byalick and Surviving the Applewhites by Stephanie Tolan.

The library also offers book clubs for teens and adults. Persons may check the Ruth Enlow Library's Web site at www.relib.net or call the number given above for more information. All book clubs are funded in part by the Friends of the Library.

BOARD RECOGNIZES CHRISTMAS CARD DESIGNER – Laci Slagle, a senior at Northern High School, was recognized at the recent Garrett County Board of Education meeting for designing the Christmas card that was sent from the board and the superintendent to all employees, each Maryland school superintendent, and various county and state agencies in December 2003. Slagle is pictured above holding a framed copy of the card. She is flanked by Jim Raley, board president, on the left, and Dr. Wendell Teets, superintendent.

FSU Schedules Performance Of Private Eyes

The "relationship thriller" comedy Private Eyes will be presented at Frostburg State University at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, Feb. 20 and 21. The offering is the first in the 2004 spring semester slate of the FSU Theater's Season Too!

Audience members will play the "role of detective" in the play, which was written by Steven Dietz and is being directed by Beth Lindsey Sivakoff. The storyline features "deception, adultery, love, and therapy [in] a world in which nothing is quite as it seems." Tickets are priced at $3 each, and for reservations and further information persons may call 301-387-7462.

Grant Funding Available For Area Art Events

The Garrett County Arts Council is accepting applications from non-profit organizations seeking funding support for arts programs, projects, and activities scheduled to take place in Garrett County between July 1, 2004, and June 30, 2005. The deadline to apply for the grant funding, available in amounts of $500 and up, is Sunday, March 21. Applications must be mailed or delivered to the Arts Council office on or before that date to be considered for funding.

The Arts Council allocates approximately $30,000 each year for grant funding to support community arts development and the public presentation of arts events in Garrett County. Current recipients of council grants include the Art Gallery at Garrett College, Garrett Choral Society, Garrett Community Concert Band, Garrett County 4-H, Garrett County Board of Education, Garrett Lakes Arts Festival, Greater Oakland Business Association, Grantsville Lions Club, Hammers & Strings, Northern and Southern Garrett Band Boosters, Our Town Theatre, Spruce Forest Artisan Village, St. Mark's Lutheran Church, the town of Kitzmiller, and other organizations.

Application forms, eligibility guidelines, and program requirements may be obtained at the Gallery along Alder Street in Oakland, or by calling the Garrett County Arts Council at 301-334-6580.

Love Letters To Be Presented In Thomas, W.Va.

Valley Ridge Theatre, Thomas, W.Va., will present Love Letters by A.R. Gurney this Valentine's Day weekend. Performances will be held Friday, Saturday, and Sunday, Feb. 13-15, at 7 p.m. each evening.

The play follows the lifelong correspondence between Melissa Gardner, a wealthy, rebellious artist, and Andre Makepeace Ladd III, an upper-middle class young man with political aspirations.

Lonely and desperate for attention, Melissa spends her young life being shuffled from one boarding school to another, and as a restless adult, finds herself going from city to city and from lover to lover. The only constant in her life is her correspondence with Andrew.

In contrast, Andrew spends his boyhood years trying to live up to his father's high expectations, succeeding in politics, working to be a role model, and living the "American Dream."

"Still, Andrew is drawn to Melissa's passion and spirit, and her letters constantly challenge him to be true to himself and not to be so concerned with images," said a theatre spokesperson. "In spite of their very different life choices, the two find great comfort and strength in each other's letters — the comfort that comes with having a 'good old friend.'"

After the performance, audience members will have an opportunity to get up on stage and read their own love letters or poems. "Or if you like," said the spokesperson, "we'll read it for you. Just give it to the house manager or box office manager."

Audience members may also e-mail them prior to the performance at info@valleyridgetheatre.org. "Let us know when you're coming so we'll be sure to read it on the correct night," said the spokesperson.

The theatre is located along Front Street. For ticket prices or to make reservations, persons may call 304-463-3365 or visit online at valleyridgetheatre.org.

NHS Boys Skin Elks, Down Union; Edged By Fort Hill

The Northern High School boys' varsity basketball team slammed Salisbury Friday in a 79-30 win, then crushed Union the following day 70-48. On Tuesday the Huskies came within eight points of toppling fifth-ranked Fort Hill on the Sentinels' homecourt in a narrow 55-47 loss. Another big game looms tonight as Northern (7-10) sojourns to Oakland to take on arch-rival Southern.

NHS spread the points around against the visiting Elks Friday as the Huskies exploded to a 22-2 first quarter lead, a 42-5 halftime advantage, and a 62-16 tally heading into the final stanza.

The promotions of several junior varsity players resulted in a dozen Huskies making it into the scoring column. NHS senior guard Jason Rice bagged 15 points, nailing a trio of three-point buckets along the way. Sophomore forward Blake Walker contributed 13 points, and junior Eric Johnson added nine. Chris Speicher recorded eight points and seven assists, and sophomore classmate Brent Beachy notched eight points and six steals. Aaron Beiler led Salisbury (0-11) with 10 points.

Saturday's big win at Union featured a long-distance shooting display by Rice, who sank five three-point buckets on his way to a game-high 20 points. Beachy hit for 13 points, Walker had 12, and senior Andrew Frantz had 9. Kenny Jones recorded 13 points for Union (3-12).

Northern controlled the contest from the outset, as the Huskies mounted a 21-8 first quarter advantage, a 38-15 halftime lead, and a 50-31 tally heading into the fourth quarter.

NHS's jayvee unit dropped a 44-25 contest. Paul Cogen had eight points for the Huskies, while Teddy Kitzmiller and Aaron Streets had 14 each for Union.

The Huskies put the Fort Hill fans on the edge of their seats Tuesday night as Northern rallied from a 15-9 first-quarter deficit to snag a 24-23 halftime lead. The Sentinels answered NHS's 15-8 second-quarter run with a 16-9 run of their own through the third stanza that had FH up 39-33 going into the fourth quarter. Northern refused to quit down the stretch, and were outscored by just a 16-14 margin over the final eight minutes.

Beachy hit for 18 game-high points on five field goals and a strong 8-for-11 tally from the free-throw line. Speicher and Rice were the only other NHS players to approach double figures, as each recorded eight points, with Rice sinking a pair of treys. Fort Hill (10-7) was paced by Harley Brooks, who scored 15 points.

Northern dropped a 48-24 junior varsity contest, as Griffin scored six points for the Huskies and Ryan Foutz netted eight for the Sentinels.

The Huskies have three contests coming up this week, each of which is slated for radio broadcast. Tonight's NHS-SHS battle in Oakland will be simulcast on both WKHJ 104.5 FM and 92.3 FM The Train, with pre-game coverage kicking off at 7 p.m. in preparation for the 7:30 p.m. tip-off.

Tomorrow night NHS hosts Beall, and Tuesday Hancock will pay a visit. Both of those games will be aired on WKHJ, with 7:15 pre-game shows preceding the 7:30 p.m. game starts.

Each of the three varsity games will be played following the 6 p.m. junior varsity match-ups.

Huskies Bag Elks, Fall To Spartans, Roll By Raiders

The Northern High School girls' varsity basketball team took a thrilling come-from-behind win over Salisbury Friday, 33-31, fell to Bishop Walsh in a 54-31 defeat Monday, and used a strong third quarter to help down Meyersdale Tuesday, 47-36. The Huskies had strong performances over the slate from senior guard Lyndsi Butler, junior forward Jeseca Gibson, and junior center Lakin Weimer.

Friday's battle with the Elks showed NHS's determination, as the Huskies fell behind 9-8 after one quarter and were down 18-16 at the half. Salisbury seemed in control as the fourth stanza opened, as the Elks had rolled up a 26-20 advantage. However, Northern thrilled its home crowd by going on a 13-5 run over the final eight minutes that gave the hosts the win. A key to the game was NHS's 11-for-19 shooting from the free-throw line, while Salisbury shot itself in the foot by recording a miserable 4-for-11 showing from the charity stripe.

Lakin Weimer turned in a dominating performance on the boards as she hauled down a game-high 17 rebounds and added 11 points on her way to a double-double. Butler paced all scorers with 13 points, and showed her quick reflexes by snagging seven steals. Lindsey Otto led Salisbury with 11 points.

Monday night's match-up with BW was a game of two halves, as the Huskies held close during the two quarters before falling by the wayside over the second half. The first stanza ended with NHS down by a slim 11-9 margin, and at the intermission the hosts were behind by only three points, 24-21. An 18-7 third-quarter run put the Spartans up by an insurmountable 42-28 margin, and BW coasted from there to the 23-point victory.

Gibson paced Northern with 12 points, which included a trio of three-point buckets. Butler sank two treys on her way to 8 points, and Weimer ripped down 14 rebounds. Bishop Walsh (12-6) was led by Karen Iames, who scored 20 points.

The following night the Huskies let Meyersdale out on a short leash early on, as the visiting Red Raiders jumped out to a 9-8 first quarter advantage. NHS rebounded to take a 19-15 halftime lead, and tore through a 20-8 run over the third stanza to roll to a 39-23 advantage as the fourth quarter opened.

Gibson took game-high scoring honors with 23 points, a tally that featured four three-pointers. Butler hit a pair of treys on her way to a 16-point tally, and the quick-handed guard purloined no less than eight steals. Weimer controlled the low post by grabbing a team-high nine rebounds. Meyersdale was paced by 17 points recorded by Vanessa Housel.

The Huskies (6-13) are slated to visit Westmar Monday before returning home on Thursday, Feb. 19, to host the Frankfort Falcons. Game times are 6 p.m. for the jayvees, and 7:30 p.m. for the varsity squads.

Rams Cruise To Easy Victory Over Vikings For 10th Win

The varsity boys' basketball team of Southern High School had little trouble upping its record to 10-7 Tuesday night, as the Rams coasted to a 51-28 thumping of Petersburg on the Vikings' court.

Corey Tressler scored 16 points and Cory Bosley netted 14 to pace the Rams in scoring.

Southern held a 15-8 lead at the end of the first quarter, was on top by a 28-17 spread at intermission, and then out-scored the home team in the third stanza by a 14-4 margin to give them a commanding 42-21 advantage going into the final eight minutes.

The Vikings did not have a single opportunity at the foul line, as the Rams committed just nine infractions for the entire game. Southern made good on eight of 12 from the line and finished with a 20-13 lead in field goals.

Graham Porter was the only Viking who reached double figures, as he recorded 11 points. It was the 10th loss in 16 outings for Petersburg.

The Southern junior varsity team was defeated in the preliminary game, 45-37. The win gave the Viking jayvees an 11-3 record.

The Rams will be back in action again this evening when they host Northern in a make-up game. The junior varsity game will tip off at 6 p.m., and the varsity teams will square off at 7:30.

Rams Avenge Season Debut Loss By Downing #1 Vikings

Revenge has been doubly sweet over the last two outings for the Southern High School girls' varsity basketball team, as the Rams followed up on a big win over Beall last Wednesday, Feb. 4 (reported in last week's issue) with a huge 66-61 victory last night over Petersburg. The Rams' record improves to 13-4.

The host Vikings had pillaged SHS by 27 points in Oakland during December's season opener, and had beaten the Rams in three consecutive outings over the last two years. Last night's battle, Southern's first in a full week, got off to a thrilling start. The combatants were knotted at 20-all after one quarter, and were separated by just one basket at the half as the Rams held a slim 36-34 lead. SHS began slowly pulling away over a 15-12 third-quarter run that put the guests up 51-46 as the pivotal fourth stanza got under way.

The final eight minutes were even more competitive, as each squad clawed for every possession, every rebound, every basket. Southern held a 64-61 lead when, with 20 seconds on the clock, a Viking sharpshooter launched a three-point attempt that missed its mark. Forced to foul, PHS sent Ram guard Sabrina Scheffel to the line, and the senior nailed a pair of clutch free-throws with 13 seconds showing to clinch the game for Southern.

SHS guard Robbin Gregg paced all scorers with 22 points, including a pair of three-point buckets, while Scheffel contributed 14, sophomore forward Kendra McLaughlin recorded 13, and senior forward Becca Flanagan added 10. Petersburg's Katie Lambert led her Vikes (14-2) with 18 points.

The Rams kick off this week's slate with a home game against Fort Hill tomorrow night, then Hedgesville is slated to visit Saturday. Southern visits Keyser on Wednesday in a contest slated for radio broadcast on 92.3 FM The Train, with a 7:15 p.m. pre-game show preceding the 7:30 p.m. varsity tip-off. The JV squads play at 6 p.m.

Mt. Top Hoops League Slates Playoff Pairings

Sunday's final regular season slate of the Mt. Top Basketball League was canceled because of a scheduling conflict with the Garrett College men's and women's teams, both of which were playing make-up games in the GC gym.

The Mt. Top League playoffs get under way this Sunday, Feb 15, with the following teams: ConDoerr vs. Scott Ford at 1 p.m., with Copeland's keeping score; Copeland's vs. Midas at 2 p.m., with the winner of the preceding game keeping score; Mt. Top Paving vs. Plaza Hobby at 3 p.m., with the winner of the preceding game keeping score; and First United vs. Smiley's at 4 p.m., with the winner of the preceding game keeping score.

Lakers Earn Two Big Wins Before Falling To Cardinals

Two big Maryland JUCO Conference wins were followed by a disappointing conference loss this past week for the men's basketball team of Garrett College.

The Lakers recorded an 83-76 victory over a good Dundalk squad last Thursday on the road and edged an outstanding Hagerstown Community College team on Sunday, 72-71, in McHenry, but then went flat on Monday and fell to visiting Catonsville, 62-52.

The results left the Lakers with an overall record of 20-3 and a JUCO mark of 11-3, which they will put on the line this evening at Baltimore City.

Thursday's game at Dundalk turned into a three-point shooting tournament, as 78 total points were scored from long range. The Lakers drained 15 shots, while the Lions made good on 11 of their shots from the perimeter. Garrett took 31 shots from that distance, giving them just under 50% in effectiveness.

"Their 1-2-2 zone forced us to take long shots," stated Laker coach Dennis Gibson. "So we took them, and we made half of them."

Akeem Scott netted five of the Lakers' three-pointers and finished with a team-high 20 points, while Jon Mann hit four three-pointers and Adam Morgan recorded three. Scott also had seven assists and six steals.

Darren Stackhouse had a double-double night for Garrett with 17 points and a game-high 12 rebounds, plus two blocked shots.

Jermond Harper 1 2-2 5, Antonio Alston 0 2-2 2, Pat Carwile 1 0-0 2, Jon Mann 5 0-0 14, Akeem Scott 5 5-5 20, Darren Stackhouse 6 4-8 17, Darvus Gray 3 0-0 6, Lavonti Jeter 2 0-1 5, Adam Morgan 3 3-4 12. Totals 26 16-22 83.
DUNDALK (76)
Theo Karatzakislis 1 0-0 3, Rashard Petty 7 1-2 16, Dewood Drew 8 2-2 20, Valdez Preston 5 0-0 14, Tirrell Hawes 1 0-0 2, Kevin Mosley 5 2-9 12, Adam DeAngelo 3 0-0 9. Totals 30 5-13 76.
Halftime: Garrett 38, Dundalk 36.
Three-point goals - Garrett 15 (Scott 5, Mann 4, Morgan 3, Harper, Stackhouse, Jeter), Dundalk 11 (Preston 4, DeAngelo 3, Drew 2, Karazakislis, Petty). Total fouls - Garrett 13, Dundalk 17. Fouled out-none. Rebounds - Garrett 44 (Stackhouse 12), Dundalk 32 (Drew 9). Assists - Garrett 22 (Scott 7), Dundalk 18. Steals - Garrett 10 (Scott 6), Dundalk 15 (Petty 5). Blocked shots - Garrett 4 (Stackhouse 2), Dundalk 2. Turnovers - Garrett 28, Dundalk 20.

Mann and Morgan also finished in double figures with 14 and 12 points, respectively, while Lavonti Jeter pulled down eight rebounds.

Dewood Drew, who was averaging over 30 points per game for the Lions, was held to a team-high 20 and grabbed nine rebounds, while Rashard Petty scored 16, Valdez Preston finished with 14, and Kevin Mosley added 12.

Preston hit four three-pointers and Adam DeAngelo nailed three.

The Lakers, who led in rebounds, 44-32, held a 38-36 edge at intermission. Garrett also played well at the foul line, converting 16 of 22 opportunities.

Garrett had trouble taking care of the ball, committing 28 turnovers, compared to 20 by the Lions.

"Dundalk is a tough place to play," Gibson said. "They are in the middle of the (JUCO) pack right now, and we knew it was going to be a challenge for us. With 28 turnovers we were lucky to win."

It was a free throw by Adam Morgan with just over two seconds left in Sunday's contest with Hagerstown that gave the Lakers their one-point victory.

The Hawks were on top by eight, 33-25, and had led throughout the game until the Lakers hit a bucket at the 6:25 mark of the second half that knotted the score at 56-56.

Hagerstown moved back out in front and stayed there until Garrett's Pat Carwile nailed a three-pointer with 21 seconds remaining that tied the score again at 71-71.

In a scramble for a loose ball, Morgan was fouled with 2.3 seconds left on the clock, and he made good on the first of two shots, which would prove to be the margin of victory for the Lakers.

Morgan also led the team in scoring with a game-high 19 points, 18 of which were scored on six three-point buckets, Scott was right behind with 18 points, plus 10 assists and eight rebounds, while Stackhouse recorded 11 points, six rebounds, and six assists.

The Hawks finished with a balanced offensive effort, as Thomas Johnson led five players in double figures. He netted 14 points, followed by Andrew Brooks with 13 and Terrell Hittelberger, Ray Gamble, and Rexson Kenley each with 12 points.

The Lakers' outstanding three-point shooting went stone cold in Monday's encounter with Catonsville, as they took 24 shots from long range and hit only two for an 8% effort.

The Lakers' 52 points was their lowest total of the season.

The Cardinals led throughout most of the game, and were up by seven at halftime, 27-20.

Scott led the Lakers with 13 points and four assists, and was the only Garrett player who reached double figures. Carwile and Stackhouse each contributed nine points, and Lavonti Jeter recorded three blocks.

Devon West, Rod Harris, and Moe Douglas were the scoring leaders for the Cardinals, hitting 14, 13, and 11 points, respectively.

After tonight's meeting with Baltimore City, the Lakers will host Harford CC on Friday and entertain the College of Southern Maryland on Saturday. Friday's game is scheduled to tip off at 7 p.m., and Saturday's start is set for 5 p.m. Those games will conclude Garrett's regular season.

The Lakers will host an opening round game in the Maryland JUCO tournament next Tuesday.

GC Women Going For JUCO Crown Saturday After Big Wins

The biggest game to date lies in wait for the Garrett College women's basketball team this weekend as the squad hosts Howard for the Maryland JUCO regular season title, and with three crushing victories this week the Lakers are riding a wave of 13 straight wins heading into the homecourt conference showdown. On Saturday GC pounded Essex 99-41, then the Lakers slammed Southern Maryland Tuesday 83-41. Last night Garrett grounded Allegany College of Maryland by a 93-51 margin.

Against Essex, sophomores LaSha Anderson and Jenna Bradford teamed for 27 and 25 points, respectively, as four Lakers overall hit for double figures. The Lakers led 53-20 at the half.

Sophomore Tiffany McFarland contributed 13 points and Oakland native Ashley Liller recorded 12, while freshman Denae Kennedy just missed the mark with 9 points. Liller had a pair of Garrett's five three-pointers.

Halftime - Garrett 53-20.
Three-point goals - Garrett 5 (Kennedy 1, Liller 2, Bradford 1, Anderson 1), Essex 0. Total fouls - Garrett 16, Essex 10. Fouled out - none.

Anderson had seven rebounds, four assists, and three steals. Bradford completed a double-double effort with 10 assists and three steals. Freshman Lovarsha Knox had 10 rebounds and sophomore Tamika Duck nine. Bethany led the Knights with 16 points.

Tuesday night's 42-point win over host Southern Maryland featured a 27-point performance by Anderson, while Bradford chipped in 23. Further details were not available.

Last night's Trojan-ripping runaway win, which got off to a 48-23 halftime advantage for Garrett, was paced by another superbly balanced offensive showing.

Five Lakers hit for double figures, with Kennedy's 21 points leading the way. Liller, who netted three of GC's five treys, recorded 17 points; Anderson contributed 14; and Bradford and Autumn Beavers scored 11 apiece.

McFarland and Duck each grabbed nine rebounds, while Kennedy and Liller snagged five rebounds and six steals apiece. Kennedy handed out five assists, while Liller dished out four scoring passes.

Allegany's only player in double figures was Jessica George, who had 12 points.

"[Garrett] coach [Steve] Willison does a great job, and his girls play hard," Allegany coach Steve Bazarnic remarked afterward.

"This was a huge win for us," Willison commented. "Allegany had beaten CCAC-Allegheny, one of only two teams that had beaten us, and earlier in the week the Trojans had lost to a great Baltimore team by just one point. Looking back, at one point early in the year we were 5-2 and wondering how the year was going to pan out, but our women took the situation into their own hands and now have control over their own destiny.

"It's an especially great feeling to be going after the JUCO regular season championship, which would be the first one for either the women's or men's basketball programs at Garrett, in front of our home crowd Saturday. We hope we can fill the gym with supporters, and we promise to make it a competitive battle."

Prior to Saturday's 3 p.m. Howard battle, the Lakers will visit Catonsville tomorrow. Looking down the road, Garrett will be hard at work practicing for the Maryland JUCO women's tourney, which will get under way in Hagerstown next Friday, Feb. 20, and continue through the following Sunday.

Ram Wrestlers Whip Beall, Fall To Lions At Tournament

The Maryland 1A/2A West Region Dual Wrestling Championships were held last night at South Carroll High School, involving the top four ranked teams in the region, and it proved to be a good test for the Southern High School squad.

The Rams, seeded third in the tourney, rolled over second-seeded Beall for the second time in two weeks, 43-20, but was then edged by fourth-seeded and tournament champion Walkersville, 42-31. The Lions had nipped top-seeded South Carroll, 28-27, in the other first-round match.

Southern's win over Beall featured a second individual victory for freshman Daniel Carr over Beall junior Travis Dixon, which was only Dixon's second loss of the season, plus a decision victory by Southern freshman Justin Ratliff over previously undefeated senior Nathan Jackson.

Some of the Mountaineers displayed their frustration at the end of the match and were slapped with a one-point deduction for unsportsmanlike conduct.

Recording pins for the Rams against Beall were Jeffrey Gregory in the 140-pound division, Scott Wildesen in the 152-pound encounter, Chris Bennett in the 189-pound clash, and heavyweight Dan Goulart.

Getting a major decision was Nathan Sines in the 135-pound class, while regular decision wins were earned by Josh Armstrong at 103 pounds, Ratliff over Jackson (119), Carr over Dixon (125), Jeremy Gregory at 145, and Chris Tepper at 160.

Getting pins for the Mountaineers were Brent Walker (112), Chris Lewis (130), and Chris Lindeman (215).

The highlights of Southern's match with Walkersville were Sines defeating Chad Cotterman, ranked second in the state, by decision in the 135-pound class; Carr recording his 20th individual win of the season; and Ram Andrew Pritts just being edged in overtime by Ryan Sweeney in the 130-pound bout.

Another negative factor for the Rams is the health of 171-pound Jason Weeks, one of their most outstanding grapplers, who is presently hampered by a shoulder injury.

Winning on pins for the Rams against Walkersville were Ratliff (119), Carr (125), Wildesen (160), and Goulart (275).

Gaining a major decision was Bennett (189), while Sines (135) won by regular decision.

Pins for the Lions were recorded by Luke Gleason Sweeney (103), Luke Milyard (112), Mike Smith (140), Dan Caywood (145), Danny Neal (152), and Billy Burke (215).

The Rams will complete their regular season with a make-up match at Westmar next Wednesday.

Southern will return to Westmar on Feb. 21 to compete in the Bi-County Tournament.

Other Garrett County Fair donations to the Southern Rescue Squad were made by Gary and Rich Evans of Evans Farm, who donated one lamb; Bill's Marine Service, Glotfelty Enterprises, Sweitzer, Simson & Associates, and Dr. P. Daniel Miller, each donors of a half beef; and F&M Bank in McHenry, which donated one hog.

Ram Grapplers Flatten Wildcats For 12th Victory

The wrestling team of Southern High School concluded its regular schedule on Saturday by whipping host North Hagerstown, 60-20, giving the Rams a 12-1 record which they took into last night's regional dual meet (see other story for results).

Nine of the Rams' 10 individual victories against the Hubs were via pins, while the 10th was a forfeit awarded to Josh Armstrong in the 103-pound division.

Recording those nine pins for the Rams were: Greg Graham at 112 pounds; Justin Ratliff at 119 pounds; Daniel Carr, 125 pounds; Nathan Sines, 135; Jeffrey Gregory, 140; Jeremy Gregory, 145; Scott Wildesen, 160; Chris Bennett, 189; and Dan Goulart, 275.

The only pins for the Hubs were earned by Jonathan Breehl at 152 pounds, and Dean Staley in the 171-pound clash.

The Rams' next competition will be the Bi-County Tournament, on Feb. 21.

Husky Matmen Easily Defeat Wildcats, 60-16

The Northern High School wrestling team had no trouble disposing of Westmar in a make-up match last night in Lonaconing, as the Huskies trounced the Wildcats, 60-16.

Gaining pinfall victories for the Huskies were Casey Kamp in the 112-pound division, Travis Glover in the 119-pound clash, Rocco Andrews at 140 pounds, and Shane Snider in the 215-pound division.

Point victories were earned by Michael Moyer in the 135-pound class and Jared Beachy in the heavyweight division, while Randy Wilhelm (103), Eric Garlitz (130), Michael Wolf (145), Brandon Opel (171), and Brock Glotfelty (189) were all awarded forfeits.

Recording pins for the Wildcats were Jesse Green (125) and Matthew Marchinke (160).

The Huskies have one more match to make up to complete their regular season. That is slated for this evening at home against Preston. It will get under way at 7 p.m.

Northern will compete in the Bi-County Tournament at Westmar on Feb. 21.

GC Ice Fishing Contest Winners Are Announced

The winners of the Garrett County Ice Fishing Contest, sponsored by Deep Creek Outfitters and the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce, for the week ending February 8 are:

Walleye, 4 lbs. 8 ozs., 22-1/2 in., caught by Dan Feaster, Manns Choice, Pa.

Yellow perch, 1 lb. 8 ozs., 14 in., caught by Bob Griffith, Vandergrift, Pa.

Weekly winners are awarded a certificate, and plaques are awarded for the season's largest catches of bluegill, brown trout, chain pickerel, crappies, largemouth and smallmouth bass, northern pike, rainbow trout, walleye, and yellow perch. Fish must be caught in Garrett County waters and be registered at Deep Creek Outfitters, 1899 Deep Creek Drive, McHenry. The ice fishing contest will continue until the lakes of Garrett County are no longer frozen.

Cardboard Derby Race Set For Feb. 28 At Wisp Resort

A new event/venue was added to Winterblast, formerly Winterfest, at Wisp last year when the Deep Creek Lake Lions Club introduced the cardboard box derby held at Bear Claw Tubing Park. This year the event is scheduled for Saturday, Feb. 29, starting at 1 p.m.

Ed King, coordinator of the event, reports it was a great success and brought back memories of Winterfest activities of old, such as annual Yakapah costume parades, appearance of the famous Budweiser Clydesdale horses, snowmobile races on The Face, and the Thunderhill Singers.

The Derby permitted many local and visiting families to enter the event and compete for the chance to win cash prizes. More than 27 individuals and local businesses entered the 2003 Derby, and greater participation is hoped for this year, King said.

Entry fees for the 2003 Derby raised more than $1,200 for the Lions Club programs. The club is creating two soccer/recreation fields on Bumble Bee Road near McHenry. The monies also help fund the club's Blind Skiers Program and benefit local charities.

Derby boxes must be constructed exclusively of cardboard, string, and tape. No metal is permitted. Some boxes make it to the finish line and others disintegrate under speed and stress, said King.

Judging for the trophy and 1st, 2nd and 3rd cash prizes is based on the categories of speed, design and originality. Rules and entry forms are available at Wisp Ski School desk at the Lodge in McHenry or by calling Ed King at 301-387-4700, ext. 211.

SHOWBOAT GRABS FRANTZ, FRANTZ GRABS PANTS – Kevin "Showboat" Jackson of the Harlem Rockets is pictured as he grabs hold of 911 Outlaw player Brad Frantz in one of the many surprise moves at Monday night's showdown. Frantz, on edge after several instances of attempted pantsings, instinctively grabbed his waistband in hopes of remaining clothed. Ricky Reams, a 2001 graduate of Southern and veteran player, shown at left, took on the rather intimidating job of refereeing the uproarious, unorthodox game. Photo by John McEwen.

HEYYY, MACARENA! In the spirit of the evening, the Harlem Rockets were inspired to stop the basketball game with the 911 Outlaws Monday night long enough to get in a quick rendition of the macarena. People poured from the packed stands to take part, and even though it's a somewhat dated dance, everyone seemed to remember the moves. A couple of the Rockets can be seen in the middle of the crowd, towering over everyone. The mood at the sold-out event was celebratory — a welcome break in the middle of a bleak winter, and a successful fund-raiser for the Southern Garrett Rescue Squad. Photo by John McEwen.

FUNNY, YES, BUT INCREDIBLE ATHLETES, TOO – The Harlem Rockets, who took on the local 911 Outlaws in a fund-raising game Monday night, were not only hilarious in their antics but amazing in their athletic ability. The players all have long histories of professional basketball experiences, and their talent was more than evident throughout the evening. Shots made from half-court went in, and the ball-handling in both defensive and offensive play was fascinating. The team's web site, which includes all team and player information, can be accessed at harlemrockets.org. Kevin "Showboat" Jackson is pictured as he soars above Oakland Police chief John Sines at left and Brad Frantz, director of the Garrett County Office of Emergency Management, at right. Fires Damage

The second Friday alarm was at 8:41 a.m., and volunteers and equipment from Deep Creek, Oakland, Accident, and Bittinger fire departments responded to the Leo and Dorothy Friend residence at 6642 Oakland-Sang Run Road.

Upon their arrival, firefighters found fire inside an interior wall in the living room of the two-story, wood-frame structure. It was contained in about 10 minutes; however, damages were estimated by Deputy State Fire Marshal Jamie Rodeheaver to be $5,000 to the structure and contents.

Mr. and Mrs. Friend were apparently not injured; however, Mr. Friend, who had been in ill health for some time, died the following day. It was unknown if the fire was directly related to his demise.

Rodeheaver's report said that the Friends did have smoke alarms, which operated properly. He determined that the cause of the fire was a faulty electrical outlet in the living room wall.

Hearing On Assault Weapons Bill Disrupted By Protesters

by Marc Lightdale
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – Gun ban protesters, 150 strong, packed the Senate Judicial Proceedings Committee room Tuesday, forcing the chairman to repeatedly gavel them to order during a 2½-hour marathon hearing on a bill to prohibit assault weapons.

"Politics and emotions" are driving the gun legislation, said Mark Booth of Adamstown in his written protest. The measure fails to contribute to "public safety" and does little to control violent crime, said the Persian Gulf War veteran and a bus driver in Montgomery County.

"It has everything to do with destroying the rights of every peaceable gun owner in the state of Maryland," he wrote.

Sponsored by Sen. Robert Garagiola, D-Montgomery, and in the House by Delegate Neil Quinter, D-Howard, the bill would designate 45 types of weapons, including the Bushmaster type of rifle used by the Washington, D.C.,-area snipers and the famed Uzi, for prohibition. It also would designate a Handgun Roster Board to maintain a list of prohibited weapons.

The legislation would extend the 1994 federal ban on assault weapons set to expire on Sept 13, 2004. Violators transporting or possessing an assault weapon would be guilty of a misdemeanor and subject to maximum penalties of imprisonment for three years and/or a fine of $5,000. Using such a weapon during a crime could add up to 20 years to a criminal's sentence.

At the hearing, Garagiola emphasized that U.S. Justice Department statistics indicate a 6.7 percent decrease in gun murders across the country since the advent of the ban.

Beretta U.S.A. Corp, Maryland's leading gun manufacturer, argued the assault weapons ban would impose a "broad, far-reaching ban on certain types of semi-automatic weapons" and would have an adverse effect on public safety.

CeaseFire of Maryland, a leading gun violence prevention group headed by executive director Leah Barrett, pointed to the results of a recently done survey, which demonstrated that a majority of the voters approved of the legislation.

One in five law enforcement officers slain in the line of duty between 1998 and 2001 were killed with assault weapons, Barrett said.

"Assault weapons are the guns of choice for criminals," Barrett said.

The Associated Gun Clubs of Baltimore said CeaseFire is "intentionally fabricating this statistic."

Sen. Nancy Jacobs, R-Harford, agreed and said the two snipers who terrorized the region in October 2002 did not purchase the guns in Maryland, because they would have been denied. She questioned CeaseFire's statements and added, "Evidently, criminals don't follow the law."

Lawmakers Consider Adding Paper Ballots To New Voting Machines

by Stephanie Tracy
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – With only three weeks remaining until voters statewide get their first feel of new touch-screen voting machines, lawmakers are still working to plug the system's security holes, including adding voter-verifiable paper records.

Opponents reiterated the vulnerabilities of a voting system that was initially praised for its accuracy and revolutionary advantages for disabled voters at a House Ways and Means Committee hearing Tuesday.

The bill before the committee would require computerized voting machines to produce a printed record for the voter to inspect and confirm. The paper ballots would be used for any legally required recount and to monitor the accuracy of the computerized results. Voter-verifiable paper records would be mandatory by the 2004 general election if the proposed bill succeeds.

Touch-screen voting machines debuted in a few elections in 2002, and must be used in all jurisdictions by 2006.

Supporters of the paper ballots compared them to receipts printed at automated teller machines and gasoline pumps. Delegate Kumar Barve, D-Montgomery, said the lack of verifiable ballots constituted a failure of the voting system.

"With the old [voting] system, as bad as it was ... you had a back up," Barve said. "You had an audit trail, not just something someone calls an audit trail."

The bill's principal sponsor, Delegate Karen Montgomery, D-Montgomery, said the security flaws discovered by three studies of the state's new Diebold AccuVote-TS voting system necessitated the push for individual vote records. Until there are voter-verifiable records, Montgomery said she will be "unhappy and uncomfortable voting in the next two elections."

Some opponents also said installing printers at each voting machine would be too expensive, but Montgomery countered that Diebold provided printers to San Diego County, Calif., for free after questions from that county's supervisors. With a projected state budget gap of more than $800 million, Delegate Jean Cryor, R-Montgomery, asked the committee to look into the differences between the two contracts.

Proponents of the voting paper trail said software could easily be corrupted by the computer programmers responsible for creating the technology in the first place.

Kevin Zeese with the Campaign for Verifiable Voting said the risk of corrupted computer coding had not been considered adequately and said printed records of individual votes was the "common sense solution" to avoiding election fraud. "We don't know how to keep our computers safe from software glitches," Zeese said. "We need a second system, and we need a paper ballot at every machine not just some machines."

Printers attached to voting machines would print ballots inside a locked glass box to allow voters to read, but not handle, the printout. The ballot would then be stored in the box as an official voting record. State Board of Elections administrator Linda Lamone said voter-verifiable ballots would open the door for poll workers to view individual votes in the process of repairing printer malfunctions, and continue the problem of visually impaired voters casting their ballots independently.

Cuts Proposed To Help Ailing Medicaid Budget

by Sara K. Clarke
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – If no cuts are made in the current state Medicaid system, it will not be financially sustainable in the future, Department of Health and Mental Hygiene Secretary Nelson J. Sabatini told lawmakers Tuesday.

State Medicaid costs – now approaching $5 billion – are projected to rise to as much as $600 billion over the next decade, said Sabatini to members of the Senate Budget and Taxation health subcommittee.

"We need to make some fundamental changes," Sabatini said.

Legislative analysts suggested several measures, including the following:

•Co-payments for Medicaid patients who go to the emergency room for routine, non-emergency care.

•A federal waiver to change penalties for people who try to protect income by transferring assets before entering a long-term care situation, such as a nursing home.

•Reduction in fees paid to pharmacists who dispense Medicaid prescriptions. The average cost to managed care organizations is $2.28 per prescription; Medicaid pays between $3.69 and $4.69.

•A single preferred drug list for state employees and Medicaid prescription care that would combine purchasing power.

•Reduction in how many days an adult on Medicaid can stay in the hospital.

•Increased turnover in the Medical Care Programs Administration by elimination of several now vacant positions.

The department accepted the first four and rejected the last two.

"I believe taxpayers in the state ... believe that poor people have a right to health care, and they expect to buy that health care in the most economical way possible," said Sabatini, suggesting the state should employ more business-like decisions.

The committee asked Sabatini to recoup $9 million from Amerigroup and JAI, two managed care entities that didn't meet state regulations on how much of Medicaid premiums must go toward care. Sabatini disagreed, arguing that could result in punishing insurers with superior management who avoid excess expenditures. In total, analysts suggested $29.4 million in possible reductions. The department agreed to $10 million.

In addition to Tuesday's proposals, the department plans $77.2 million in cost-cutting measures in fiscal year 2005, including reducing nursing home rates and continuing to impose limits on hospital days for the medically needy. The department also hopes to reduce Medicaid enrollment through an increase in eligibility enforcement.

Colleges' Pitch For Aid Receives Sympathetic Ear On Capitol Hill

by Melissa McGrath
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON – Maryland community college representatives came to Capitol Hill Tuesday looking for money for new facilities and a more dependable source of funding in the face of state budget cuts. They didn't have to look far.

"Give me an amendment or a bill ... and I'd work to build support on both sides of the aisle," said Sen. Barbara Mikulski, D-Baltimore, at a meeting between the college officials and members of Maryland's congressional delegation. Mikulski's comments were part of a warm reception for the community college leaders, who were told they have "probably one of the best cases for support" among groups coming before Congress.

Frederick Community College president Pat Stanley said the biggest need now is "in facility space, in laboratory space."

"We're turning people away in chemistry, biology, the life sciences ... and nursing," said Stanley, who is also president of the Maryland Council of Community College CEOs.

College officials said they need a more dependable source of funding – even as they acknowledged Mikulski's work on the appropriations committee last year to earmark nearly $1 million for technology training programs at Maryland's 16 community colleges.

Montgomery College president Charlene Nunley said the earmarked funding has been helpful, but "if there was some kind of ... ongoing money, this would take it to another level." She said the idea is only in the beginning stages, but the goal is to "propose some legislative method that can leverage some dollars into laboratory needs in community colleges."

Mikulski and other lawmakers asked Nunley and the college presidents to draft a bill or an amendment to a bill that would secure permanent funding for community college facilities.

"It would be nice if we had something already in place," said Rep. Elijah Cummings, D-Baltimore. "Something you can depend on year after year after year."

The community college representatives also asked for help in increasing Pell Grant funds and refining President Bush's Jobs for the 21st Century plan, which would allocate $250 million to the Department of Labor for workforce training programs developed by community colleges and businesses.

"We need to get funds to the community colleges, not huge corporations, if it is training money," said Mary Ellen Duncan, president of Howard Community College. That is not likely to happen without language to that effect in the law, she said.

"Lockheed Martin doesn't necessarily want to give up training money to community colleges," Duncan said.

Rep. C.A. "Dutch" Ruppersberger, D-Timonium, said community colleges should reach out more to local businesses and develop strong workforce training programs. "If you just rely on the government as it is right now, you're going to keep slipping," he said.

But Cummings said the colleges should be able to get the legislation through. "You all have probably one of the best cases for support," he said of the colleges, which "take a little bit of money, a little bit of nothing, and make a whole lot of something."

Mostly, however, the colleges said they just want more federal attention.

SURVIVAL COMES ONE STEP AT A TIME – Smiling 10-year-old Becky Diller is one of many local cancer survivors who are encouraging family, friends, and neighbors to participate in the upcoming Garrett County Relay for Life. The Oakland child is a six-year Acute Myelogenous Leukemia (AML) cancer survivor. A meeting for new relay team captains is set for 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 17, in Room 305 of the Continuing Education Building at Garrett College. (The snow date is Tuesday, Feb. 24, same time/location.) All new team captains and other interested persons are encouraged to attend. "I want you to come," Becky says to all – and who can resist?

Ehrlich Team Presents Slots To Friendly Panel

by Stephanie Tracy
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – Gov. Robert L. Ehrlich Jr. and four of his closest political allies Wednesday presented the administration's retooled slots proposal to friendly senators at the Budget and Taxation Committee hearing.

"Here we are again. I really have very little to add. I'm pro-slots, pro-racing, and we need to pass a bill," Ehrlich said.

The Senate passed Ehrlich's original slots package last year with the strong support of Senate President Thomas V. Mike Miller Jr., D-Calvert, who asked the governor to testify at the hearing and accompanied him there.

Lt. Gov. Michael S. Steele, Comptroller William Donald Schaefer, and State Superintendent of Schools Nancy S. Grasmick joined them for the rare gubernatorial committee presentation.

Concerns about minorities and surrounding communities – not philosophical objections – preoccupied the Senate panel. Sen. Lisa A. Gladden, D-Baltimore, proposed amending the governor's bill to establish a community council to advise local and state lawmakers about the local impact of expanding gambling.

Wednesday's more than five hours of subdued testimony could be the calm before the storm expected in the House. House Speaker Michael E. Busch, D-Anne Arundel, who was responsible for the death of Ehrlich's first slots package, has said a slots bill will not pass the House without another source of revenue to completely fund education – something Ehrlich has disdained.

And a slots bill will not originate in the House this year, said both Busch and Ways and Means Committee chairwoman Sheila Hixson, D-Montgomery. Hixson's committee last week released its final study on the impact of expanded gambling and recommended state-owned slots venues located closer to state borders and away from homes. The governor's bill, however, would locate off-track slots parlors in the Interstate 95 corridor between Washington, D.C., and Baltimore.

Ehrlich touted the changes to his bill as designed to meet House, and particularly Busch's, concerns.

"This bill deserves a full and fair vote on both floors," Ehrlich said.

Ehrlich also acknowledged slots will not satisfy all the needs of horse racing in Maryland, adding the industry needed "to get its act together."

Schaefer, a former governor, said he was weary of the budget question and urged lawmakers to do what was necessary to answer it.

"Slots is only a partial answer; if I could find another revenue source maybe I wouldn't support slots, but we need to balance the budget," Schaefer said. "This is the year the budget must be balanced."

But revenues from slots may not be as quick a fix as supporters want, said Budget and Policy analyst Warren Deschenaux. Expanded gambling won't produce cash until 2006, according to his department's analysis.

The Maryland Jockey Club and Magna Entertainment disagreed with Deschenaux's analysis. They said temporary slots facilities could be operational by February 2005.

Budget concerns aside, NocasiNo-Maryland co-chairwoman Barbara Knickelbein asked lawmakers to "heavily weigh the dark side of gambling," that included increased crime, drug addiction, and poverty.

Theater Group Returning To Mountaintop '04

Living for Christ Conferences has announced that the drama troupe Peculiar People will perform at its upcoming get-away weekend conference. Mountaintop 2004 will be held March 5-7 at Oglebay's Wilson Lodge in Wheeling.

Peculiar People is a touring theater company based in Franklin, Tenn. (a suburb of Nashville). Charlie and Ruth Jones team together to bring a "unique blend" of comedy and insight to their audiences, noted a spokesperson. Writing their own material, the Joneses have over 20 years of experience in professional theater and have performed nationwide and in Europe.

"For years we had an identity crisis of sorts," said Charlie Jones. "Are we a theater company that does ministry or are we a ministry that does theater to communicate God's delightful grace? God has called us to the latter. The objective of Peculiar People is quite simple – to experience the love of Christ deeply in our own lives, and then communicate the love songs we have heard to others through the Dramatic Arts."

Anne Robinson, Oakland native and cofounder of the nonprofit, nondenominational sponsor, said, "Peculiar People's drama is wonderful and very poignant. Attendees from past Mountaintops found themselves laughing hilariously one minute and moved to tears the next. We're thrilled that they're returning for Mountaintop 2004."

The featured speaker for this weekend event is Rebecca Manley Pippert, internationally acclaimed speaker and best-selling author, whose modern classic on evangelism, Out of the Saltshaker, has sold more than half a million copies. Her conference title is "Living the Glory/Sharing the Story."

Registration brochures and information are available through Living for Christ Conferences, 304-455-5322; web site: www.living4Christ.com.

LENTEN SERVICES BEGIN FEB. 25

Union District Lenten Services begin at the St. John's Lutheran Church, Red House, on Ash Wednesday, Feb. 25. This year's theme is "The Lenten Road" and services will be at 7:30 p.m. Everyone is welcome to attend this preparation for Easter.

Pastor Keith Pittsnogle will begin with the lesson "The Road to Damascus." The following week, Rev. Robert Klier will speak at the Maple Spring Church of the Brethren on "The Road to the Wilderness."

AREA-RELATED DEATHS

Robert K. Martin, 81, died Jan. 3, 2004, at Sandusky, Ohio. His wife of 50 years, Mary Swearingen Martin, survives, as do two step-daughters, two sons and one step-son. Mrs. Martin had been a resident at the Maple Grove Child Rescue Home, Eglon, many years ago, and attended the Slaubaugh School.

Ruth (Feather) Miller, 91, of Youngstown, Ohio, died there Jan. 20, 2004. Her husband, Junior Reed Miller, preceded her in death. They had been residents of Limestone (St. George). Also preceding her in death were two brothers, Russell Z. Feather, and Ralph Feather, and a sister, Lucille Watson. A son and a daughter, three grandchildren, and three great-grandchildren survive. The body was returned to Limestone Cemetery for interment, following services at the Lohr and Barb Funeral Home in Parsons.

PERSONAL MENTION

Charles Wiles of Aurora was a Friday patient at the Clarksburg Veteran's hospital.

Returning to his Aurora home last Wednesday was Thurman Nair, who had been a patient in Sacred Heart Hospital, Cumberland.

A fire on Jan. 31 destroyed the mobile home residence of Steven Edwards on the Fingerboard Road near Oakland. Steven is the son of Rick and Bonnie Spaid Edwards, and the family has found temporary housing nearby. Robert and Carolyn Harsh of Eglon have moved from the former Artenis and Florence (Judy) Harsh home to their new home in Eglon.

Hassaleah Snyder of Amboy was admitted Friday night to Preston Memorial Hospital, and is reportedly improved.

The Rev. J. Melvin Fike returned Friday, Feb. 6, to his home in Polo, Ill. He had spent the week in Basel, Switzerland, where he received medical treatment for which the doctors reportedly felt optomistic. He will return in late March. Accompanying him from Polo was a nurse and her husband who are members of his church, the Polo Church of the Brethren, and who cared for him during the trip.

Mrs. Gladys Lockhart, 93, of Amboy died Saturday night, Feb. 7, at Preston Memorial Hospital, where she had been a patient for the past several weeks.

Local students named to the recent WVU first semester dean's list were Shari Winters of Horse Shoe Run, Jonathan Dixon and Kendra Durst of Amboy, and Skylar Freeman and Bryan Pase of Aurora. Jonathan Dixon and Skylar Freeman were also on the president's list with 4.0 grade-point averages.

Nicole Britner of Aurora, daughter of Phil and Anita Britner, placed fourth in the Voice of Democracy audio essay contest at the state level. Using the theme, "My Commitment to America's Future," Anita submitted her essay on tape and had placed first both at the local and district level prior to this judging. Britner's commitment is in her hopes of becoming an elementary teacher. She is now a Preston High senior and received an award of $100, two plaques, a pin, and a necklace for her efforts.

Jim Bolyard of Amboy is expecting to return to his home early this week from Garrett County Memorial Hospital, where he underwent surgery on Feb. 5.

Staff Sgt. Jeremy C. Toothman has deployed to Iraq. He is the son of David and Karen Toothman of Kingwood and his wife is the former Rebecca Harsh, daughter of Richard and Janell Harsh, Aurora.

Army Pfc. Justin Simmons has also been deployed to Iraq. He finished his basic training last summer at Fort Knox, Ky. Justin is the son of Allan and Debbie Simmons of Eglon.

Samantha Blossom was first place in 4th grade math at Aurora School and chosen to represent her school at county math field day. Runner-up was Jessica Shillingburg. Samantha is the daughter of Doyle and Cathy Harsh, Eglon, and Jessica's parents are John and Sue Shillingburg of Aurora.

WVU GRAD, BRUCETON MILLS NATIVE HELPS BUILD NASA ROVER – Dan Moyers, a 2002 graduate of West Virginia University and a Preston County native, joined in the shouts of triumph last month when the Mars Exploration Rover Spirit landed safely on the surface of the Red Planet. Moyers was a member of the Jet Propulsion Laboratory (JPL) team that developed the software to operate the data-gathering robot that is now sending information about Mars back to Earth. Moyers helped create the software by using a three-dimensional representation of Mars on a computer. The background, he said, was created using real images from the planet. With this virtual landscape on the computer screen, Moyers and his colleagues were able to simulate the tasks that would be required of the rover once it landed on Mars. The software enables the engineers on Earth to command the rover to do such things as drill or drive around, he explained. Moyers helps control the rover every day as it maneuvers around the Mars landscape. It is expected to survive on the planet for up to five months. The 25-year-old engineer was one of 20 students from around the world to receive an internship with NASA while he was still in college. He spent three summers at the NASA Langley Research Center in Virginia in the summer scholars program. After his graduation from WVU in 2002, Moyers was offered a job with JPL. He now resides in Pasadena, Calif., where the company is headquartered. He is the son of Ward and Dolores Moyers.

ARC Blood Drive Set In Terra Alta

BARBERSHOP 2: BACK IN BUSINESS

Rated PG-13 - Running Time: 1:56 - Released 2/6/04

After the success of Tim Story's 2002 movie Barbershop, due in large part to the media storm it generated, Ice Cube and his hair-cutting employees have reunited for the inevitable sequel, Barbershop 2: Back In Business. Directed this time by Kevin Rodney Sullivan (whose last film was 1999's How Stella Got Her Groove Back), the second film reunites basically all the characters, but will spark no such controversy since its writers, Mark Brown and Don D. Scott, have significantly toned down the inflammatory dialogue and turned out what amounts to a run-of-the-mill comedy. Still, the reassembly of the cast lends a sense of continuity, and most of the actors, especially rapper and co-producer Cube, playing shop owner Cal Palmer, show considerable acting talent, so if this film is not destined for the kind of headline-making attention its predecessor received, it at least offers fairly good entertainment and continues the story (and fills in some of the backstory) of Calvin's barber shop on the south side of Chicago.

In addition to the roster of barbers and customers from the first movie (Sean Patrick Thomas, Eve, Troy Garity, Michael Ealy, Leonard Earl Howze, and comedian Cedric The Entertainer), this film also introduces a few new characters, like Cal's ex-girlfriend Gina, the owner of a beauty parlor next door, played by Queen Latifah. Although I don't remember Gina ever being mentioned in the first movie, I daresay her inclusion is not so much for the purpose of enriching the Barbershop story as to pave the way for Latifah's spinoff movie, Beauty Shop, for which they have already produced a trailer—despite the fact (according to the Internet Movie Database) that the movie has not even begun filming. Another new face is that of Kenan Thompson as Cal's young cousin who just finished barber school and wants a job. Thompson, who has worked his way from Nickelodeon comedies like All That and Kenan & Kel to becoming a new regular on Saturday Night Live, is suddenly on his way to a solid career, showing obvious talent in the numerous characters he has already established on those series.

The main issues of Barbershop 2's plot involve the opening of a glitzy new hair cutting franchise across the street from Cal's—which not only sparks anxiety about competition but brings a public political debate regarding the fate of the neighborhood—and several flashback scenes establishing the history of Eddie (Cedric The Entertainer), the crotchety old barber whose controversial opinions made such a stink in the first movie. Although Cedric continues his amusing act as the older barber, seldom working but always voicing his unpopular stand on just about every subject covered in the shop, he also doffs the age makeup (and the comedy) for several flashback scenes dating back to the days of the civil rights movement in the late '60s. Using an interesting mix of color and black-and-white, and several degrees of desaturation in between, director Sullivan shows the most artistic flair in the sections where Eddie's younger days are played out, including his original employment at the establishment under Cal's father (Javon Jackson), his loyalty to the shop during the riots following the King assassination, and his 35-year search for a woman named Loretta (Garcelle Beauvais), whom he met on the el, proposed to, and apparently never saw again. There is also a romantic sub-plot involving two other barbers (Eve, Ealy) whose bitter antagonism covers a smoldering mutual attraction.

As with the first movie, the plot-heavy scenes pale in comparison to the arguments and back-and-forth bantering between the shop's employees and customers. Unfortunately, there seems to be much less of that this time around, so the film turns out to be a more generic comedy than the previous outing. It's not bad, it's just routine, unlike Barbershop, which seemed to be establishing its own genre. This film represents a return to formula, but with the acting talents of Cube and his supporting players, and the comic stylings of Cedric, it succeeds adequately enough at the lower expectations it establishes. ★★★½

Miss Carlson, Mr. Parrack United In Zion Park Ceremony

Laurel Ann Carlson and Thomas Andrew Parrack were married on Saturday, Oct. 18, 2003, in an outdoor ceremony in Zion National Park (NP), Utah.

The bride is the daughter of Dean and Judith Carlson of Meadow Vista, Calif., and the bridegroom is the son of Luther and Pauline Parrack of Oakland.

The bride is a native of San Diego, where her father worked for the Navy. She graduated from Patrick Henry High School, San Diego, before attending Shelton Jackson College in Sitka, Alaska, where she graduated in 1998 with a bachelor of science degree in natural resources.

After teaching pre-school in Sitka for several years, she began working as an interpretive ranger for the National Park Service (NPS), educating visitors at Grand Canyon NP in Arizona, the Blue Ridge Parkway in North Carolina, and Scotty's Castle in Death Valley, Calif. She then attended the Sylva Law Enforcement Academy in Franklin, N.C., before accepting a position as a law enforcement ranger at Zion NP in 2002 and Bryce Canyon NP in 2003.

The bridegroom attended Southern High School, Garrett Community College, and Frostburg State University, where he earned a bachelor of science degree in wildlife management in 1989. He received law enforcement training at Hocking Institute in Nelsonville, Ohio, the U.S. Army Reserve Military Police School at Fort McClellan, Ala., and the Federal Law Enforcement Training Academy, Brunswick, Ga. He began working as an NPS law enforcement ranger in 1990 at Shenandoah NP in Virginia. Since then he has worked at Sequoia NP in California, Glacier NP in Montana, Independence National Historic Park in Philadelphia, Yosemite NP in California, and Chaco Culture NP in New Mexico. He is currently employed at Zion NP.

The groom's parents hosted a rehearsal dinner at Flannigan's Restaurant in Springdale, Utah, on Oct. 17. Following the wedding, an outdoor reception was held at the Nature Center in Zion Park. Family and friends from Maryland, California, Oregon, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Missouri, and Nevada joined the couple for those events.

Marriage Permits Recently Issued

Two couples recently applied for their marriage licenses, according to David Martin, clerk of the Garrett County Circuit Court.

John Douglas Slone, 38, and Evelyn Marie Sherman, 32, both of Oakland.

Michael Paul Sliger, 31, and Tammy Lynn DeWitt, 38, both of Mtn. Lake Park.

Poling-Miller Engagement Noted

The parents of Bethanie Joyelle Poling and Russell Ray Miller have announced the couple's engagement.

Bethanie is the daughter of John and Stephanie Poling, Belmont, W.Va., and the granddaughter of Betty Byers and the late Franklin Byers, and Kenneth and Martha Poling.

Russell is the son of Byron and Sally Miller, Grantsville, and the grandson of Phyllis Beachy and the late William Blaine Beachy, and Martha Miller and the late Edgar Miller.

The bride-elect is a 2001 graduate of St. Mary's High School and is currently enrolled in the nursing program at Alderson-Broaddus College in Philippi, W.Va. Her fiancé is a 2000 graduate of Northern High School and a 2003 graduate of Garrett College. He is enrolled in the radiography program at Alderson-Broaddus.

A summer 2005 wedding is being planned.

Forestry Careers Week Applications Being Accepted

The Garrett County Forest Conservancy District Board, in cooperation with the Maryland Department of Natural Resources Forest Service, is accepting applications from local high school students for the annual Maryland Forestry and Natural Resources Careers Week.

The free weeklong summer program is slated for Monday through Friday, July 26-30, at the Hickory Environmental Education Center in Accident. Applications are available from local high school guidance counselors and the DNR Forest Service office at Mt. Nebo, and the deadline to apply is Thursday, April 15.

The workshop is designed to acquaint college-bound high school students with careers in forestry and natural resources management. Students participate in hands-on workshops, problem-solving lessons, field trips, and evening programs, including a "Career and College Night." Program staff will include professional foresters from the DNR Forest Service and private industry, and guest presenters also include park rangers, wildlife and fisheries biologists, educators, and other professionals.

A total of 48 students representing each county and Baltimore City will be selected by their local Forestry Board. Each student selected for the program may be awarded a full scholarship. Students must be entering the 9th grade at the time of the workshop to be eligible.

"It's a busy week, but a lot of fun," commented Forestry Board executive director Pam Kelly. "High school students from many different backgrounds participate, but their interest in natural resources brings them together."

Garrett County students may obtain applications from guidance counselors at Northern and Southern high schools, and or by visiting or calling the DNR Forest Service at Mt. Nebo at 301-334-3296. Applications may also be down-loaded through the DNR Web site at www.dnr.state.md.us/forests.

The workshop is sponsored by the Maryland Association of Forest Conservancy district boards and the DNR Forest Service.

AmeriCorps Sets Blanket Drive

AmeriCorps of the Garrett County Community Action Committee is sponsoring a two-week "Bundle Up" blanket donation drive gets under way Monday, Feb. 16, continues to Monday, March 1. Any persons interested in donating blanket(s) may do so to benefit Garrett County residents who may suffering from a home heating crisis.

Blanket donations will be accepted at the Ruth Enlow Library branches in Oakland, Accident, and Friendsville, and at the West Marva District Church of the Brethren office located at 1009 Dennett Road.

The blankets will be stored at and distributed from the GCCAC building at 104 East Center St., Oakland. If blankets are needed, persons may contact Ben Bernard of AmeriCorps at 301-334-9431, ext. 132.

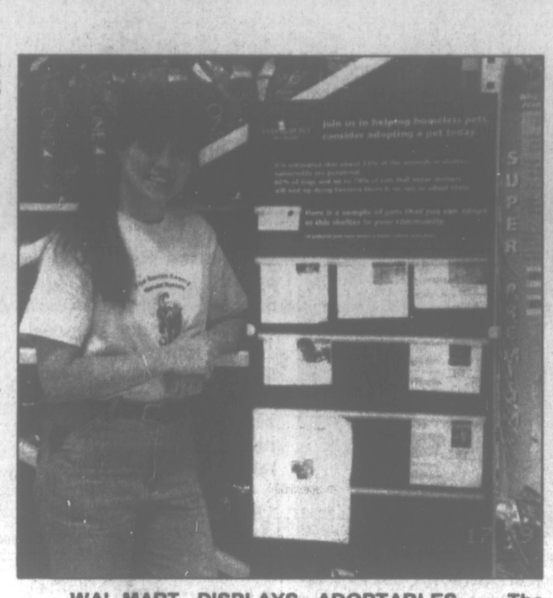
Hoyes UM Church To Serve Free Spaghetti Dinners

Free spaghetti dinners for community residents will be served the fourth Friday of each month beginning Feb. 27 from 5 until 7 p.m. at the Hoyes United Methodist Church. The church is located at the intersection of Route 42 and Hoyes Road across from School House Earth.

"The dinners are for the fellowship of all people in the community," said a church spokesperson. "The cost of these dinners is underwritten by the House of Hope."

The menu will consist of a tossed salad, spaghetti, bread, dessert, and beverage.

All community residents are invited, regardless of age, religious beliefs, or income, noted the spokesperson. "Invite your neighbors and friends to join you for these dinners," she said. Other dates for the meals are March 26 and April 23.



WAL-MART DISPLAYS ADOPTABLES — The Oakland Wal-Mart store is one of hundreds across the country that donate space for a Very Best Pet Network (VBPN) adoption board. Garrett County Humane Society member Lisa Baker, shown with the local display in the store's pet food aisle, explained that the board is an easier way for busy people to see what is available. The VBPN adoption board is one of several ways the Humane Society and GC Animal Shelter are working to increase pet adoptions in the area. "Once our adoptables are registered on the www.petfinder.com, their information sheet is printed out and displayed on the VBPN board at Wal-Mart in the pet de-partment," Baker explained. "It's a quick, easy, and fun way to find the perfect pet."

Broad Ford Set To Hold Family Valentine Dance

Broad Ford Elementary School is inviting the public to come and rock and bee-bop to the sounds of the '50s and 60s at a Valentine's Family Dance on Saturday, Feb. 14, from 6 until 10 p.m.

Live music will be provided by a popular local band, Blue Existence, which for this special occasion will be known as "Kim and the Kupids," and will feature musicians Jim Jones, Kim Weimer, Jana Brown, Charles Walch, Gino Mauricci, Monty Pagenhardt, and Greg Was.

Dancers will dine on hot dogs, french fries, milk shakes, ice cream sundaes, and popcorn.

The Bobcat Team at Broad Ford, which is sponsoring the dance, will give a prize to the dancers with the best '50s costumes. Dancers can also try their luck at hula-hoop and bubble-gum blowing contests.

The team will raffle off a dinner for two, a massage by local massage therapist Kathleen Gibbs, and a Valentine gift basket. Tickets are $10 per family or $6 per person.

Woman Charged After Prescription Medicine Incident

An Oakland woman faces charges of reckless endangerment and second-degree assault following a Wednesday, Feb. 4, incident during which she is alleged to have improperly given prescription medication to an acquaintance. Patty Lynn Minnick, 23, turned herself in to the Oakland Police Department the following afternoon.

The incident reportedly stemmed from a domestic-related argument that took place early Wednesday morning, according to Oakland police officers. At 11:30 p.m. that night, police were called to check on a possible medical emergency at the alleged victim's South Seventh Street apartment. There they found 44-year-old Charles Robert Parsley partially conscious, and summoned the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad, which transported Parsley to Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

Upon further investigation police determined that Minnick and Parsley had argued at 3 a.m. that morning, and she had allegedly given Parsley prescription medication to "calm him down." Parsley, who was reportedly intoxicated at the time the medicine was administered, was unable to get out of bed the entire day and late that night, when another acquaintance called the authorities.

Minnick, who had left the apartment earlier Wednesday, subsequently turned herself in to police the following afternoon. She was released on her own recognizance by a District Court commissioner.

State Park Programs

DEEP CREEK LAKE

The following activities have been scheduled for this week at Deep Creek Lake State Park. Further information on the programs, and the park's snowshoe rental concession, can be obtained by calling the Discovery Center at 301-387-7067.

•Sat. 2/14: "Tricky Tracks," a one-hour activity during which participants will learn to identify various animal tracks and make their own casts of tracks, will begin at 10:30 a.m. ($1 per participant); and a 45-minute Valentine's Day craft activity is set for 1 p.m.

•Sun. 2/15: A U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service bird bander will present "A Bird in the Hand," a 45-minute activity that will include the trapping of several wild birds, at 10:30 a.m.; and a 30-minute "Reading Naturalist" children's story time activity is slated for 1 p.m.

Team effort carries Biffle to pole position

By RICK MINTER
Cox News Service

Daytona Beach, Fla.

Pole qualifying for Sunday's Daytona 500 seems to be proof that it's better for two to work together as one.

Ford car owners Jack Roush and Robert Yates, who once rarely even spoke to each other at the track, merged their engine programs last fall in an effort to compete with the "one team" concept used by Dodge (and soon by Toyota).

Roush's driver Greg Biffle grabbed the coveted 500 pole with a lap around Daytona International Speedway at 188.387 mph, while Yates' Elliott Sadler took the outside spot at 188.355 mph.

BIFFLE

Fords dominated the day. Ricky Rudd, whose Wood Brothers team works closely with Roush and Yates, had the the fourth-fastest time, while Yates' other driver, Dale Jarrett, had the fifth fastest. Dale Earnhardt Jr., who was third, was the only non-Ford in the top five.

However, only Biffle and Sadler locked in starting spots. The rest of the lineup for the 500 will be set after Thursday's twin 125-mile qualifying races.

"You put [Roush and Yates] together and we're going to have a team to be reckoned with week in and week out," Sadler said.

It also helps that Ford, which struggled in 2003, was given a new body for the Taurus. In addition, the Fords have a new cylinder head, which is still under development and has yet to appear at the track.

"I really applaud Ford for getting both of the two Ford giants together and working together," Sadler said. "We're already reaping the benefits."

Biffle, now beginning his second full year on the Nextel Cup circuit, was considered a long shot to win the pole. Although he won the Pepsi 400 in July and was second and seventh in the two practice sessions, he'd never qualified better than 27th at Daytona.

After posting his speed, he had to watch nervously as driver after driver tried to knock him off the pole.

"I was sweating it out," Biffle said. "This pole means a lot. It's not like winning the 500 certainly, but this is the biggest pole of the season."

He said being fastest on pole day doesn't necessarily guarantee speed on race day.

"This car, I really did not like in drafting trim when we were down here in preseason testing," he said. "It was kind of loose."

Roush said he expects to hear grumbling from the GM and Dodge camps that NASCAR gave Ford too much, but Robbie Loomis, crew chief on Jeff Gordon's No. 24 Chevy, said it's too soon to tell.

"I don't really want to say until we run a few races and see where everybody is," he said.

2004 BUDWEISER SHOOTOUT

A Shootout to remember

Jarrett sprints to late victory

By RICK MINTER
Cox News Service

Daytona Beach, Fla.

Veteran Dale Jarrett took advantage of drafting help from his closest challenger, Dale Earnhardt Jr., to take the lead, then outran Earnhardt to the finish line on Saturday to win the 26th Budweiser Shootout and the first event in NASCAR's Nextel era.

Jarrett, who suffered through a miserable 2003 season, took the top spot with an outside pass of Kevin Harvick off Turn 2 on the final lap. He then fought off Earnhardt and Harvick to earn his third career win in the Shootout, a 70-lap, non-points event at Daytona International Speedway for pole winners from the previous season and previous Shootout winners.

Earnhardt finished second, ahead of Harvick, Mark Martin and Jeff Gordon.

Earnhardt said he gave Jarrett the critical push because it was his best option at the time.

"I knew the outside lane would be best at the end," Earnhardt said. "But Jarrett was at the head of that line, so all I could do was push him to the front and try to make a move on him later."

Jarrett, who started the final sprint in ninth place and led only on the final lap, said he felt that once he got the lead he could win.

"I knew when we got our car to the front and in clean air, nobody could pass it," he said.

Jarrett said his Shootout win, combined with the fast laps he and teammate Elliott Sadler have run in practice, are signs that a massive reorganization at their Robert Yates Racing team was a success.

Leading Jarrett's crew this season is Mike Ford, who prepared the cars that Bill Elliott used to dominate the late stages of the 2003 season.

The final seven-lap dash to the checkered flag was set up by a crash involving Jeremy Mayfield and Dave Blaney.

Mayfield and Blaney sped off Turn 2 battling side-by-side for the lead, but Mayfield, in the bottom groove, lost control and slid up into Blaney, taking both drivers out of contention.

"I got a little sideways and couldn't gather it back in," Mayfield said. "I just lost it."

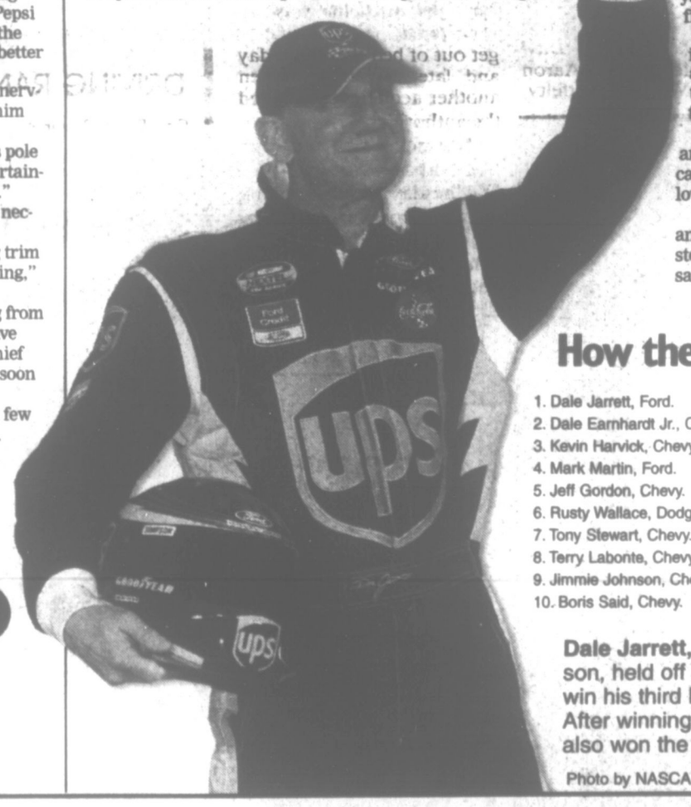
While track workers repaired a gate damaged in the crash, teams were allowed one final opportunity to tune their cars for a seven-lap sprint to the finish.

Elliott ran the Shootout, his only Daytona appearance this year, but was not a factor. He finished 14th.

Overall, it was an outstanding night for NASCAR's veteran drivers. Terry Labonte led three times for 17 laps, more than any other driver.

Harvick led twice for 10 laps and appeared to have a winning car, but erred by choosing the low groove at the finish.

"I just picked the wrong lane and that 88 car [Jarrett's] came steaming by on the outside," he said.



How they finished

1. Dale Jarrett, Ford.
2. Dale Earnhardt Jr., Chevy.
3. Kevin Harvick, Chevy.
4. Mark Martin, Ford.
5. Jeff Gordon, Chevy.
6. Rusty Wallace, Dodge.
7. Tony Stewart, Chevy.
8. Terry Labonte, Chevy.
9. Jimmie Johnson, Chevy.
10. Boris Said, Chevy.
11. Bobby Labonte, Chevy.
12. Elliott Sadler, Ford.
13. Ken Schrader, Dodge.
14. Bill Elliott, Dodge.
15. Mike Skinner, Chevy.
16. Ryan Newman, Dodge.
17. Jamie McMurray, Dodge.
18. Jeremy Mayfield, Dodge.
19. Dave Blaney, Dodge.

Dale Jarrett, who struggled last season, held off Dale Earnhardt Jr. to win his third Budweiser Shootout. After winning the other two, Jarrett also won the Daytona 500.

NEWS & NOTES

President plans to attend race

By RICK MINTER
Cox News Service

Daytona Beach, Fla.

President Bush plans to attend the 46th annual Daytona 500 Sunday at Daytona International Speedway.

Bush is the third sitting president to attend a race at Daytona. President Reagan served as grand marshal for the 1984 Pepsi 400 and gave the starting command from Air Force One. President Bush's father, George Bush, was grand marshal for the 1992 Pepsi 400.

The trip this weekend will be President Bush's second visit to the speedway. During his 2000 presidential campaign, he served as grand marshal for the Pepsi 400.

Third team's the charm

John Andretti, who once thought he might run only the Daytona 500 this year because of a lack of sponsorship, says his No. 1 Chevrolet team at Dale Earnhardt Inc. likely will run at least 20 races and possibly more than 30 if a sponsor can be signed.

Andretti said the new leadership team at DEI believes the benefits of having a third team to help gather information during races and test sessions far outweigh the costs.

Andretti, whose career stalled during a seven-year stint at Petty Enterprises, says he and crew chief Tony Gibson can perform well enough to lure sponsors.

"The team has been in an underdog situation for several years, and I've kind of fallen off the map because of really sticking to a program I believed in," he said.

"Now, it's about laying numbers up on the board. We look at this as a great opportunity to come out and show what we can do."

Earnhardt's new role

Dale Earnhardt Jr. (below) played a different role at Daytona on Saturday. He hosted a news conference to announce a sponsor for the No. 8 Busch Series car he co-owns with his stepmother, Teresa Earnhardt.

Bass Pro Shops will sponsor the team and its rookie driver, Martin Truex Jr., for 17 races this season. Other sponsors will back the car for the remaining races.

What kind of an owner is Earnhardt?

"He's been really easy to work with," Truex said. "He lets me go out there and do my thing, and if I have a question, I can ask him and he'll give me a straight answer."

Jarrett's kindness repaid

Favors remembered in late-race drafting

It seems that airplanes and helicopters and favors the late Dale Earnhardt did years ago for Dale Jarrett all played a big role in Jarrett's victory in Saturday's Budweiser Shootout at Daytona International Speedway.

Jarrett got the win largely because of a last-lap drafting boost from on-track rival Dale Earnhardt Jr., who finished second.

Why would Earnhardt Jr. pick Jarrett to push to the front?

"I'm one of only a few drivers in the sport — in the top 15 or so — that hasn't bought an airplane or a helicopter, nor will I as long as I've got friends like Dale Jarrett who are hauling me to places like Martinsville and back," Earnhardt said.

"I push him to the lead every once in a while or sign autographs for him at his dealership during his open house or whatever to return that favor."

Jarrett said he doesn't give Earnhardt a lift just to get help on the track.

"But I did tell him when he came to Victory Lane that he has a helicopter ride to Martinsville or wherever he wants to anytime," Jarrett said.

Why did Jarrett start giving rides to Earnhardt in the first place?

"I look at the spotlight he's been put in and the things that have been asked of him, and I just think he's a neat kid," Jarrett said. "I've known him since he was probably seven or eight years old and he and Jason, my son, were hanging out at the racetrack and in our van together.

"He's come to me before with questions, and I've tried my best to give him as good of advice as I could, because that's what his dad did for me, so I was just kind of repaying the favor."

Jarrett added that even if Earnhardt chose some other driver to help in the draft, he'd still be welcome on the plane or the helicopter.

"That wouldn't have changed, but it's nice to know those things do work out like that."

Tragedy: Safety worker killed after being struck at Daytona

By RICK MINTER
Cox News Service

Daytona Beach, Fla.

A safety worker was killed at Daytona International Speedway when a car struck him on the track in a IPOWERacing Dash series race Sunday.

Roy H. Weaver III, the supervisor of the speedway's track crew, apparently died instantly after being struck by a race car driven by Ray Paprota of Birmingham, Ala.

The accident occurred in Turn 2 during a caution period in the race for small sedans. Paprota, a paraplegic who drives a car equipped with hand-operated controls, apparently was accelerating to catch up to the rest of the drivers when Weaver was struck. The 44-year-old, seven-year employee of the speedway appeared to have died instantly.

Weaver's death was the 37th at the track since it opened in 1959, the 35th that occurred on the track, the third in the Dash Series but the first of a track employee.

Although Paprota ran three events with the series last year, Sunday's race was his first on a superspeedway.

The race was stopped for about an hour, then resumed to complete a shortened distance. Local authorities are investigating.

Wimmer distressed over arrest

Nextel Cup Series rookie Scott Wimmer made his first public appearance late last week following his arrest for driving while intoxicated after crashing a truck owned by his employer, Bill Davis Racing, near the team's headquarters in High Point, N.C.

Wimmer, a polite, soft-spoken, low-key driver, was clearly distressed by his current predicament.

"I sat in my house for the past couple of days with my head buried in a pillow thinking about what was going to happen, and what was I going to say to everybody," he said.

NASCAR vice-president Jim Hunter said series officials are closely following Wimmer's case and could impose penalties of their own at the proper time, but he won't be kept out of races.

ARMED SERVICES REVIEW

SGHASS DONATES TO SHS – The Southern Garrett Alumni Association recently donated $2,000 to the high school for the second year in a row to purchase items above and beyond normal county funding. In the front, from the left, are art teacher Sonia Pratt, guidance counselor Beverly Sincell, and marketing teacher Lisa Bender. In the back are web design teacher Maria Zumpano, principal Tom Woods, SGHSAA representative Tracy Royce, and school newspaper advisor Heather Savage.

Todd R. Gibson graduated from the Air National Guard Academy of Military Science at McGhee Tyson Air National Guard Base, Knoxville, Tenn., and was commissioned as a second lieutenant in the Air National Guard.

The six-week, in-resident course curriculum is designed to prepare the officer candidate for initial assignment as a commissioned officer and to serve as a foundation to build a career in the Air Force reserve components. The major subject areas of instruction included military and physical training, academic studies, professional development, communicative skills, leadership and management, and defense studies.

After graduation, the lieutenant either attends further career development training or returns to his or her resident state unit of assignment.

Gibson is assigned to the 113th Fighter Wing, Andrews Air Force Base, Camp Springs. He is the son of James L. and Kathy L. Gibson of Mayhew Inn Road. The second lieutenant graduated in 1996 from Southern Garrett High School, and received a bachelor's degree in 2001 from the University of Maryland, College Park.

Small Business Center Schedules Courses At GC

The Small Business Development Center at Garrett College has slated three courses – Advanced Word Crash Course, Delivering an Exceptional Presentation, and Retirement Planning – for next month at the McHenry campus.

A one-session Crash Course on Advanced Word is set for Friday, March 5, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. with a one-hour break for lunch. This course is designed for the experienced Microsoft Word user. Topics will include creating tables, working with data in tables, setting column widths and row heights, working with the draw table feature, moving and resizing tables, sorting rows in tables, merge basics, working with main and data source documents, merging with an existing data source creating envelopes and labels, and merging with Access data.

Delivering an Exceptional Presentation, a four-session course, will meet over four consecutive Wednesdays, March 3, 10, 17, and 24, from 9 to 11:30 a.m. The course will focus on the enhancement of public speaking skills through the use of PowerPoint presentations. Students will have the opportunity to develop techniques for speaking in front of groups with confidence, use PowerPoint to create an eye-catching presentation, learn to use various audio-visual equipment resources, and create and deliver their own presentation to a group in a supportive atmosphere.

Retirement Planning is scheduled for three consecutive Tuesday nights, March 2, 9, 16, from 6 to 9:15 p.m. This course is designed to provide participants with the tools needed to plan for retirement. Among the topics that will be discussed are investment strategies based on individual need, investment vehicles used to produce income, basic asset allocation, basic retirement plan creation, and determining retirement needs based on income requirements. (A substantial tuition discount is available to senior citizens for this course.)

For cost information or to register for any of these classes, persons may contact Sue Smith at 301-387-3080.

Ask The Everyday Scientist

by Dr. Thomas P. Sheahen

MISSION TO MARS

Q. If they want a manned mission to Mars, wouldn't it be necessary to send an awful lot of fuel?

A. The short answer is: yes. Unmanned spacecraft like the Rovers currently on Mars are comparatively cheap because they don't have to return. Bringing people back requires extra rockets to boost off that planet, and hence extra fuel.

The history of our trips to the moon provide a good example. The vast majority of the fuel was consumed just lifting off the earth, by the spectacular blazing Saturn 5 rockets. But there was also rocket fuel that was stored in the spacecraft and kept in reserve in order to carry out additional changes in the trajectory: 1. Firing retro-rockets to slow down and drop into orbit around the moon; 2. descending and landing gently on the lunar surface; 3. lifting off the moon to return to the orbiting spacecraft; 4. blasting out of a lunar orbit for the return trip to earth; 5. firing retro-rockets to precisely position the spacecraft for entry into the earth's atmosphere. Each of these maneuvers would likewise have to be carried out on a manned mission to Mars.

It didn't take a whole lot of rocket fuel to blast off the surface of the moon, since the moon contains far less mass than earth, and only 1/6 the gravitational force. It also didn't take much to break away from an orbit around the moon; and after that it was mostly "downhill" gravitationally to return to Earth. But for Mars, the gravitational force at the surface is 38% that of earth, so the lift-off thrust from Mars would be over 1/3 of what it takes to leave earth. We're back close to the Saturn 5 size all over again. The mass of all that fuel would have to first be lifted off Earth; then set down gently on Mars, just to get into position to be burned in the lift-off from Mars.

One clever suggestion (put forth by S. Fred Singer, former head of the Weather Satellite system) would be to land on one of the small moons of Mars, Phobos, or Diemos. Those moons are huge rocks said to be about the size of Manhattan. Unmanned sensors could then be sent to the surface of Mars itself, and controlled by astronauts close by in our spacecraft parked on the Martian moon. When it came time to blast off, it would be very easy to lift off from a Martian moon.

Meanwhile, one thing that is not a big problem is the gravity of the sun or the great total distance to Mars (about 50 million miles from Earth at closest approach). When you're already starting from a position 93 million miles away from the sun, going out further isn't all that bad. It is possible to use a "slingshot effect" as follows: first travel inward toward Venus (which is "downhill" toward the sun) and do a near-miss flyby of that planet. The law of Conservation of Momentum enables you to pick up the boost in speed necessary to get all the way out to Mars. In fact, if you were really headed for Jupiter, you could do a flyby of Mars instead of landing on it, and thereby pick up the extra energy needed to reach Jupiter.

Unmanned probes have already gone to Neptune and beyond by using the "slingshot effect." The fairly heavy space probe known as Cassini, launched in 1997, has already done flybys of Venus, Earth, and Jupiter and should rendezvous with Saturn during 2004.

If someday there were a manned base established on Mars, they could get from there to Jupiter by launching from Mars and flying by Earth, using the "slingshot effect" necessary to increase speed enough to reach Jupiter.

A&E orders another season of 'MI-5'

By Taylor Michaels
© Zap2it

Matthew Macfadyen

Q: What happened to A&E's "MI-5"? I saw what looked like a cliffhanger season finale, then nothing more. Is it coming back? –Ann Crewe via e-mail.

A: Don't worry, Ann, principal photography on season three of "MI-5" began last month in England. (For the record, what you saw on A&E in 2003 was both the first and second UK seasons run without a break.)

New regular cast member Rupert Penry-Jones ("Cambridge Spies") joins returning regulars Matthew Macfadyen, Keeley Hawes, David Oyelowo and Peter Firth in the 10 new episodes, which will begin airing on A&E late this year.

Q: What was that hauntingly beautiful song at the end of the Jan. 18 episode of "Alias"? It affected me the same way Jeff Buckley's "Hallelujah" did on "The West Wing" last season. –Jay Nixon, Millville, Pa.

A: I'm always delighted to introduce new listeners to one of my favorite singers, Irish troubadour Damien Rice. The haunting song that knocked your socks off is called "Delicate," and you'll find it on Rice's compact disc "O."

Q: I was excited about TV Land's revival of "The Carol Burnett Show," but was disappointed to see that each episode contained only a couple of sketches. Wasn't the show originally an hour long? What happened to all the singing and dancing segments? –Rob in San Francisco.

A: The complete, hour-long episodes of "The Carol Burnett Show" are available on DVD from Columbia House, but as Burnett explained recently in a press conference with the Television Critics Association, the musical numbers were cut from syndicated TV repeats of the show simply because music royalties would have been prohibitively expensive.

"We did a lot of medleys, and every one of the songs included would be subject to a royalty payment," she said. "That really adds up. I'm glad the original shows are available from Columbia House, too, though."

Q: I am a fan of "Joan of Arcadia" and "Ed," both of which feature characters in wheelchairs. Are the actors themselves actually wheelchair-bound in real life? –Paul in New York.

A: Jason Ritter, who turns 24 this week, plays injured teen Kevin Girardi on "Joan," but the actor has not suffered such injuries in real life.

However, Daryl "Chill" Mitchell, who plays Eli Cartwright on "Ed" and previously was a regular on "The John Larroquette Show," was paralyzed from the mid-chest down in a November 2001 motorcycle accident.

LBJ Autograph

Q. I have a signed photo of President Lyndon B. Johnson. Can you help me establish a value for it? — Conrad, McAllen, Texas

A. Authentic signatures of Lyndon Johnson are illusive, since many of his letters and photos were signed by auto-pen when he occupied the White House. Prices vary depending on desirability and historic value. A check of the Internet revealed several specimens being offered for sale, including a letter from 1964, $300; a signed postal card dated 1960, $90; and a signed speech from 1965, $350.

You need the services of an established autograph dealer who can both authenticate and appraise your photo. Three nationally known dealers are Paul Longo, P.O. Box 5510, Gloucester, MA 01930; Mark Vardakis, P.O. Box 1430, Coventry, RI 02816; and Herman Darvick, P.O. Box 467, Rockville Centre, NY 11571.

Q. I sold Avon products during the 1970s and have various bottles, plates and company awards. Where can I sell them? — Frances, Pueblo West, Colo.

A. Anne Thomas is both a collector and expert and might be able to help you. Write to her c/o Avon Collectibles, 3864 Dollar Circle, Suwanee, GA 30024. Gere Reed is an expert and nationally known collector. Her address is RR 1, Box 99B, Montrose, PA 18801. The National Association of Avon Collectors is one of the better groups for enthusiasts and publishes Avon Times, a monthly magazine for its members. Its address is P.O. Box 7006, Kansas City, MO 64113.

Housetraining Cats

Q. A neighbor gave me a 2-year-old cat, a stray that hung around a machine shop. The workers gave her bits of their lunch, but apparently provided no litter box, as she is untrained. I tried keeping her in a small area with two litter boxes available, but to no avail. How can I save my carpets and still keep her? She is beautiful! — Isobel B., Fenton, Mich.

A. Because your new cat didn't respond to the confinement training (most cats start using the box within 24 hours), housetraining your cat may take much longer and require a lot of patience.

The first thing I recommend, of course, is a visit to the veterinarian to rule out any underlying physical cause, such as cystitis, parasites or other problems. If the cat has not been spayed, consider doing this, as territorial marking may be an issue.

Next, every area that she has soiled must be cleaned using a special solution that biologically degrades urine markers. Conventional cleaners don't eliminate the odor completely, and she may be soiling the same areas over and over because of the lingering scent. Check with the vet or a pet store for this cleaner.

Third, repeat the confinement training. Place her in a small area with familiar bedding and one litter box, as well as food and water, for 24-48 hours. If she soils a bare patch of the area without using the box, don't scold; clean up the mess and place her in the litter box, then gently scrunch her front paws into the litter to simulate a cat's typical pre-elimination digging.

Lastly, watch her closely for several days to learn her lifestyle habits; when she eats, when she sleeps, hunts and eliminates. Around her "usual" elimination time, carry her to the litter box and place her in it, giving lots of praise.

Your cat will have developed some habits since being adopted, but is also bringing some "outside" habits into the home that will need modification.

Strange BUT TRUE

By Samantha Weaver

• Before she got married, Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, then known as Jackie Bouvier, worked as a newspaper columnist at a salary of $42.50 per week.

• The Irish have some truly imaginative curses. For example, "May the lamb of God stir his hoof through the roof of heaven and kick you in the arse down to hell."

• Not all monarchs are truly beloved of their subjects. Charles II of France was widely known as "Charles the Fat." One of his successors, Charles VI, was called "Charles the Mad." And France's Louis V was called "Louis the Indolent" or "Louis the Lazy."

• It was noted wit Oscar Wilde who observed, "A man who marries his mistress leaves a vacancy in that position."

• A lump of clay contains millions of particles of magnetite. When a clay pot is fired, the intense heat of the kiln erases these particles' tiny individual magnetic fields. As the pot cools, the particles align themselves with the Earth's north pole. Scientists can study pots made thousands of years ago to measure changes in our planet's own giant magnetic field. This is why you so often see archaeologists and geologists fighting over ancient pottery.

• Are you cnidophobic? I wouldn't be surprised. Most people are afraid of being stung.

• James Bryce defined medicine as "the only profession that labors incessantly to destroy the reason for its existence."

• Munich, Germany, is home of the original Oktoberfest. The first one was in 1810, and it's now the largest festival in the world. It's been reported that the 6 million attendees collectively drink more than 10 million pints of beer.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Feb. 16, 1804, during the First Barbary War, U.S. Lieutenant Stephen Decatur leads a mission to destroy the captured U.S. frigate Philadelphia in Tripoli harbor. Disguised as Maltese sailors, Decatur's small force overcame the frigate's crew and set the ship ablaze, escaping without the loss of a single American. British Admiral Horatio Nelson called the raid the "most daring act of the age."

• On Feb. 19, 1914, Pittsburgh movie theaters are required by law to establish a seating section for unaccompanied women. Some women attending movies alone had complained of harassment.

• On Feb. 18, 1930, Pluto, generally the ninth most distant planet from the sun, is discovered at the Lowell Observatory in Flagstaff, Ariz., by astronomer Clyde W. Tombaugh.

• On Feb. 21, 1948, six days after its first race was held, NASCAR is officially incorporated as the National Association for Stock Car Racing. As the legend goes, the sport evolved from liquor smugglers who souped up their pre-war Fords to outrun the authorities.

• On Feb. 22, 1980, in one of the most dramatic upsets in Olympic history, the underdog U.S. hockey team, made up of collegians and second-rate professional players, defeats the defending champion Soviet team at the XIII Olympic Winter Games in Lake Placid, N.Y.

• On Feb. 17, 1986, Anne Tyler wins the National Book Critics Circle Award for her novel "The Accidental Tourist." The book, about the life of a travel-book writer after the death of his son and his subsequent divorce, became a bestseller and was later made into a movie starring William Hurt.

• On Feb. 20, 1993, luxury Italian sports car manufacturer Ferrucio Lamborghini dies, leaving behind a remarkable life story of a farm boy with big dreams.

How often we hear this phrase when the subject turns to love and romance. The poets have compared love to ripened fruit and fragrant flowers. In the Song of Solomon 4:16, we read, "Let my beloved come into his garden, and eat its pleasant fruits."

As in a garden, a seed is planted... perhaps the first date. If the relationship is a well matched one the seed grows in fertile soil. The couple discovers each other's interests and points of view as the "garden" is tended and watered. Weeds may try to push through, but they are uprooted and thrown away and forgotten as the two learn to negotiate. As their relationship flowers, delicate buds give way to fragrant petals and mature love is born.

As Valentine Day approaches, may we remember that true love is strong and enduring. Yet, weeds will try to encroach. God is the Master Gardener. With Him our love will remain vital. Won't you reinforce that love in worship this week?

St. Valentine's Day Is for Lovers

Valentine's Day is named in honor of Saint Valentine, who was martyred on February 14th in the year 269 A.D. Saint Valentine was arrested by Emperor Claudius II for helping persecuted Christians. At the time, the Emperor had placed a ban on marriage (supposedly because it was interfering with his ability to man his army) and legend has it that St. Valentine was a priest who defied the Emperor's ban by continuing to marry Christians in secret. After refusing to give up the Christian faith he was beaten to death and beheaded on February 14th.

In 496 A.D., Pope Gelasius set February 14th as a day to honor him, thereby assimilating the Roman fertility festival Lupercalia into the Church's calendar and giving it a decidedly Christian twist. Saint Valentine became the patron saint of lovers perhaps on account of his brave defiance of the marriage ban. Valentine's Day continues to be a day when lovers celebrate their beloved. We would do well to remember that we are all called to be lovers, and that true love requires great courage. So as this tradition continues, we should let those around us know that we love them this Valentine's Day. Surely our thoughtfulness and concern won't go unnoticed.

Love bears all things, believes all things, hopes all things, endures all things.

An Ancient Herb With Many Uses

Hyssop is an herb that was used during Biblical times. Although it has traditionally been used as a cough remedy or for treating bronchitis, hyssop also has a tonic effect on the digestive, urinary, nervous, and bronchial systems of the body. Mainly this herb is known for decreasing acute inflammation of the respiratory tract, which helps symptoms and shortens the duration of respiratory illness by soothing irritated tissues. Some research is showing that the crude extract of hyssop containing caffeic acid may have activity against certain viruses. A compound isolated from this extract has shown strong activity against the AIDS virus but did not have a toxic effect on the white blood cells where its activity is thought to take place. Hyssop leaf extract also is being tested against the type of skin cancer that affects individuals with a compromised immune system.

SHS Names Students Of The Month

The Students of the Month winners for January at Southern High School were recently recognized. They were Meghan Flinn, math; Jonathan Filsinger, CTE; Vanessa Logan, English; Dustin Lewis, social studies; Melanie Dumire, science; Chris Deem, web design; and Nicole Gordon, math.

Flinn, a freshman, is the daughter of Gene and Joyce Flinn. During her Southern Middle School career, she participated in the chorus as well as a school play in 2001. Flinn has received the USAA National Leadership and Service Award and has received special recognition in the Schools for Success Program. She has played piano for eight years and has been involved in gymnastics for 10.

She currently attends St. Paul's United Methodist Church and is a member of the Tri-Star Pinnacle gymnastics optional team. Her educational goals include attending West Virginia University law school and becoming a corporate lawyer.

Filsinger, a senior, is the son of Judy Broadwater and John Filsinger. He has been a member of the Southern High cross country team for four years and the track team for one year. Filsinger was awarded the Gatorade "Will To Win Award" during his career at Southern High School.

He is currently the senior class treasurer, an honor roll student, and an employee at Wisp. He plans to attend WVU or Frostburg to pursue an engineering career.

Logan, a senior, is the daughter of Johnny and Susan Logan. She has been awarded the Who's Who Among American High School Students Award, and has achieved distinguished honor roll and honor roll status for her years attending Southern High School. Currently, she is part of the National Honor Society, Model UN, Acorn newspaper staff, and the 6-Man Club.

Logan was named the treasurer of the Country Kids 4-H Club in 2001-2002 and president in 2003. She is also part of the Appalachian Beekeeper's Association and has been involved in summer league softball. Logan plans to attend Garrett College for two years and then transfer to either WVU or University of Maryland to pursue a career in pre-med or pre-law.

Lewis, a sophomore, is the son of Brent and Tammy Lewis. His hobbies include paintball, video games, and riding dirt bikes. Lewis plans to go into the military "Army Rangers" or in the law enforcement "Swat Team."

Dumire, a freshman, is the daughter of Brenda and Jeremy Groves. In Southern Middle School, she was a member of the chorus, Honor chorus, and peer mediation group. She received Student of the Month awards twice and School for Success honor awards last year. She currently is a member of the Faith Evangelical Free Church youth group and a quizzer in the Mountain Top YFC Bible quizzing.

Dumire plans to attend a four-year college and major in humanities/education to help mentally challenged children.

Deem, a junior, is the son of Carroll and Marsha Deem. He has received awards such as the Marching Minds Award, attendance awards, and honor roll. Currently, he is a member of the Oak Park Church and the Oak Park Church Youth Group.

He has served as president and secretary for the youth group, and has helped with the monthly food and fellowship meal. Deem plans to attend a technical institute to become a network administrator.

Gordon, a sophomore, is the daughter of Glenn and Diana Sharpless. She has received awards from Southern Middle School such as Student of the Month and Random Acts of Kindness awards. She currently attends Loch Lynn Church of God and is a member of a Christian club.

In addition, Gordon participates in activities with her church youth group. Although she is unsure of her plans after high school, Gordon hopes to attend college. At some point, she hopes to get a full-time job at a senior center preparing and serving food.

Man Arrested For DWI After Traffic Stop

A Mtn. Lake Park man was arrested after Oakland City Police stopped his vehicle for erratic driving Sunday evening.

Nelson Thomasson IV, 61, was charged with driving while impaired, driving on a suspended license, and operating an unregistered vehicle.

Tax Preparation Service Offered At Senior Center

Free preparation of individual federal and state income tax returns will once again be offered to persons of all ages at the Mary Browning Senior Center on Tuesdays and Thursdays, noon to 4 p.m., and Wednesdays form 5 to 7 p.m., continuing through April 15.

This service has been provided for the past 12 years and now includes free electronic filing to expedite refunds. Returns are prepared by trained IRS certified volunteers.

The Mary Browning Center is located at 104 East Center Street in Oakland. No appointment is required and taxpayers generally may have their returns completed while they wait or leave them for processing and pick them up the next tax preparation day.

Taxpayers are asked to bring their last year's returns with them. The program is organized by AARP, under contract with the IRS, and sponsored by Garrett County Community Action.

4-H Club News

KITZMILLER 4-H
by Kimberly Cogley

The Kitzmiller 4-H Club held its monthly meeting on Jan. 5, at which time the members set a goal. Their goal this year is to become a standard club.

The club members also planned out the activities that they would like to do this year.

At the December 2003 meeting before a Christmas party, the club picked officers for 2004. They are Brittany Whitacre, president; Jeremy Tichinel, vice president; Katie Harvey, secretary; Garrett Beachy, treasurer; Kimberly Cogley, record keeper; and Matthew Kifer, pledge leader.

The February meeting was canceled because of bad weather. The next meeting will be on March 1.

The Garrett County Crime Solvers organization is currently seeking information about two crime incidents that have taken place in the county recently.

Sometime during the days of Dec. 29 and 31, 2003, unknown persons broke into sheds at Smiley's Fun Zone in McHenry and stole two go-carts. One of the small vehicles is still missing. It is decorated with several Smiley's stickers as well as M&M logos.

The second case involves drivers disregarding the blinking lights of a school bus. School bus #42 was stopped along Rt. 219 south on Feb. 4 at approximately 4:20 p.m. The flashing red lights were activated as children were leaving the bus. The bus was stopped in the extreme right-hand lane of the two southbound lanes.

Two dark-colored cars at that moment passed the bus in the left-hand lane of Rt. 219. Both vehicles were traveling at a high rate of speed, a spokesperson said. The bus driver was unable to obtain license numbers from the cars.

Persons who may have witnessed either of these crimes, or who may have information about these (or any other unsolved crimes) are urged to contact Crime Solvers at 301-334-1975.

Callers do not have to give their names or appear in court, and are eligible for rewards up to $1,000 if they give tips that lead to arrests.

Eastern Star Meeting Held

Oakland Chapter No. 67, Order of the Eastern Star, met Tuesday, Feb. 3, at the Paul B. Naylor Masonic Temple. Worthy Matron Juanita Bosley and Worthy Patron Theodore Raynovich presided.

Welcomed by the Worthy Matron were Dottie Csamer and Charee Reckner, Deputy Grand Lecturers of Maryland; Juanita Bosley, Grand Representative to Georgia, and Dottie Csamer, Grand Representative to Quebec.

Officers for the coming year were elected. They are Worthy Matron, Joyce Anderson; Worthy Patron, Richard Csamer; Conductress, Deborah Raynovich; Associate Conductress, Carlene Bennett; Secretary, Dottie Csamer; and Treasurer, Juanita Bosley.

A Valentine program written by Deborah Raynovich was presented by the officers.

The Worthy Matron's closing thought was "Somebody Else," and the Worthy Patron's closing thought was "Children's Names."

The next meeting will be Feb. 17, when the Worthy Matron will give her farewell address. Officers are reminded that practice for installation will be Feb. 28 at 3 p.m., with the installation of officers on March 6 at 2 p.m.

Live "Budgeting" Video To Be Aired By Local Church

The Oak Park Church of the Brethren, Mtn. Lake Park, will host a live video broadcast presenting church motivation information for everyone on Saturday, Feb. 21, from 11:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. titled "Good Sense Budgeting." As a member of the Church Communication Network, this live broadcast is prepared to address issues important to many churches.

This course is designed to provide everyone with the practical tools needed to find financial freedom. The presenter of this "hands-on" budgeting course is Dick Towner, executive director for the Willow Creek Association's Good Sense Stewardship Movement.

This presentation is open to everyone, and there is no charge for any of this broadcast; however, for this particular broadcast, participant workbooks are required. The cost of each workbook is $9.

Reservations for this event are not mandatory, but would be helpful in order to have adequate workbooks on hand.

For more information, persons may contact the church office at 301-334-2243.

March For Meals Campaign Kicks Off Next Month

This March, country music singer and cookbook author Naomi Judd joins the Meals On Wheels Association and its local programs nationwide for the annual March For Meals campaign.

"I've spent most of my life cooking for people I love. And I know the joy of sharing a good, healthy meal with family and friends. Sadly, not everyone is so lucky," Judd said, explaining her commitment to March for Meals, the annual fundraiser and awareness campaign for Meals on Wheels nationwide.

Each year during the campaign, Meals On Wheels programs nationwide work to raise public awareness of senior nutrition issues, raise funds to enable the provisions of their meal services, and recruit volunteers to assist in serving the growing population. Each program establishes its own unique campaign strategy based on March For Meals themes.

This year, Meals on Wheels in Garrett County will hold various fundraisers throughout the county. The Grantsville Senior Center, 125 Durst Road, will hold an "all-you-can-eat" fish fry on Friday, March 5, starting at 4 p.m. The cost is $6.

The center will also sell homemade fruit and cream pies during the month. The cost is $6. To make reservations for the fish fry or to place a pie order, persons may call 301-895-5818.

Proceeds from the Loving Spoonful Bakery at the Mary Browning Senior Center, Oakland, also benefit the local Meals on Wheels. The bakery is open Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday with fresh cinnamons rolls, pepperoni rolls, bread, and various other items for sale. Pies are special ordered and are $6. A quart of homemade soup and dinner rolls are also available for $4 on Tuesday and Thursday.

"We hope March For Meals 2004 will help rally our community behind our organization and the vital work that we do," said Adina Brode, director of the Area Agency on Aging. "Every day, hundreds of thousands of senior citizens, some of whom live right here in our community, go hungry. We are working hard to change this, and we are succeeding, but we need your help. Every person can make a difference, from donating, to volunteering, to educating yourself and other about senior hunger issues."

Senior nutrition programs nationwide provide congregate and home-delivered meal services for elderly people in need. The Meals On Wheels Association of America is an national organization "whose mission is to provide visionary leadership and professional training for the Meals on Wheels programs nationwide, and to develop partnerships that will ensure the provisions of quality nutrition services."

Garrett County's program has been serving meals to seniors for more than 30 years. To learn more about the local Meals On Wheels program, persons may call the Area Agency on Aging at 301-334-9431, ext. 140.

For more information about the national March For Meals 2004 campaign, residents may contact Kristin Swinimer at 410-730-4133 or at kswinimer@racommunications.com.

A RED, WHITE, AND BLUE WELCOME — The Garrett County Department of Social Services rolled out the red carpet Friday for one of its own as Joseph Shaffer returned to his desk to resume his work as a child support specialist. The U.S. Army National Guard soldier had been gone for an eventful year, as he was called to active duty last February to assist with the coalition efforts in Iraq. 1st Lt. Shaffer, who was in Baghdad serving as detachment commander for Bravo Company of the 121st Engineers Battalion based in western Maryland, was in Baghdad from April to September, when he was relieved of duty because of heart problems that necessitated surgery at Walter Reed Hospital. He returned home to Garrett County approximately one month ago to a big welcome from his wife Kim and children Austin and Kaitlin. Shaffer is shown seated at the left with GCDSS director Rick DeWitt who, along with the rest of the pictured DSS staff, welcomed the soldier back to the agency with appreciation for his most recent service to the country and ongoing service to the community.

Second Avian Flu Case In Delaware Ruffles Feathers On Maryland Farms

by Jen DeGregorio
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON – The Maryland Department of Agriculture encouraged state poultry farmers to take extra precautions Tuesday after officials confirmed a second case of avian influenza on a Delaware farm. Maryland farms have been operating under "heightened surveillance" since last Friday, when the first case of bird flu was discovered in Delaware's Kent County.

Workers effectively isolated the first bird-flu case by quarantining the farm and slaughtering 12,000 chickens that came in contact with the virus, said Daniel Perez, a professor of veterinary medicine for the University of Maryland. That's why the second case – which led to the slaughter of 72,000 chickens on the Sussex County farm where it was confirmed – came as a surprise Tuesday.

"This development is completely unexpected given the precautions we took, the investigation we made, and the industry's expectations of this disease's behavior," Delaware Agriculture Secretary Michael Scuse said in a prepared statement.

The chickens that tested positive were infected with the H7 strain of the flu virus, less deadly than the strain currently plaguing Asia, H5N1, which poses a health risk to humans. Nevertheless, Asian countries, including Japan, Malaysia, Singapore, and South Korea, banned all U.S. poultry imports when they caught wind of the flu in Delaware. Other nations, such as Russia and Hong Kong, have banned imports from Delaware only.

Nathaniel Tablante, a poultry veterinarian with the extension service, said the Delaware bird flu poses no risk to humans and has no connection to the case in Asia. But a case in Delaware – harmful or not – probably means that the virus has spread elsewhere, he said.

"The point is that it doesn't really matter where the outbreak is. It's a regional problem, a national problem. The problem of one state is the problem of everybody," Tablante said.

The avian flu is an airborne illness that can be transmitted from one bird to another through mud and manure and can be tracked from farm to farm by mobile sources, such as vehicles.

Delaware officials said they will hold discussions with industry, epidemiology, and agriculture experts from surrounding states and the federal government to design a course of action.

Officials with Delmarva Poultry Inc., an industry group, could not be reached Tuesday to comment on the latest outbreak.

The Maryland Agricultural Department helped Delaware test farms near the first flu site, said Maryland spokeswoman Sue DuPont, and warned farmers here to watch for any "suspicious activity" that might be connected with the virus.

Maryland will continue to help Delaware until the bird flu is under control, at which point it will begin local testing, DuPont said. She said the state's plans to test Maryland chickens this week were postponed after Tuesday's case.

Girls Just Wanna Have Farms: Female Farmer Numbers Growing

by Jen DeGregorio
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON – The number of women who are the primary operators of farms in Maryland rose more than 17 percent in five years, according to numbers released last week by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Women farmers in Maryland outpaced the national increase in female farm operators, which went up about 12 percent in the same amount of time.

Analysts cannot account for the increase – the number of female farm operators in the state rose from 1,614 in 1997 to 1,893 in 2002 – but the director of government relations for the Maryland Farm Bureau was not at all surprised by the marked growth.

"Every year we have women who are becoming involved with the Farm Bureau," said Valerie Connelly. In fact, a woman was recently named as a vice president of the bureau, she said.

In the early 1900s, women were "farmers' wives" and more involved in the social aspects of farm life, forming their own state-farm committee that operated independently of the more "serious" men's group. Now, said Connelly, many women hold positions in the former men's bureau, and the women's group no longer restricts its interests to socializing.

The University of Maryland Extension agent in Charles County said no one is shocked anymore when a woman holds the highest position in her county Farm Bureau or committee.

Pamela B. King also said she thinks Maryland's farm women are "progressive" because the state is so close to the nation's capital.

"Because Maryland is urbanizing and all these changes are right here on top of us, we're where these changes are going to occur first," King said.

Connelly said she thinks women might be drawn to farming because of a reluctance to abandon family for a career. With farming, she said, "women see the opportunity to work out of their homes and raise their children in the traditional way."

But Candace Lohr, general manager of her family's vegetable-and-fruit farm in Harford County, said she has noticed more single women trying their hands at farming over the last decade. Women who have divorced or never married now have more confidence to go into business by themselves, she said.

Lohr, who is not married, said she plans to eventually purchase her parents' 90-acre farm and stay in the business as long as it remains profitable.

While Maryland farmers are getting older – the USDA said the average age was 56, about a year older than the 1997 average – the largest age group for women farmers fell in the 45-54 range. The difference might mean that more women are buying in and more men are selling out, said USDA statistician Norman Bennett. But that cannot be proven until analysts have more details, he said.

Bennett believes the numbers are sound, but cautioned that comparisons to 1997 may not be precise. The 2002 farm census was the first to take particular care to include women and minorities, who might have previously been miscounted, he said. The USDA will release a more comprehensive report in early June, Bennett said. The data will include facts broken down by county, gender, and ethnicity, and will reveal information about the commodities of individual farms, average incomes, and most profitable products in Maryland and its counties.

USDA Unveils Corn Loan Rate

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has announced the 2004 national county loan rate for corn as authorized by the 2002 Farm Bill, which established specific national loan rates for each commodity. For corn the 2002 and 2003 national rates were $1.98 per bushel, and beginning in 2004, the rate will drop to $1.95 per bushel, where it will remain through 2007. These changes are reflected in the county loan rate that was announced.

The 2004 county loan rate continues the market-oriented approach established in 2002 following enactment of the Farm Bill, according to a USDA spokesperson. The relative levels of the county loan rates for each commodity reflect the most recent information available about price relationships around the country, and will enhance the market orientation of the corn loan and loan deficiency payment (LDP) programs.

In establishing this year's rates, USDA continued to focus special attention on minimizing neighboring-county loan rate variances that are not justified by current market forces.

The 2004 crop loan rates for pulse crops will be announced in the near future. The 2004 crop county loan rates for wheat, barley, oats and other oilseeds were announced on Dec. 9, 2003.

The 2004 crop county loan rates for corn are available on the Farm Service Agency Web site at www.fsa.usda.gov/dafp/psd/LoanRate.htm. County loan rates for wheat, barley, oats, and other oilseeds are also available on this site.

W.VA. STATE FSA COMMITTEE APPROVES QUALITY TESTING LAB

The Preston County Farm Service Agency informs producers that the West Virginia State FSA Committee has approved Skyview Laboratory Inc. of Jennerstown, Pa., for the purpose of quality testing of commodity crops (i.e., corn, oats, wheat, and barley), forage crops, etc.

Interested producers should contact the laboratory as follows: mailing address — Skyview Laboratory Inc., 1606 Pitt St., P.O. Box 273, Jennerstown, PA 15547-0273; shipping address — 1606 Pitt St., Jennerstown, PA 15547-0273; toll free phone number — 800-237-8031; fax number — 814-629-5441; and contact person — Verdean Keyser, vkeyser@surfshop.net. Producers should check with the laboratory for sampling instructions.

For test results to be determined acceptable by the County FSA Committee, the affected production must be documented using verifiable evidence, such as sales receipts or actual measurements. The documentation must be dated and contain specific production information related to the quantity of the specific crop (bushels, tons, pounds, etc.). The County FSA Committee shall determine whether the documentation provided substantiates the crop production and the quality for the year.

Actual measurements to verify production must have been taken before the harvesting of next year's crop to document the year of production. Acceptable farm-stored forage measurements are those taken by FSA employees if done as part of a paid measurement service. The use of sales receipts to document production eliminates the need for an on-farm measurement. This will not be a viable option for farmers who use the crop for livestock feed.

To obtain further information on the quality testing requirements, including the scheduling of measurement services, persons are asked to visit the Preston County Farm Service Agency located in the Corner Mall of the Kingwood Plaza or telephone 304-329-1923. They may also e-mail eric.mccartney@wv.usda.gov.

Ag. Census Notes Continued Drop In Md. Farm Acreage

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's National Agricultural Statistics Service (NASS) has released preliminary findings from the 2002 Census of Agriculture, and key findings for Maryland include a decline in the number of farms and acres of farmland in the state, and an increase in the number of women farmers and those who say farming is their primary occupation.

"These preliminary numbers sketch the changing face of agriculture and show the need to remain diligent in our efforts to preserve farmland," said Maryland Agriculture Secretary Lewis R. Riley. "I look forward to the release of more detailed data later this year to paint a full picture of the strength of our agriculture industry."

Highlights of the 2002 preliminary release include changes in the following categories:

•Number of Farms: 12,206 farms, which is a decrease of 8 percent from 1997;

•Land in Farms: 2,076,167 acres of farmland, which is a 5 percent decrease from 1997;

•Average Age of Operator: 55.8 years of age, which is an increase of 0.9 year from 1997;

•Women Principal Operators: 1,893, which is an increase of nearly 17 percent from 1997; and,

•Primary Occupation is Farming: 57 percent of total operators, up from 49 percent in 1997.

"This is the first information available about Maryland farms and farmers from a complete census of farm operators since 1997," said Maryland agriculture statistician Norman Bennett. "The Census of Agriculture, which NASS took over from the Department of Commerce in 1997, is the most comprehensive source of statistics portraying agriculture in Maryland and across the United States."

Other data released from the 2002 Census indicate a shift of farms into lower sales categories, validating previously published data from the Maryland Agricultural Statistics Service on cash receipts. The annual cash receipt data indicated that 2002 receipts were down nearly 10 percent from the previous year. A severe drought affected all of agriculture in Maryland in 2002.

From 1997 through 2002, the Maryland Agricultural Land Preservation Foundation and local farmland preservation programs preserved a total of 193,627 acres of productive agricultural land. While the preserved farmland information is not part of the NASS Census of Agriculture, it illustrates aggressive efforts in Maryland to maintain a critical mass of productive farmland in the face of increasing development pressure.

Complete tabulated census of agriculture data for Maryland and the 23 Maryland counties (in addition to all other states and counties in the U.S.) will be available in June. In addition to a complete picture of agriculture down to the county level, the 2002 Census of Agriculture final report will include new information on multiple operator characteristics, production contracts, computer and Internet use, and farm-related income.

All reports are available for free viewing through the NASS web site at www.usda.gov/nass/. For additional information, persons may call the Maryland Agricultural Statistics Service at 1-800-675-0295, or e-mail norman_bennett@nass.usda.gov.

OPERATING LOANS

Producers who are unable to obtain credit elsewhere may be eligible for Farm Service Agency direct loan funds. Operating loans can be used to finance livestock, crops, machinery, and refinance chattel debts. Funds are issued on a first-come, first-served basis. Persons may contact the office for further information on loan eligibility requirements.

ASK LENDERS ABOUT GURANTEED LOANS

Last summer's weather affected the cash flow for many farmers. If the reduction in net income will not allow you to pay your creditors, you should contact your lender to determine if an FSA guaranteed loan would be beneficial for your farming or ranching operation.

Lenders can submit guaranteed loan requests to assist existing or beginning farm customers. The FSA guaranteed loan program allows lenders to extend terms longer than normal, which may allow for a positive cash flow. Guaranteed farm ownership loans are available to purchase or refinance debts for terms of 20 to 40 years, and operating loans are available to purchase or refinance chattels for terms up to 7 years. Five-year line of credit guaranteed loans are available for annual operating expenses.

FSA encourages lenders and farmers to analyze their income and expenses for the past year and review their cash flows to determine their needs for the 2004 operating year.

Any farmer who may need an FSA guaranteed loan should apply as early as possible because some FSA loan programs may not have adequate funds for the entire year.

LOANS FOR BEGINNING FARMERS, SOCIALLY DISADVANTAGED

FSA is authorized to assist beginning farmers and/or members of socially disadvantaged groups to finance agricultural enterprises. Under these programs, FSA can provide financing to eligible applicants through either direct or guaranteed loans. FSA defines a beginning farmer as a person who:

•has operated a farm for not more than 10 years;

•will materially and substantially participate in the operation of the farm;

•agrees to participate in a loan assessment, borrower training and financial management program sponsored by FSA; and •does not own a farm in excess of 30 percent of the county's average size.

Socially disadvantaged groups are Hispanics, American Indians, African Americans, Asians, Pacific Islanders, and women. Beginning Farmer Applicants and SDA Applicants must also meet the standard FSA loan eligibility requirements.

DISASTER DEBT SET-ASIDE PROGRAM

When borrowers located in designated disaster areas or contiguous counties are unable to make their scheduled payments on any debt, we are authorized to consider setting aside some FSA payments to allow the operation to continue.

To be eligible, the borrower must be current or less than 90 days past due on loans, and unable to pay all family living and farm operating expenses, payments to other creditors and payments to FSA as a direct result of the disaster.

EXISTING FSA BORROWER

Producers that have a farm loan with FSA are reminded they must provide data for their Year-End Analysis (YEA) to their loan officer each year. Borrowers are urged to provide this information timely so that their files can be maintained. The office will contact you for the data you will need to assist us.

It appears FSA may run short of loan funds again this year. Therefore, we encourage each of you to complete your 2003 farm records along with your 2004 farm plans and contact your loan officer as soon as possible. If you think you may have trouble making payments, there may be programs to assist in rescheduling or re-amortizing your payment schedules.

EMERGENCY LOANS

Garrett County has been declared eligible for Emergency Loans (EM) for weather-related events. For damages and losses caused by severe storms, flooding, and landslides that occurred from June 11 through July 15, 2003, an Emergency Loan may be requested by Monday, March 22. For damages and losses caused by Hurricane Isabel that occurred Sept. 18-29, 2003, EM loans may be requested through Monday, May 24.

EM loans may be used for:

•restoring or replacing essential property;

•paying disaster-related production costs;

•family living expenses;

•reorganizing farming operation; and/or

•refinancing farm-related debt.

The interest rate is 3.75 percent. Contact the FSA office for additional details and eligibility requirements.

Real People Sell Real Estate!

Whether you are planning to sell a home or buy one, chances are you've considered (or already have been) searching the Internet for some basic information. You're not alone, because recent research has shown that 92% of homebuyers use the World Wide Web to preview homes and locate real estate offices.

While such tech-savvy buyers and sellers realize the value of face-to-face contact, almost all of them have found that information on the Internet helps them to understand the buying and/or selling process better.

Some of the most useful information you'll find online will be facts and figures about your area finding local businesses, schools, entertainment and shopping. Start with the local Chamber of Commerce website for such directories and other local links.

While visiting an agent's office is inevitable, you can find photos, descriptions, and even "virtual tours" online to begin your home search. Of course, a "virtual tour" is never as good as the "real thing", but it's a good place to start, especially if you're relocating and trying to maximize your travel plans.

Regardless of how you use the Internet to gather and organize your information, be sure to avoid the "virtual agent." A terrific website can promote a qualified and experienced professional, but nothing beats talking to and working with a real person when it comes to your real estate needs.

If you'd like to buy a home, but feel "out of touch" with what's happening in real estate, give me a call today!

National Children's Dental Health Month

MOUTH GUARDS PREVENT INJURIES
February is Children 's Dental Health Month

While the shopping list for children's sports may seem endless and costly, there is one item that should not be overlooked. When picking out the proper baseball glove, soccer cleats, and apparel, make sure that your list includes an appropriate mouth guard.

A mouth guard is a flexible piece of plastic that fits over the upper teeth to protect them from injury when playing sports. An athlete is 60 times more likely to injure his or her teeth when not wearing a mouth guard. Mouth guards should be worn for any sports-related activities that may pose a risk of falls or contact with other players or equipment, which includes non-contact sports such as gymnastics and skateboarding.

Sixty percent of facial injuries occur during sports practice. Sports such as football, lacrosse, and hockey generally require players to wear a mouth guard. Surprisingly, the oral injury rate for football players is lower than all other sports, including women's basketball, due to the fact that players are required to wear a mouth guard. Basketball and baseball account for nearly half of all sports-related mouth injuries.

There are three types of mouth guards to choose from. A stock mouth guard is sold in sporting goods stores in varying sizes and is held in place by simply biting down. Boil-and-bite mouth guards are the most common and can also be found in sporting goods stores. These are softened in boiling water and then formed to fit the mouth. Finally, a dentist can make a custom-made mouth guard; although these are the most expensive, they are also the best for preventing oral injury.

When choosing a mouth guard, make sure that it is flexible, durable, comfortable, and resistant to tears. It should fit properly, not obstruct breathing or speaking, and be odorless and tasteless. A good mouth guard should also be easy to clean.

Remember that a mouth guard is much less expensive and a lot less painful than the repair of a broken tooth. More than 200,000 injuries are prevented each year by wearing appropriate mouth protection. If your child thinks that a mouth guard is not "cool," then remind him or her that neither is missing front teeth!

GOLF PRO ADDRESSES ROTARY – Pat Warren, golf pro and club manager at the Oakland Golf Club, recently addressed the Oakland Rotary Club. The former Raleigh, N.C., resident noted that the Oakland Golf Club was a public club with more than 400 members. Its original nine-hole golf course was built by the Civilian Conservation Corps during the Great Depression, and one of the founding contributors was the Oakland Rotary Club. The golf club has a variety of leagues and programs for all ages, including a summer-long junior program in which more than 60 youth participate. The club also hosts many tournaments and charity events, including a recent match that raised funds for the Oakland Rotary Club's annual Christmas Project. Pictured, left to right, are Warren and Bob Stephens, president of the Oakland Rotary Club.

Course Offered To Those Caring For Mentally Ill

In an effort to assist family members of individuals with serious mental illness to better cope with and understand their mentally ill relatives, the National Alliance for the Mentally Ill (NAMI) of Garrett County is providing a 12-week family education course.

This course is being presented free of charge and is meant to be a service to those who often suffer as much as their ill relative, a spokesperson said.

The series will be held at the Grantsville Outreach Center beginning March 5, and will be held every Friday for the following 11 weeks, depending upon weather and holidays. The meeting time is 7 to 9:30 p.m.

The course schedule is as follows: class 1: Introduction to Family Education; class 2: Symptoms of Schizophrenia, Major Depression, Bipolar Disorder, and Getting Through Critical Periods of Crisis; class 3: Subtypes of Depression and Bipolar Disorder, Panic Disorder and OCD, and Telling our Stories; class 4: Basics of Brain Biology and the Causes Of Brain Disorders; class 5: Problem Solving Workshop; class 6: Medication Review; class 7: Empathy — Inside Mental Illness; class 8: Communication Skills Workshop; class 9: Self-Help; class 10: Rehabilitation and Making Choices for Recovery; class 11: Fighting Stigma and Advocacy; and class 12: Evaluation, Certification, and Celebration.

Individuals interested in taking this course should plan on taking it in its entirety and will need to register by Feb. 29. All materials, including texts, will be provided free of charge. Classes will begin and end promptly at the scheduled times and persons are asked to try to arrive a few minutes early.

To register, persons may call Mary Ann Brenneman, NAMI Garrett County, at 301-895-5366; Jerry Ruby, co-teacher, at 301-689-6275; or Julie Adams, co-teacher, at 301-533-0549.

"No Tears Past The Gate"
Someone new has entered
our eternal home above, the heavenly gate has opened wide to welcome the one you love.
We cannot help the tears that fall,
our hearts need time to grieve,
when earthly life has ended and a loved one has to leave.
Yet even in the saddest time,
We know our Savior lives,
and we can trust completely to the promised final reunion with the Lord to welcome us in joy with [illegible]
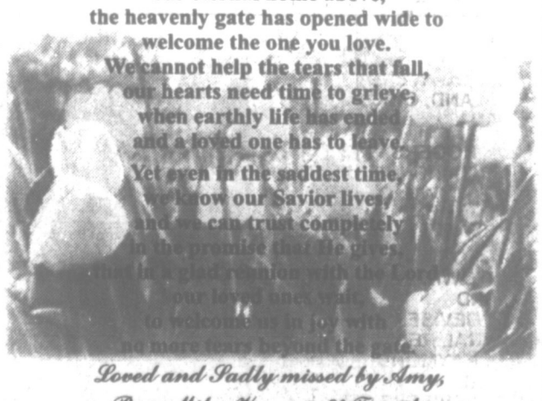
no more tears beyond the gate.



Loved and Sadly missed by Amy, Pam, Mike, Vanessa & Family

Garden Club Sets "Birds Of Garrett County" Program

Garrett College professor Kevin Dodge will present "Birds of Garrett County" during the upcoming meeting of the Mountain Laurel Garden Club, set for 10:30 a.m. Tuesday, Feb. 17, in Room 305 of Garrett College's Continuing Education Building. A short business meeting will precede Dodge's presentation, and a buffet lunch will follow the program.

Dodge, who has coordinated and participated in numerous bird counts in the region, is the professor of wildlife and biology at the college, where he directs the Natural Resources and Wildlife Technology program. He earned a bachelor's degree in biology at Southwest Missouri State University, Springfield, and a master of science degree in biology from Michigan Technological University, Houghton. He undertook further studies at West Virginia University.

Since joining the Garrett faculty in 1987, Dodge has taught a variety of courses in natural history and ecology. His courses emphasize field experience, and many classes include field trips to other parts of the mid-Atlantic and central Appalachian region. He leads study trips to Alaska through the Garrett College/Towson University Ecotour program, and also uses spring breaks to take GC students on natural history exploration ventures in the southern tier of the United States.

Dodge is a member of the Savage River State Forest advisory board and the Youghiogheny Watershed Association. He leads numerous hikes and conducts campfire programs for state parks, state forests, and the Nature Conservancy. He and his family live in Bittinger.

The meeting is open to the public, and persons interested in further information or in making a lunch reservation may call Karen Ewing at 301-387-6180 or Norma Hesen at 301-387-4384. Membership in the Mountain Laurel Garden Club, which is affiliated with the National Garden Clubs and the Federated Garden Clubs of Maryland, is open to all.

PUBLIC NOTICE

On February 3, 2004, the Board of County Commissioners adopted the Garrett County Animal Control Ordinance, which enacted legislative provisions that will affect owners of dogs and cats. All sections of the Ordinance including fees, fines, and enforcement are now effective with the exception of new licensing requirements for dogs and cats. These revised provisions will become effective with the issuance of animal license tags for the upcoming fiscal year beginning July 1, 2004. Dogs tags valid until June 30, 2004 are currently available.

Existing kennels, catteries, and pet shops will be required to meet all new requirements of the Ordinance by July 1, 2004. New applicants must meet all provisions of the Ordinance prior to the issuance of the permit.

The Ordinance can be reviewed on www.garrettcounty.org or questions should be addressed to Brad Frantz, Director, Department of Emergency Management at 301-334-1929.

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Deep Creek Watershed Board of Zoning Appeals will conduct a public hearing on Thursday, February 26, 2004, starting at 7:30 p.m. in the County Commissioners' meeting room, Second Floor, Courthouse Annex, Oakland. The Board will review the following docketed cases:

1. SE-341 – an application submitted by Deep Creek Mountain Resort Lakeside Club, LLC, for a Special Exception permit for a private or membership club. The property is located at 1077 Deep Creek Drive and is zoned Town Center (TC).

2. SE-342 – an application submitted by Silver Tree Suites for a Special Exception permit for a proposed hotel that would be 3.5 stories and 42.5 feet in height. Hotels in excess of 3 stories, but less than 6 stories are permitted by Special Exception. Also hotels that exceed 35 feet, but are less than 60 feet, are permitted by Special Exception, in the Town Center (TC) District. The property is located at 567 Glendale Road and is zoned TC.

3. SE-343 – an application submitted by Dennis Glotfelty of Double G for a Special Exception permit for sales of Recreational Vehicles with no displays. The property is located at 76 Double G Drive and is zoned Commercial Resort 2 (CR2).

4. VR-566 – an application submitted by Gregory and Sheri Mortimer for Variances to build a proposed residence to come within 15.0 feet of two rear, lakefront property lines instead of the required 40.0 feet. The property is located adjacent to 2470 Stockslager Road and is zoned Lake Residential (LR).

5. VR-567 – an application submitted by Linda J. Green for a Variance for an existing, substandard residential lot. The lot does not comply with the one-acre minimum lot size requirement in the Lake Residential (LR) zone. The property is located adjacent to 3386 Glendale Road. This case is continued from the January meeting.

6. VR-568 – an application submitted by Robert and Lilly Kelly for a Variance to construct an addition to a residence that will come within 16.0 feet of the rear property line, instead of the required 20.0 feet. The property is located at 1231 Deep Creek Drive and is zoned Town Center (TC).

7. VR-569 – an application submitted by William and Judy Houley for a Variance to construct an addition to a residence that will come within 10.0 feet of the side property line, instead of the required 15.0 feet. The property is located at 142 Grandview Drive and is zoned Lake Residential (LR).

Interested persons are invited to attend.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING
GARRETT COUNTY
WATER AND SEWER MASTER PLAN

Notice is hereby given that a public hearing of the County Commissioners of Garrett County is scheduled for Tuesday, February 17, 2004, at 11:00 a.m. in the Garrett County Commissioners' public meeting room, located at the Courthouse, Oakland, MD, to consider three amendments to the Garrett County Water and Sewer Master Plan.

The justification for these three amendments is listed below:

1. The Town of Grantsville intends to replace 2" galvanized water line in the Springs Road area with 1,200 ft. of 10" PVC, 3 fire hydrants and related apparatus. This project will provide adequate water supply for residential customers, serve as a water source for Grantsville Fire Department and provide fire protection for the service area. On February 18, 1998, the Garrett County Commissioners formally resolved (Resolution No. 2-17-98) to amend the Garrett County Water and Sewer Master Plan to upgrade the water facilities in Grantsville to provide fire protection to the Northern Garrett Industrial Park and water supply in the Keyser's Ridge area. The improvements, which were constructed between 2001 and 2003, included two new 100 gallon per minute wells on the Arthur Green property, a new 400,000 gallon water storage tank and water treatment plant located on Negro Mountain. The Garrett County Sanitary District entered into a cost sharing arrangement with the Town of Grantsville to purchase 40% of the new capacity to supply the Keyser's Ridge area with water.

2. In 2003, the Town of Oakland annexed properties in the Memorial Drive area. Oakland intends to provide water and sewer service to approximately twenty residential customers in this area.

3. The Town of Accident will rehabilitate 23,000 ft. of 6", 8", and 10" sewer line using high-density polyethylene deformed, reformed pipe liner. In addition customer service laterals will be reinstated, 77 manholes will be rehabilitated and wastewater treatment plant improvements will be made providing for an increase to 90,000 gallons per day from 50,000 gallons per day permissible discharge.

Interested persons will be heard at the public hearing on February 17, 2004, to determine if the amendments to the Garrett County Water and Sewer Master Plan are necessary for the public health, safety, and welfare of the residents of the current or proposed service areas and if the projects are feasible financially and from an engineering standpoint.

By order of the County Commissioners of Garrett County
R. Lamont Pagenhardt
County Administrator

NOTICE TO PUBLIC
OF FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT IMPACT AND NOTICE OF INTENT TO REQUEST RELEASE OF FUNDS
TOWN OF DEER PARK

The purpose of the Notice is to identify two separate but related actions to be taken by the Town of Deer Park.

On or about March 9, 2003, the above named town will request that the Maryland Department of Housing and Community Development release funds under the Community Development Block Grant Program to be used for the following project:

Project Title: Town of Deer Park Water Connections Project MD-01-CD-26

Project Purpose: Assist income eligible residents with the cost of connecting to the new water system.

Location: Scattered sites throughout the corporate limits of Deer Park.

FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT IMPACT

Notice is hereby given that the above named municipality has prepared an Environmental Review Record on the project described in this notice and has determined that said project would have no significant effect on the quality of the human environment. No further review of said project is proposed prior to requesting the Release of Funds.

The Finding of No Significant Impact is based on the following:

The project involves providing financial assistance to eligible residents of Deer Park for costs associated with connecting to the public water system presently under construction in the town. All construction activities are being performed by the Garrett County Department of Public Utilities by contract to a private contractor. Construction standards will be regulated by various permit requirements, and no negative environmental impact is anticipated.

The Environmental Review Record, which documents the environmental review of this project, is available for public examination at the Town Hall during normal business hours, or by request.

PUBLIC COMMENTS ON FINDING

All interested agencies, groups, and persons disagreeing with this decision are invited to submit written comments respecting the environmental impacts of the described project to the Deer Park Town Hall and to the Department of Housing and Community Development. All such comments must be received no later than March 5, 2004. All comments will be considered and the Town will not request the release of funds nor take any action on the project prior to this date.

REQUEST FOR RELEASE OF FUNDS

The Town will undertake the project described above with Community Development Block Grant Funds. This Notice also certifies that Donald Dawson, serving in the official capacity of Mayor, consents to accept the jurisdiction of the Federal Courts if an action is brought to enforce responsibilities in relation to environmental reviews, decision making, and actions; and that these responsibilities have been satisfied. The legal effect of the certification is that upon its approval, the Town may use the CDBG funds and the Maryland Department of Housing and Community Development will have satisfied its responsibilities under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969.

OBJECTIONS TO RELEASE OF FUNDS

Objections to the release of funds will be accepted by the Department of Housing and Community Development only if it is on one of the following bases: (a) that the certification was not in fact executed by the certifying Officer; or (b) that the Town's Environmental Review record for the project indicated omission of a required decision, finding, or step applicable to the program in the environmental review process; or (c) no opportunity was given to the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation or its executive director to review the effect of the project on a property listed on the National Register of Historic Places or found to be eligible for such listing by the Secretary of the Interior, in accordance with 35 CDR part 800; (d) Objections by a Federal Agency. All interested agencies, groups, and persons disagreeing with this decision are invited to submit written comments to the Town and to the CDBG Program Manager, DHCD, 100 Community Place, Crownsville, MD 21032-2023. All such comments must be received no later than March 5, 2004.

SUBSTITUTE TRUSTEES' SALE OF IMPROVED REAL PROPERTY
3840 BETHLEHEM RD.
OAKLAND AR/T/A DEER PARK, MD 21550

Under a power of sale contained in a certain Deed of Trust from Gary Lee McGinnis, Henry E. Moore, Jr. and Tamara Moore, dated August 15, 2002, and recorded in Liber 912, Folio 184 among the Land Records of Garrett Co., MD, default having occurred under the terms thereof, the Sub. Trustees will sell at public auction at the Circuit Court for Garrett Co., at the Court House Door, Oakland, on

FEBRUARY 26, 2004, AT 2:00 PM

ALL THAT FEE-SIMPLE LOT OF GROUND, together with the buildings and improvements thereon situated in Garrett Co., MD, and more fully described in the aforesaid Deed of Trust.

The property, which is improved by a dwelling, will be sold in an "as is" condition and subject to conditions, restrictions and agreements of record affecting the same, if any, and with no warranty of any kind.

Terms of Sale: A deposit of $6,000 in the form of cash, certified check, or in any other form suitable to the Substitute Trustees in their sole discretion, shall be required at the time of sale, except no deposit shall be required of the secured party, its successors or assigns. Balance of the purchase price to be paid in cash within ten days of final ratification of sale by the Circuit Court for Garrett Co. If the purchaser fails to go to settlement, the deposit shall be forfeited and the property may be resold at the purchaser's risk and expense. The defaulting purchaser shall not be entitled to any surplus proceeds or profits resulting from any resale of the property. Interest to be paid on the unpaid purchase money at the rate pursuant to the Deed of Trust Note from the date of sale to the date funds are received in the office of the Sub. Trustees. In the event settlement is delayed for any reason, there shall be no abatement of interest. Taxes, ground rent, water rent, condominium fees and/or homeowner association dues, all public charges/assessments payable on an annual basis, including sanitary and/or metropolitan district charges, if applicable, to be adjusted for the current year to date of sale and assumed thereafter by the purchaser. The purchaser is responsible for any amount in excess of $500 of outstanding water bills, if any, incurred prior to date of sale. Cost of all documentary stamps, transfer taxes and settlement expenses shall be borne by the purchaser. Purchaser shall be responsible for obtaining physical possession of the property. Purchaser assumes the risk of loss or damage to the property from the date of sale forward. If the Sub. Trustees are unable to convey good and marketable title, the purchaser's sole remedy in law and equity shall be limited to a refund of the deposit. In the event the sale is not ratified for any reason, the purchaser's sole remedy at law or equity, is the return of the deposit. Additional terms, if any, to be announced at sale. Purchaser agrees to pay $245.00 at settlement, to the Seller's attorney, for review of the settlement documents.
